GOP Brings Pressure on Nixon to Run

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Heads of the Republican State Central Committee Saturday urged former Vice President Richard M. Nixon to run for governor of California—"as the most qualified man in our state."

The 75-member executive committee of the state GOP said in a resolution:

"We would be derelict in our duty if, recognizing as Mr. Nixon does, that our party has a wealth of qualified people to serve as governor, we did not point out that the most important service our party can perform for the people of California is the election of the most qualified man in the state to be our governor—Richard M. Nixon."

"We believe that his election as governor would not only restore to California the front rank position we so long enjoyed before 1958, but would broaden and make even more valuable Richard Nixon's extraordinary leadership—a leadership our whole country so desperately needs."

Nixon told a select group of California GOP leaders a few days ago that he doesn't intend to run—but will postpone a final decision for 60 days.

During that time he urged GOP leaders to see if another candidate can be found to, as Nixon put it, "save the state for the Republicans."

Unofficial reports say Nixon has been getting conflicting advice about whether to run. Some GOP leaders reportedly feel Nixon must have a political base of power, such as the governorship, if he ever hopes to run again for President.

Others contend Nixon, if elected governor, would be bogged down in state problems, confronted by a hostile Democratic legislature and unable to exert national influence.

Auto Hits Deer; Four Drowned

KALISPELL, Mont. (AP)—A mother and three young children drowned Saturday after their car struck a deer and plunged into McGregor Lake.

Coroner Sol Catron identified the victims as Mrs. Rosemary A. Caveny, 29, of Kalispell, and her children, Vickie, 4; Karen, 2½, and Pamela Rose, 1.

Sheriff Dick Walsh said the late model car went out of control and traveled 170 feet after the impact, plunging into 12-foot-deep water of the lake west of here on U.S. Highway 2.

SLIDING ON AIR

Ford Motor Company's Levacar Mach I, the first full-scale, wheel-less vehicle utilizing air propulsion, is given a trial run by Dr. Andrew A. Kucher, vice president of engineering and research. Styling of the aluminum vehicle was done by vice president George W. Walker, standing. It is the first Levacar in which the operator rides and has full command over both levitation and forward speed.

SPEEDS ON FRICTIONLESS AIR CUSHION

'Ford Without Wheels' Possible Nucleus of 500-mph Transit

By HERB SHANNON

A Ford without wheels may be the answer to Southern California's crowded freeways.

This doesn't mean you have to take the family car apart to avoid the Sunday driver crush. Ford engineers in Detroit already have taken care of this.

They have designed a vehicle called the Levacar, which lifts itself a fraction of an inch off a prepared surface and slides along on a friction-free film of compressed air. It has no wheels to start with.

The prototype Levacar is only a one-passenger job and can be used only on a special circular track which is set up for demonstrations. But this one-man vehicle is the basis for a mass-transit design which would accommodate 200 passengers on rails between cities.

THE KING-SIZE Levacar design would be 124 feet long, weigh 76,000 pounds and be capable of speeds up to 500 miles an hour. Ford Motor Co. representatives have discussed the design with Pennsylvania Railroad engineers for an experimental line between New York and Philadelphia.

If the experiment should work, it would pave the way for huge savings in rapid transit construction and possibly break the cost freeze which has blocked development of monorail or other mass transportation in Southern California.

Dr. Andrew A. Kucher, Ford vice president for engineering, maintains that the cost of an elevated system for the Levacar would be $125,000 to $150,000 a mile, compared to a minimum average of $600,000 a mile for a superhighway.

The secret of the Levacar is compressed air emitted from small holes in the metal pads which support the vehicle on specially-constructed rails. The air forms a thin high-pressure area and lifts the pad a fraction of an inch from the rails.

In the preliminary mass-transit design, propulsive power would be supplied by two three-bladed propellers, one at each end of the cigar-shaped vehicle. Braking would be accomplished by reversing the propellers. The efficiency of the Levacar principle may be best illustrated by the small amount of power necessary to lift and propel the operational one-man model. Only 15 horsepower is required to levitate the vehicle and less than two horsepower is needed to push the car at 15 miles an hour.

FURTHER SAVINGS in construction between cities could be made by using existing railroad tracks as the base for the Levacar rails, Dr. Kucher said.

According to Ford engineers, design studies for a four-passenger version of the Levacar are under way and the vehicle may be ready to test in about two years. And perhaps, along about 1966, local service stations will be having compressed-air price wars and advertising free gas to attract customers.

Correction

A news story appearing in this newspaper June 11, 1961, reported that James Forrest Carroll, Long Beach attorney, and his wife, Jeanica, had been released June 9, 1961, after a 72-hour arrest in Mexico City in connection with a narcotics investigation involving Frederick Alfred Hoffman, a friend and client of Carroll. It also reported that the Carrolls were told to remain in Mexico until a judge started an inquiry into an alleged narcotics ring. These statements were erroneous. Investigation has now disclosed that on June 6, 1961 the Carrolls went to Mexico City in response to notice that Hoffman had been hospitalized for burns received in an explosion at his home in Mexico City.

While investigating the explosion, the Mexican police discovered a large quantity of marijuana in Hoffman's home. When the Carrolls visited Hoffman at the hospital, they were taken into custody by Mexican authorities investigating the narcotics case. No charge was made against the Carrolls, but they were detained for 72 hours for questioning first in the office of the Federal District Attorney and then in the office of the Attorney General of the Republic. At the end of 72 hours they were released unconditionally, free to leave Mexico at any time they chose.

This newspaper regrets the inaccuracies contained in the original news story.

Larry Bond, 13, of 6112 Elsa St., was bitten yesterday by a small, black, short-haired dog being led on a leash by a small girl with a blond pony tail. She was about 8 years old.

The girl did not stop and her identity is not known. If the dog is not found, the boy will have to undergo Pasture treatment. His phone number is HA 5-2391.

German as Spy Brazil Arrests

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP)—Police reported Saturday they have arrested a dashing young German as a spy. They accused him of using love letters to transmit secret information to Communist East Germany.

Joao Ranall, chief of the political police, identified him as Joseph Werner Lieben, 29, employee of a publicity agency who had an apartment in one of the city's most expensive districts.

Lieben had been trailed for five months, Ranall said. In checking his mail, investigators found he was sending secret information about Brazil in love letters to a woman in East Berlin, the chief added. Amorous terms sometimes were used as code. Ranall said Lieben had confessed he was spying for the East Germans.

President's Guard Looks for 'Alien'

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Secret Service men guarding the President were advised Saturday an alien might be headed for Hyannis Port after slipping past immigration authorities in New York.

A 26-year-old German national sneaked off a KLM Dutch Airlines plane during a brief stopover in New York Friday night, immigration officials reported.

PASSENGERS reported he had said something about "having to see the President."

State police sent out a precautionary message on the man, identified as Voles Heinz-Jeigens. He boarded the plane in Peru and was headed for Europe.

Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the Secret Service had been alerted but that "it is not considered a serious matter. It is routine."

Salinger said it is the procedure in all such cases for local police and the Secret Service to be advised.

Surfboard Cult! New Way of Life

Obviously can't all be bums. Even those who detest the breed admit the troublemakers are in the minority.

One high school principal from Los Angeles spends every summer, when he can afford it, surfing in Hawaii with his son.

"It's the cleanest, freest, most exhilarating sport I know," says the principal. "It builds self reliance, stamina, and courage. The surfer is a true individualist."

TAKE A look at surfers in action:

You'll see them every summer day now at their favorite surfing spots from the Mexican border's Tijuana slavs (a corruption of slough) north to San Francisco's steamer lane, where they wear knee-diver suits—and the waves break far out in blue water where the liners pass.

Some have new sports cars laboring under board-loaded racks. But most surfwagons are ancient, expendable and cheap. Old hearses are highly prized. So are war-surplus ambulances and old station wagons. You can sleep in them.

The surfers themselves are usually huskier than average, fitter, tanner. Their hair is frequently bleached from the sun—or peroxide to make it look sunbleached.

THOSE WHO make it a way of life don't care what they wear. An old overcoat or raincoat is fine for the beach, because it's warm early in the morning. Chopped-off denim pants and sleeveless sweatshirts are worn right into the water. Down-to-the-knee shorts, for warmth, have become so popular they are manufactured and sold as "surfers."

Their language tends to nicknames and jargonese. Dirty Tom will tell you all about the break at the Trestle. But you won't know what he's talking about, unless you surf.

It is just because they're different that the surfers are being looked down upon?

"We've got some bad apples," says a surfers' spokesman, "they're the ones that gave all surfers a bad name."

TALK TO Sgt. Jack Pease, juvenile officer at the Los Angeles County Malibu Sheriff's Station, and he'll tell you about bad apples:

"Any time we see crowds of surfers," he said, "we know there's going to be trouble. Trespassing, petty theft, truancy, underage drinking, vandalism."

"At a local restaurant the waiters know if surfers come in, something's going to be stolen. The markets have a terrible time with these kids shoplifting. They steal empty bottles from around back of the market and turn them in at the front for pennies. Then they steal them again as soon as the clerk puts them out back again—and turn them in again."

"You see the same guys, day after day. They don't work. What can they do here, anyway? It's just a small town with a lot of beach. You want to know how they get the money to stay on the beach?"

"They steal. They break into cars and grab anything of value. They steal other kids' surfboards and sell them. They steal food from the markets. They'll do anything but work."

There are different kinds of surfers the sergeant never meets. Take Hobart (Hobie) Alter of Dana Point, and Judy Donlevy of Malibu, for instance:

Hobie, a husky, thirtyish chap who has won prizes in Hawaiian surfing contests, probably works more hours a week than Sgt. Pease. He owns California's biggest surfboard manufacturing firm.

HOBIE SPONSORS a surfing club and is fighting to "shape up" the troublemakers. He thinks he has already seen some improvement.

Judy Donlevy is 18, tall, lithe, tanned, with hair sunbleached the color of straw. Her father is actor Brian Donlevy.

"I guess all the boys I go out with are surfers," said Judy. "They're no different from people who drive sports cars or play tennis. It's just that we like to surf. And people with common interests go together."

"It's just a few of them, really, that give the others a bad name."

Grissom's Space Flight Scheduled for Tuesday

astronauts, eased off on their intensive training Saturday and went on a "low residue" diet in preparation for the flight aboard a space capsule known as "Liberty Bell 7."

GRISSOM is expected to have an easier time of it than did Alan Shepard, who spent so much of his 15-minute pioneer flight proving that man could do useful work in space that he had comparatively little time for "sight-seeing" at the spectacular visions below him.

An enlarged "picture window" has been installed in the side of "Liberty Bell 7" to give the astronaut a better view. "Freedom 7," Shepard's capsule, contained only two small portholes.

If the flight goes as expected, Grissom will feel a pull of nearly 10 times his own weight, then will spend about five minutes in weightlessness as his capsule arcs into the black chill of space.

HE AGAIN will be subjected to "G-forces" on his way down, but parachutes should lower the two-ton capsule into the water at a safe speed northeast of Grand Bahama Island.

Barring mishap with this shot, the Federal Space Agency plans to send astronauts on at least two more "sub-orbital" flights—one in late August or early September, the second in October—to get a four-man team of trained spacemen ready for flights into orbit next year.

Several changes were made in "Liberty Bell 7"—named by the seven-man team of astronauts—that had been planned even before Shepard rode the first capsule, "Freedom 7," to success.

The changes include: A rate stabilization and control system, to give the astronaut a more precise means of controlling the position of the capsule during weightlessness. Scientists said the capsule's response "will be similar to that of a modern high-speed aircraft."

A hatch secured with explosive bolts to give the pilot another safety device "to insure easy and rapid escape in the event of an emergency."

A re-arranging of instruments on a panel above the astronaut, "for quicker and easier reference."

Minor modifications in the astronaut's 20-pound space-suit and the microphones in-reflective life raft, in case the astronaut should have to leave his capsule at sea. It weighs 45 per cent less than an earlier version.

I, P-T Life of Cooley at Trial

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

BAKERSFIELD—A biography of Donnell (Spade) Cooley, published by The Independent Press - Telegram, will be introduced during Cooley's trial for the murder of his wife, Ella Mae.

Defense Atty. P. Basil Lambros said Saturday the six-part story of Cooley's life will be brought into the trial during the defense presentation.

Lambros said psychiatrists who examined Cooley for the defense used the I, P-T series as "the only authentic" biography of the defendant.

The trial of Cooley resumes here Monday before Superior Judge William L. Bradshaw and a jury of 10 men and two women. District Atty. Kit Nelson is expected to introduce additional photographs of the beaten body of Mrs. Cooley, and a pathologist to explain the effects of the beating.

Out-of-Doors State Dinner Gay, Simple

By MARIE W. RIDDER
P.T. Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The first state dinner ever to come out of an Army field kitchen was served in the sunset at Mount Vernon.

White House chef Rene Verdon eyed his khaki-clad assistants nervously as they unloaded the delicacies. Monsieur Verdon had obviously been "conned" by the First Lady into accepting the idea that his dinner—for 138 lucky VIPS—could travel from the White House kitchens to what he described as, "les champs"—the fields.

He went on to say it was "plus au moins picnic." Roughly translated, he felt the dinner was rather a simple one. Indeed, the main course "poulet chasseur" or plain chicken casserole was hardly what he would have chosen for a state dinner.

HE EXPLAINED Mrs. Kennedy had chosen a menu similar to one—if less elaborate—Martha Washington might have used. Crab meat salad made from crabs fresh out of neighbouring Chesapeake Bay, then a casserole of chicken adopted from the Washington's own recipe for "Mt. Vernon chicken" and Virginia raspberries.

Even Monsieur Verdon admitted that if he had to serve a dinner out of doors he could not have found a lovelier spot. The glory of the home of the father or our country was used to its best advantage. The charming white-pillared house with its broad view of the Potomac River came to life for President and Mrs. Kennedy's state dinner honoring the President of Pakistan, Mohammed Ayub and his begum.

George Washington might well have been proud to see the place he so cherished still beautiful and so much a part of our national heritage.

GUESTS at the first Presidential dinner ever held at Mount Vernon dined in a gay, flower bedecked pavillion. The ceiling of the tent was a bright yellow matching Mrs. Kennedy's yellow table cloths, each table was decorated with garden flowers, in jermouil cache pots and candles set in hurricane glass tops. An Air Force musician strolled between the round tables each seating ten guests, playing popular music. On the broad green lawn candles flickered—not only as a romantic touch but as a precaution against the myriad bugs of the Washington summer. Below the placid Potomac glittered in the soft evening light.

Mrs. Kennedy had the idea of using our national monuments for state occasions after having dined at the palaces of Versailles in France and Schoenbrunn—in Austria on her European trip. Ever since January she has tried to devise ways of making state entertaining more fun-less, rigidly formal.

Mount Vernon, however, presented logistical problems—no kitchens, its period rooms are so arranged that a dinner inside the manse would be impossible, the narrow gravel drive is too narrow to allow incoming and outgoing cars at the same time. Nevertheless, every one consulted was charmed with the idea of dining at Mount Vernon on a summer eve. In a cooperative effort that Secretary of Defense McNamara must wish could be achieved more often, the armed services combined to work out a plan.

THE NAVY produced a PT boat, the guardian to join the Presidential river yachts, the Honey Fitz and the Patrick J. and The Secretary of Navy's craft, the Dequouia. These transported the guests down the river. They worked out a staggered system of arrival at the tiny Mount Vernon dock so that cars carrying guests from the landing to the mase could make the turn around without keeping the star-studded group waiting too long on the wharf.

The Army provided a field kitchen, a huge refrigerator and trucks to transport the Eisenhower dinner plates, the Roosevelt demitasses and the Kennedy glassware from the White House. The Army Engineers sprayed the greens ward to diminish the bur hazard-and Army, Navy and Marines combined for a charming presentation of th. colors, using Colonial music and fife and drum.

and took it to the apartment. After they drank four cans of beer, Engstrom made breakfast. The two men ate scrambled eggs and drank milk.

Then, sometime after 2 a.m., the killer attacked Engstrom.

It was believed by homicide detectives Art Perle and W. D. Jordan that Engstrom was beaten on the head with a milk bottle—and that the killer took the bottle with him when he left.

Four of Engstrom's ribs were fractured, indicating to officers that the killer had stomped him.

BUT THE cause of death was suffocation, police said. The murderer had left his victim gagged with a dish towel and bound hand and foot with electrician's tape. The tape was wound around Engstrom's throat and drawn down tightly to his ankles.

The killer positioned a divan in front of the body and covered Engstrom with cushions.

The murderer then searched drawers and cabinets in the kitchen, living room and Engstrom's bedroom. He took his victim's wallet and keys.

He went downstairs to the street and searched Engstrom's car. Then he fled.

PAPERS FROM the dead man's wallet were found Saturday at 20th Street and Long Beach Boulevard.

Engstrom's aunt said she heard moans about 3 a.m., and heard someone moving about the apartment and down the hall past her bedroom to that of Engstrom.

When the sounds of the footsteps faded, as the attacker left the apartment house, she went into the living room and discovered her nephew's body.

She called Engstrom's brother, Robert, at his Rossmoor home. Robert hurried to the apartment, saw the body and called the police.

DET. PERLE said robbery appeared to be a likely motive for the killing.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Fiance of Crosby Girl Reappears

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—H. Frank Jones, who failed to show up for his wedding to band leader Bob Crosby's daughter, returned to his apartment here Saturday and told waiting newsmen:

"I told her all along I wasn't sure. Her family tried to push me into it."

"Mr. Jones and I are through," said Elizabeth Ann Crosby. "I am returning his ring."

Jones, who had told Miss Crosby Friday he would get a shave and meet her to get married in the City Hall chambers of a Superior Court judge, said he instead drove to Sonoma, Calif., and spent the night.

He said Saturday that Miss Crosby, 26, had been seeing a psychiatrist, and claimed she hadn't told him.

Miss Crosby, who scoffed at Jones' remarks alleging family pressure, also said that Jones knew she had seen a psychiatrist for a short time after their breakup in February.

Third Yacht Finishes Race

HONOLULU (AP)—The 66-foot cutter Nam Sang crossed the finish line the apparent winner Saturday in the 22nd biennial San Pedro to Honolulu Transpacific yacht race.

The cutter slid across the Diamond Head finish line at 1:46 a.m. (HST) for an elapsed time of 10 days, 16 hours, 46 minutes and 25 seconds. She also placed first in Class A competition.

There was still a mathematical chance, however, that the 50-foot sloop Ichiban could nose out the Nam Sang for the handicap title.

The Nam Sang was third to finish the 2,225-mile yachting classic, crossing after the sloop Sirius II and the 72-foot ketch Ticonderoga. The Nam Sang has, however, a better handicap time than the first two finishers.

Attendant Slays Sweetheart

LOS ANGELES (CNS)—A service station attendant shot his sweetheart Saturday and then carried the dying woman into a hospital in an attempt to save her life.

But pretty, dark-haired Adelina Maldonado, a 36-year-old cocktail waitress, died on an operating table at Lincoln receiving hospital from a bullet in the heart.

The boy friend, Ismael G. Ozuna, 35, carried the unconscious woman into the hospital shortly after 4 a.m. and told Dr. Grover E. Christenson: "Doc, I just shot my girl. Please try and save her."

JFK Invites MacArthur to Lunch

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy, mixing work with relaxation at his Cape Cod summer home, Saturday invited General of the Army Douglas MacArthur to the White House Thursday for a conference on the Philippines—and possibly military matters.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said the President invited General MacArthur to luncheon for a report on the general's trip to the Philippines.

Chicago Rejects Racial Proposal

CHICAGO (UPI)—Chicago police officials and integration leaders joined Saturday in rejecting a congressman's proposal of federal intervention in the city's racial tension.

Fifteen to 20 persons have been injured in the past two days in a southwest side neighborhood where a Negro boy was shot to death earlier last week. Ten persons, most of them Negro teen-agers, were in police custody Saturday night.

could go to the Kremlin on whole family packs up and takes off.

4—The Chicago Sun-Times said that President Kennedy has reached a firm decision to mobilize some elements of the armed reserves to meet the Soviet threat to West Berlin. The newspaper said key members of Congress have been advised of the decision. Final determination of how many men will be mobilized has been deferred until Kennedy receives a detailed Pentagon review this week, the Sun-Times said.

5—In London, the Sunday Times reported signs that a new, anti-Communist uprising is brewing in East Germany. A dispatch from a Bonn correspondent said East German refugees arriving in Berlin had indicated that underground workers are plotting a popular uprising along the lines of the June 1953 revolt.

In Berlin there were other reports, still unconfirmed, that Communist police are stepping up their spot checks on trains that may be carrying refugees. This is the peak travel season in East Germany. Since school closed a week ago, it no longer excites much suspicion in an East German town when a outside observers. It apparently has proved frustrating to Bowles.

Bowles Seen on Way Out Over Policy

The former Connecticut governor, who scored high as ambassador to India under President Truman, was one of those considered by Kennedy for the secretaryship which finally went to Rusk. But unlike some less-known past undersecretaries, he apparently has been given limited departmental authority.

Despite his background of congressional service, his appearances on Capitol Hill have been limited, and he has held no public news conferences.

MANY OF BOWLES' friends think he is being made the administration "whipping boy" for things that have not clicked at the State Department. This is one reason, aside from Kennedy's personal feeling toward Bowles, that any shift in his assignment would be handled "diplomatically."

Harriman, who will be 70 next November, has filled the moving ambassadorship in the first months of the new administration. But in recent weeks he has been tied down at the dragging Geneva conference on Laos, and the White House has given no evidence of having other plans for him. As a former ambassador to Moscow, Harriman's preference is understood to be work on the problem of Soviet relations.

The possibility of Bundy's move to the State Department is related in some speculation to Kennedy's recent selection of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, retired Army chief of staff, as his top military adviser. Taylor's role, it was said, may overlap Bundy's present national security responsibility.

appointed by Eisenhower in June of 1959. His current term would have expired in June, 1964.

No note was found immediately. Stueck's home is in a fashionable section of northwest Washington.

IN MAY, 1960, he was quizzed by a House legislative oversight subcommittee on reported meetings with industry lawyers and officials at the congressional group investigated alleged influence peddling.

Stueck told the committee his prominent Republican and Democratic friends didn't try to influence him.

He agreed that he frequently met with representatives of gas companies with which the FPC deals, as well as prominent political figures. But he said these meetings were social or casual and did not bear on commission business.

STUECK left his law practice in St. Louis in 1941 to take a position as executive assistant to Gov. Forrest C. Donnell. He entered the Army in 1943 as an enlisted man. He held a major's commission in the army reserve.

After his discharge from the service in 1946 he became manager and later vice president in charge of operations of the Transit Casualty Co. in St. Louis. In 1950 he returned to his law practice until his appointment to the FPC.

2,000 Cheer Gagarin in London Farewell

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet spaceman Yuri Gagarin returned to Moscow Saturday from London where he received a tumultuous welcome five days ago and an even more tumultuous sendoff Saturday morning.

Asked at the airport here what he liked most about his five-day visit to Britain, the air force major replied: "The people."

For Gagarin, it was a return to earth after a hectic round of life in London which included a luncheon with Queen Elizabeth, a visit with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, a televised press conference and a daily battle with the massive crowds that cheered him wherever he went.

TODAY'S sendoff was typical of the reaction of normally reserved Britons to the short, smiling cosmonaut.

A screaming mob of 2,000 Londoners blocked the driveway of the Soviet Embassy and broke through police barriers to try to touch the first man into space.

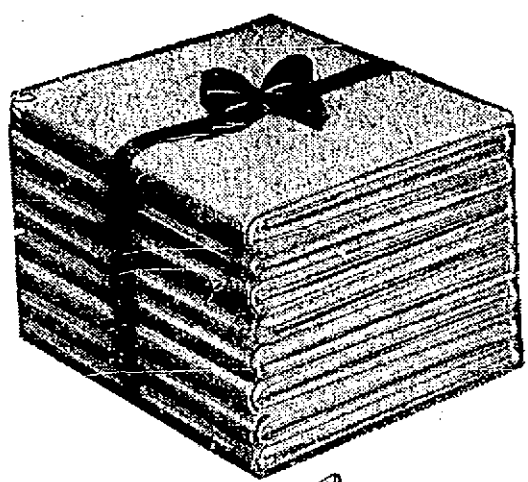

It took Gagarin nine minutes to cover the first six feet of his trip to the airport. He inched his way through the cheering mob to the official car for four minutes and the motorcycle escort worked for five minutes more to reach the embassy gates two yards away.

STREET TRAFFIC halted as enthusiastic men, women and children spotted the spaceman in his limousine and ran alongside for a better glimpse.

Long Beach Department Stores Announce Management Changes

Top management changes took place Saturday in two Long Beach department stores, Broadway - Long Beach and the Downtown J. C. Penney store.

Jack Hewitt became the new manager at the Broadway, succeeding Sydney Larkin, who was transferred to manage the big new Anaheim store for the company.

Warren D. Harper became manager of the Penney store, succeeding Vernon M. Fay, who was promoted to Southern California district manager over 46 Penney stores.

Harper, who has been with the Penney Co. 21 years, started his career in Oklahoma City. He came west in 1948 and has managed stores in Oakland, Bakersfield, Fontana, Culver City and was managing the Glendale store when transferred here.

Hewitt, for the past three years with Bullock's, had been with Weinstock Lubin, a Broadway affiliate in Sacramento five years previously. Larkin came to the Broadway store in Los Altos Center June 1, 1959 and under his direction the big store has shown consistent gains in sales, reaching a new high in business so far this year.

MANAGEMENT CHANGES at two Long Beach department stores were announced Saturday. Warren Harper, in photo at left, was promoted to manager of the Downtown J. C. Penney Store. Jack Hewitt, extreme right, was named manager of the Broadway-Long Beach store. He is shown with Sydney Larkin, previous manager who takes charge of the company's new store in Anaheim.

Service will be Tuesday, 10 a.m., at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, with Holton & Son Mortuary in charge.

Post Office in Drive for Fast Service

Long Beach is one of 300 cities across the nation in which the Post Office Department will launch a drive this week to provide faster and more efficient postal service.

George J. McMillin, Long Beach postmaster, said Saturday there will be a kickoff luncheon Wednesday to which the 100 largest bulk mailers here have been issued invitations. Plans are to form a citizens' advisory committee, which will help the local post office devise means of distributing mailing of bulk mail throughout the day.

National officials said spreading of some of the heavy load over the entire working day may make it possible to reduce the need for temporary help.

They said that if the peak load can be reduced sharply it may speed mail delivery by 24 hours or more.

McMillin attended a conference in Washington, D. C., late in May at which preliminary plans were formulated.

Entertainers on Tap for Shrine Event

Kuchel Attacks Rumors of Shift on Red China

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, (R-Calif.), said Saturday an effort will be made to have Congress reaffirm its opposition to admission of Communist China to the United Nations.

In a filmed program for California television stations, Kuchel said there are "disturbing and disquieting rumors" that the Kennedy administration will change this country's position on Red China as soon as Congress adjourns.

"Red China," Kuchel asserted, "is bitterly hostile to the United States and to free peoples everywhere. She assaulted Korea. She menaces Taiwan. She raped Tibet."

THE RACE started from San Diego last Saturday. The winner is decided after the flying time required has been computed, considering the aircraft's capability. Seventy-eight of the original 97 planes finished. Two other California pilots were in top places at the end of the race. Irene Levertov, of North Hollywood, finished third. Her Morrissey 2150 aircraft was copiloted by Teckle Kaufman, of Pacific Palisades. Last year's winning team, Irene Saunders of El Cajon and June Douglas of West Palm Beach, Fla., were in second place.

TEAMS WITH members from the Long Beach area include Evelyn Kelly, Long Beach, and Marian Burke, of San Antonio, Tex.; Jean Rose, Gardena, and Elba Dades, El Segundo; Dorothy Russell, Costa Mesa, and Laura Conner Meridan, Idaho; Kathleen Braitwaite, El Segundo, and Aileen Pickering, Los Angeles; Ruth Nitzgen, Palos Verdes, and Margaret Ross, Beach.

A dream started in 1950 has made Long Beach the international center of feminine beauty. The first Pageant was held in 1952 and was immediately established as the greatest and most publicized non-political event in the world. The 1961 Pageant—July 20-30—will easily surpass all previous events.

Foreign-Aid Bill Pushed by JFK

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief, I. P.-T. Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The administration is having a rough time of it with its foreign-aid bill, so rough in fact that President Kennedy has interested himself personally in the matter and is interviewing an almost endless stream of congressmen and senators in an attempt to wangle the necessary votes.

Word has gone out to the legislators that the President would be delighted to talk to them about foreign aid. As invitations to the White House don't come very frequently, most of the members of Congress are availing themselves of the opportunity. One of the main sources of friction on the foreign-aid bill is the plan to get a long-range authorization. This sort of thing has been a perennial point of conflict between the executive and the legislative branches of the government.

FOR OBVIOUS reasons, the executive finds it easier to make plans if it knows several years in advance how much money will be available. If, for instance, it knows now that numbers of dollars will be available this year and next year and the year after for the building of some dam, then the work can be planned and started in more orderly fashion.

Long-range authorizations also make it easier to deal with foreign governments which are understandably worried that while the money may be forthcoming this year, who can promise them that it will also be forthcoming next year? As matters now stand, the answer is no one. Thus other governments are constantly afraid the source of supply will dry up and they will be faced with some incompleting project and no way of completing it. The year-to-year basis on which foreign aid is operated makes things uncertain for both donor and donee, a situation which this administration, like others, is seeking to remedy.

HIGHWAY DESPOILER

In an apparent defiance of the highway warning sign against littering, the motorist tosses an empty beer can out of the window, adding to the others strewn over the grass. This picture was set up and taken by AP Photographer Robert A. Wands, illustrating the widespread despoilment of the nation's highways.—(AP photo.)

Drive on to De-Litter Roadsides of America

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ordinary beer can is only 4 1/2 inches long, and 2 3/4 inches in diameter. Empty, it weighs less than three ounces.

Yet it's become an enormous nuisance, thanks to people who throw cans by the thousands onto the roadsides of the country.

They've enraged farmers, angered and saddened beauty lovers and robbed the taxpayers.

But now comes the word that the appalling mess created by these people and other litterbugs — can tossers are just part of the tribe — is coming under attack in 1961 from a new quarter.

DASHING LIKE Hercules into the Augean stables is The Advertising Council, with plans for a two-year campaign.

The council, which has done effective public service work for higher education, the United Nations, mental health and infantile paralysis programs, will unite with the Keep America Beautiful organization, which has been working since 1953 for the eradication of litter.

The problem, despite all that has been done — and there has been much — has grown mountain high.

Every year the population is larger, the beckoning highway system longer, the work week shorter. The chances for outdoor recreation are better.

As a result, Keep America Beautiful summarizes:

1. In one year close to 800 Americans are killed and nearly 75,000 seriously injured as a result of cars striking or swerving to avoid litter on the highway.
2. More than $50 million must be spent each year to clean highways alone. Countless millions more go to clean up after thoughtless citizens who befoul beaches, streets, parks and the countryside itself.

There's a health menace, too. Litter creates breeding places for disease-carrying insects, rats and mice.

KEEP AMERICA Beautiful was founded primarily by leaders in the industries whose products contribute to litter — such as paper and box containers, wrappers, cans and bottles.

One suggestion that has been kicking around calls for making beer cans redeemable, like soft drink bottles. A cash value, say two cents, would be put on each can.

That idea looks strictly no good to E. W. Turner of the Virginia department of highways.

"If people are going to purchase a six-can pack of beer to drink as they are riding along, they certainly are not going to be worried about the 12 cents they could get for saving the cans," he said.

In California, one particularly messy location yielded 12 loads of bottles, cans and other trash in three days.

As far back as 1953 it cost Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming $228 a day to keep road edges reasonably clear of litter.

IN INDIANA, engineers calculated that five miles of modern dual lane highway could have been built with the money that went to clean up the state's roadsides in one year.

A few years ago, near Roma, Tex., a full truckload of beer cans was collected in ten days on one three-mile stretch of U.S. highway 83.

Incidentally, it was found in Texas that riders in air conditioned cars are more careful than most about litter. They don't like to open their car windows.

AS IS INEVITABLE in any situation which gets Americans stirred up, slogans have been coined. Such as:

"Don't be a Strewball," "Annie Doesn't Litter Any More," and "Don't be a Litter-Bugger, be a Litter-Bagger."

There's a horrid little insect leering out of posters, the litterbug. Ohio posters hopefully advise against being a "Scatterpillar." There's even a band tune, appropriate for cleanup parades, entitled "The Litterbug Rag."

One of the most helpful developments, which may be expanded on by the Advertising Council — Keep America Beautiful campaigners, is the litterbag.

This is a sort of inside-the-car wastebasket. You drop your travel trash into it and the next time you stop at a service station or picnic table, you can empty it.

More than 12 1/2 million litterbags are given away each year by business and service groups. There are more than 50 types on the market.

Yet there are still millions of drivers who just roll down the window and chuck the stuff out.

NOT MANY PEOPLE are arrested for littering the highways and fewer still are convicted.

Life of Gumshoe Like Movie

By GEORGE C. FLOWERS

sive threads of his light tan chair, his coat opened slightly to reveal a monogrammed tie and shirt. From the pleasant expression on his face, and the map of Ireland that rested on his shoulder, you could get the impression that William S. Lewis is a highly prosperous private detective.

Which, in fact, he is.

HE HAS POKED his somewhat ruddy nose into the affairs of a lot of people who wish they could flatten it.

For 38 years he has gumshoed around the boulevards and boudoirs of Hollywood. He considers himself somewhat lucky to be alive. Most of this luck, he believes, comes from a native ability to press his mouth into a firmly closed position and maintain that attitude for years at a time.

OCCASIONALLY he appears in the daylight and in public. This is because he often plays a real-life Paul Drake to real Perry Masons.

Consequently he was a witness in the Ma Duncan, Barbara Finch and Overell murder trials, just to mention a few. He will be a witness in the Spade Cooley case. He was the detective hired by Cooley to probe alleged infidelities of Ella Mae Cooley.

ONE OF THE FEW cases Bill Lewis will talk about is the Mickey Cohen affair. Bill believes that Cohen's 15-year prison sentence places the Los Angeles hoodlum in a position where any rebuttal would be impractical.

It was a $4.50 radio repair bill, Lewis recalls, that started what he thinks is the strangest story in California crime annals.

THE WITNESS is Bill Lewis, and here is the transcript:

"There was this fellow named Pearson, see, and he runs a radio shop on West Pico in a fashion that some business men consider highly unethical, among them me.

"And there was this little old lady named Mrs. Phillips who has a radio that she takes to this bum for fixing and she tells him she has only 50 cents and he says that's okay, lady, I fix it.

"SO WHEN she comes to get her radio the bill is now $4.50 and she hasn't got it so this Pearson goes to court and gets a judgment. This Mrs. Phillips is so old she don't know what's happening and when she doesn't pay this Pearson forecloses her house, which has to be worth a couple of grand.

"Now this Pearson has the gall to charge Mrs. Phillips $60 a month to live in her own house so she is quite disturbed and goes to the police.

"The story gets in the papers of course and Mickey Cohen reads about it and is highly incensed.

"HE SENDS seven of his boys out to West Pico and they picket the radio shop. They carry signs which read unfair and, all in all, it is one of the strangest things a bunch of hoodlums ever did.

"Pearson is disturbed no end about this and emerges from his shop and beats with his fists upon the pickets. He is naturally no match for them and winds up upon the sidewalk in a very sad condition.

"THE BOYS realize that what they have just done might come under the heading of a misdemeanor or a felony or a tort, so they get into a limousine and drive away.

"But as they drive off they do a U-turn that attracts the attention of a passing police car which makes with the chase.

"BY NOW the cars are proceeding very fast through a residential district, and strange things like tire irons, chains, blackjacks and picket signs are flying out the windows of the limousine.

"The cops win the chase which they usually do and line up the seven thugs on somebody's lawn for the purpose of frisking them.

A GUY with a $2 camera comes by and takes a picture which he speeds downtown to a newspaper and sells for $10. The editor recognizes the seven thugs and puts a report on the story.

"Well, sir, to everybody's surprise these seven men have not been arrested and in fact nobody on the police force seems to recall the incident although it just happened.

"THE FUR has hit the fan, however, and the seven boys are arrested along with their employer, Mickey Cohen, and brought to trial on several degrees of assault.

"One of the newspaper boys named it the case of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, which I believe is another story entirely.

"The boys got out on bail which for Mickey was $100,000 and for the others similar sums. I am working for the surety company which puts up this loot so naturally I now have a deep personal interest in this strange affair.

"TWO OF THE BOYS named Frank Nicolli and Dave Ogul disappear and I trace Ogul to Mexico City where I cannot reach him.

"The court finds that it is not illegal to heat up a radio man on West Pico and Snow White and the remaining five Dwarfs beat the rap. But there is that little matter of the missing hoods.

"Do you know that cost Mickey $25,000 in cash for Nicolli and the surety company foreclosed on Mickey's home for $50,000 for Ogul?

"And meanwhile Mickey had raised the $2,000 to pay off the widow Phillips home and restore it to her complete with radio?

"DURING this period the surety company is naturally highly nervous about Cohen's good health so they assign me the task of being his bodyguard until their bill is paid.

"I consider it a tribute to report that nobody took a shot at Cohen during all this time.

SAC Denies Blame for Chicago Sonic Boom

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—The Strategic Air Command (SAC) headed innocent Saturday to the sound of the sonic boom which shook Chicago's South Side Friday night. The big boom came at 11:25 P.M. CDT and rattled window panes from 70th Street to the Indiana state line.

Thousands of persons ran from their homes. An off-duty policeman was so excited he forgot to put on his pants before dashing into the street. More than 1,500 persons telephoned news-papers, fire-alarm offices and police stations asking what had blown up. SAC headquarters in Omaha said it had learned that the Air Defense Command, which has fighter craft at Bunker Hill AFB in Indiana, had one F106 Delta Dagger jet fighter flying faster than sound for about one minute about 112 miles south of Chicago. Information given to SAC said the F106 pilot reached Mach 1.4 at 10:34 p.m. EST, at a heading of 330 degrees at 41,000 feet. It was not certain, however, that this could have caused the loud blast heard in the Chicago area, SAC said. Other supersonic jet fighters are based at Trux Field in Michigan, SAC said, but it had no word on whether any of these planes was up. The 305th Bomb Wing at Bunker Hill reported it had no B58s in the air during the night. SAC said the 43d Bomb Wing at Carswell AFB had a B58 up, but it was flying in the Rapid City, S.D., corridor, too far away to have caused a blast heard in Chicago.

Artesian to Face Judge

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Walter Whatley, 29, Artesia, who was convicted of misdemeanor manslaughter in connection with the traffic deaths of four persons, must appear Aug. 4 for probation hearing. The Municipal Court jury that convicted him here found Whatley suffered an epileptic seizure while driving through Encinitas April 8. His car swerved into another causing the multiple deaths. Deputy Dist. Atty. Bruce Iredale said Whatley obtained a temporary driver's license under false pretenses by denying he suffered epileptic seizures. Killed in the accident were Anderson Cox Jr., 36, Los Angeles; Mrs. Mattie Lou Smith, 40, and Mrs. Catherine Bailey, 18, both of San Diego; and Arnold J. Handley, 40, Artesia. ## NAACP to Press Sit-Ins

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Saturday rededicated its total resources to an all-out drive to attain its goal—"an America of freedom, equality, justice and security for all its citizens."

In support of the drive delegates at the final working session of the organization's 52nd annual convention resolved to press sit-ins, wade-ins, ride-ins, squat-ins and freedom rides.

The convention pledged itself to employ "the tested instrument of democratic progress and reform, namely assembly, petition, demonstration, the ballot, courts of law, purchasing power and mobilized public opinion." It called for "freedom by 1963 not only through demonstrations but through living freedom, in all possible avenues of American life."

DELEGATES approved a resolution asserting the NAACP is convinced its objectives were attainable within the framework of the American constitutional system. It said that methods, tactics and strategy of the NAACP over the first half century "have sustained history's most effective and productive attack against entrenched racism."

Before the gavel banged ending the week-long sessions, the convention dealt with almost every phase of American life and its effect on the Negro.

On civil rights the convention called upon Congress and President Kennedy for legislation.

Imposing maximum punishment for lynching.

Giving the attorney general power to seek injunctions and other civil remedies for those denied rights under the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

Enacting a fair-employment practices law with adequate enforcement powers.

Anti-segregation amendments in all laws providing federal aid for schools, housing, hospitals, recreation and the aged.

JOINS BOARD

Evelett Houser, a practicing attorney in Long Beach since 1929, was sworn in Friday as a new member of the Board of Water Commissioners. A former member of the Economic Development Committee, Houser headed a subcommittee credited with improving city licensing, zoning and inspection procedures.

ing, hospitals, recreation and the aged.

Outlawing poll taxes.

Elimination of the Senate filibuster.

IN THE field of housing, the convention urged President Kennedy to "implement the Democratic platform and to fulfill his campaign promises by issuing an executive order prohibiting racial segregation and discrimination in federally assisted housing and to set up adequate machinery to enforce such an order."

Delegates reaffirmed the NAACP position that Negro children "have an immediate right to be educated on a desegregated basis and that this right should not be delayed. The education resolution opposed all school desegregation plans which subscribe to "gradualism."

Fashion Disaster in Kremlin! Gina, Liz Gowned Alike

MOSCOW (UPI)—Fashion disaster struck Saturday night at the Moscow Film Festival. Liz Taylor and Gina Lollobrigida turned up at a Kremlin reception in the same Christian Dior gown.

Even their hairdos were the same.

"Oh, how nice to see you," Gina said sweetly to Liz.

The two brunette beauties embraced each other while their eyes flashed fire. From time to time there was an exchange of dagger-like glances, but no fireworks.

The fashion disaster was but one chapter of a festival cocktail party that must go down in history as the most bizarre ever held in the grand palace of the Kremlin. Other events that had the cream of Soviet cultural officialdom staring:

Eddie Fisher, crooner husband of Miss Taylor, sang jazz that shook the ancient white and gold hall, the first American to sing there since Paul Robeson appeared there years ago.

Liz arrived at the reception an hour late, and in Moscow it is obligatory to be promptly on time, especially at the Kremlin.

One of the reception's stars failed to show up. Both Gina and Liz said they were dying to meet cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin, but he flew in from London about the time the reception was getting underway and did not appear.

Miss Lollobrigida stood with the other honored festival guests behind special tables in the area usually reserved for visiting presidents and prime ministers.

Gina was stunning in a white Dior short-laced cocktail dress with a boat neckline and a wide, bell-shaped skirt.

An hour later in sweet Elizabeth Taylor with Fisher at her elbow.

She was stunning in her new dress: a white Dior short-laced cocktail dress with a boat neckline and a wide, bell-shaped skirt.

Someone asked Gina what she thought of the double Dior dress. She smiled and said, "Oh, it's very nice."

Then both girls scurried home to change.

BEACH COMING

With MALCOLM EPLEY

DO PEOPLE of other countries really despise Americans?

From what little foreign traveling I've done, and from my conversations with those who have done a great deal more than I have, I'm convinced that the extent of anti-American feeling has been exaggerated in reports given U. S. people.

The ugly American, I suspect, isn't as ugly as some are claiming.

An experience of a Long Beach woman, Mrs. Opal C. Simpson, a school teacher, lends some solid support to this contention.

HAVING spent several years in Europe and having been to South America recently, Mrs. Simpson had never detected the anti-American feeling she kept hearing about at home.

So she was much interested in a feature which appeared recently in Parade Magazine, a Sunday supplement of this paper, on the subject of what Africans think of us.

This piece showed pictures of seven Africans with quotations of their opinions about Americans. It happens that six of the seven made remarks that were friendly, or at least admiring, about the USA.

To one man, Sheikh Omar Abdullah, school principal at Zanzibar, was attributed an uncomplimentary quotation, as follows:

"Americans are always busy, always in a hurry—no time for anyone, no time to talk or listen. Americans seem to know and care very little about the rest of the world. They are interested only in themselves."

WELL, this quotation aroused Mrs. Simpson, who felt the fellow in Zanzibar was mistaken. Being in the same line of work, she took pen in hand and wrote him a letter, telling him so. She made a sincere statement as to her impression of the feeling of Americans toward other peoples.

She must have made a pretty good case of it, for Omar Abdullah promptly replied with a flat denial of the attributed remarks. He said he was mystified that he was so quoted, and hereafter would suspend judgment of what he reads in papers.

He went on:

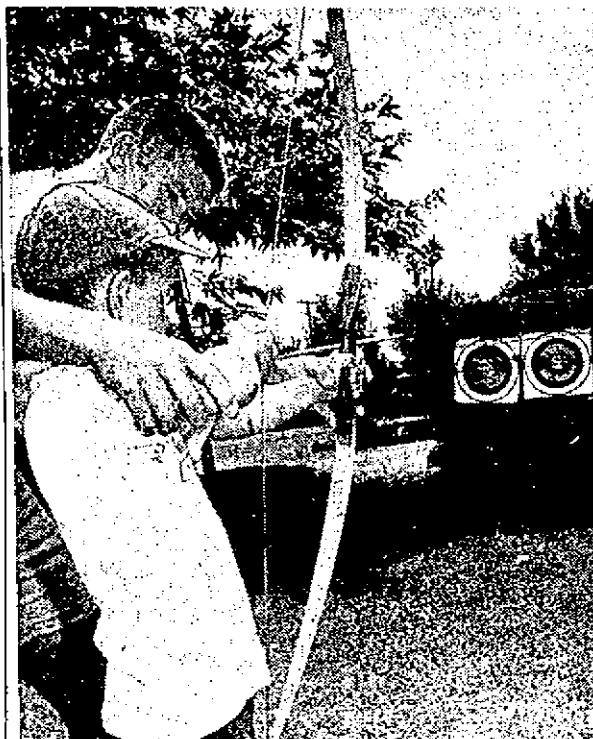

"You need not be sorry, because I have not formed such an erroneous opinion of Americans (as the newspaper quoted me as having). I know America and Americans too well to do so. Only last summer I was in California. An officer of the State Dept. came to receive me at the airport. A pleasant gentleman took me around your beautiful city and then left me with Mr. Abdul Sultan of the Pakistan consulate. I was on my way back to Zanzibar via Fiji, Australia, Indonesia, Singapore, Malay, Ceylon, Bombay and Aden. I mentioned American hospitality everywhere I went.

"This was not my first visit. I toured around many states in 1953 and I was overwhelmed with your generosity. I still have a suit of clothes presented to me by Dr. Charles Johnson.

"My impression is that Americans do care about other people of the world. If you are to be criticized at all, I would say, 'You take too much interest in other people'—which is a good fault!"

THE contrast in the personal letter and the Parade quote is as mystifying to me as it is to Mrs. Simpson. The magazine is edited in New York, and a copy of this column will be forwarded in the hope of getting some comment from the lady photo-journalist who authored the Parade feature. Meanwhile, we've got a signed statement from Sheikh Abdullah that he thinks we're o. k.

Rancho-Y-Kiddo Making Hit With Tots

TAKING TIME out for lunch at Camp Rancho-Y-Kiddo are Marc Smith (left), 6, and John Oury, also 6. If you are 9, you're old for this camp.

Summertime Events Provide Daily Activity for Youngsters Weekly

There's a camping program in the city which excludes youngsters of the ripe old age of nine on the grounds that they are too old.

It's understandable, though. For this particular day camp—Rancho-Y-Kiddo—is designed solely to accommodate boys and girls 6, 7 and 8 years old.

THE BOOMING day camp is run by the Long Beach YMCA with an assist from the North Long Beach Lions Club. It occupies an acre-and-a-half of ground immediately south of the North Long Beach Y.

The 10-week summer camp program currently is in full swing.

Over a thousand shrubs and trees dot the grounds which are enclosed by a chain-link fence. Day camp hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

A VETERAN staff of professional youth leaders, both men and women, are in charge at the camp.

Sixty youngsters attend each weekly period. They take part in a comprehensive program which includes group games and activities, archery, nature study, a story-telling hour, chapel and swimming instruction in a large outdoor pool, which is separated from the camp grounds by a stout fence.

Boys and girls bring sack lunches. The YMCA furnishes milk for the noonday meal.

Slate Fare, Bus Route Hearing for Wednesday

Company Requesting Rate Hike

By GEORGE WEEKS

A two-fold hearing on proposed bus rate increases and route changes will open at 10 a.m. Wednesday in Veterans Memorial Building, Broadway and Cedar Avenue.

Testimony is scheduled to continue for three days before the State Public Utilities Commission on Long Beach Motor Bus Company's application for higher fares and a city petition to revise two routes.

The company is seeking a 25-cent basic cash fare, a 5-cent raise. It also is asking these additional raises: Token prices, from 3 for 50 cents to 5 for $1; additional fare for each extra zone, from 5 to 7 cents; school tickets, from 12 rides for $1 to 20 rides for $2.40.

DOCUMENTS FILED with PUC by company officials report a net loss of $10,163 during the first five months after schedule and route curtailments were placed in effect last Oct. 30.

At hearings last September PUC staff engineers, apparently underestimating the resentment of riders against service cuts, had predicted an annual profit of $96,076. City transit spokesmen will take a hand in the fare case. The degree of their opposition will depend on the testimony as it develops. The most recent fare increase was in June 1958.

On the proposed route changes the city faces opposition from both the company and the commission staff.

Chief Engineer Henry E. Jordan of the Bureau of Franchises said he will make a plea for rerouting of buses away from the narrow and unstable stretch of Ximeno Avenue between Broadway and Fourth Street.

THE BUREAU'S proposal, approved after repeated complaints from Ximeno property owners, is to have Broadway buses turn north and Fourth Street buses turn south on a business street, Redondo Avenue.

Global Trade Show Here Ends Tonight

Long Beach's first International Trade Show, drawing crowds to the Municipal Auditorium to see exotic and modern exhibits and entertainment from foreign countries and America, will have its big day today and will finish its three-day run at 11 tonight.

The interesting exhibits of products and crafts from around the world and from the United States, together with the twice-daily entertainment shows at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m., have brought a steady stream of spectators from the Long Beach area. The show itself is open from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Today at the afternoon entertainment time there will be a special fashion show where "fashions from Israel"—smartly styled knitwear of a new kind from the Jordan River Country in the Near East—will be shown. It will be offered by Aled Originals, Ltd., of Los Angeles and New York, with Lee and Eddie Katz of Los Angeles, the Southland distributors, staging the show.

AFL-CIO State Meet Here in '62

Announcement of five new conventions to be held here and a major push to bring more major conventions and trade shows to Long Beach was made Saturday by the Long Beach Convention Bureau.

Howard Jones, Convention Bureau manager, said latest to state conventions here are:

State AFL-CIO, Aug. 19-24, 1962, 2500 delegates.

California State Square Dance Association, May 31-June 1, 1963, 10,000 persons.

National Phi Beta Psi, July 8-11, 1963, 300 delegates.

Pacific Coast Electrical Inspectors Association, Sept. 18-21, 300 persons.

THREE OF THE above groups are booked tentatively to hold their sessions in the new auditorium and exhibit hall slated for completion July 1, 1962.

Plans for an intensive program in the East to bring more convention and trade shows here were approved by Convention Bureau officials headed by President Robert McNulty.

"Long Beach will soon have one of America's finest auditorium facilities as a result of the combination of the existing auditorium and the new arena now under construction," said McNulty.

"We find ourselves in a most competitive program to attract the lucrative convention and trade-show market and the Convention Bureau is planning an intensified effort to reach these customers by direct mail, personal contact and other means."

IN THE FISCAL year ending June 30, Long Beach was convention site for 81,732 persons attending more than 130 gatherings.

Police Hunt Walker's Safecracking Bandits

Police Saturday were seeking two burglars who got more than $5,000 from the safe at Walker's Department Store at 4th Street and Pine Avenue after tying up the janitor.

The janitor, Elden Morris Jr., 34, told police he was accosted on the building's fourth floor by a gunman wearing a handkerchief over his face.

Morris was pushed into the cashier's office where he found the safe door open and the gunman's partner stuffing moneybags into three suitcases.

The janitor was tied to a chair while the men ransacked the safe. The gunman then took Morris in the elevator to the basement, where they tied his hands to a metal bar on the ceiling of the elevator car.

Morris freed himself by untying his bonds with his teeth. He ran to an exit and called for help from passers-by.

Morris told officers the burglars were equipped with such safecracking equipment as pry-bars, acetylene torches and sledge hammers.

Seize Fullerton Man in Depot Robbery

The American National Red Cross is offering another first aid course in the boys' physical education classroom at Hughes Junior High School, 3846 California Avenue. Periods will be from 7:30 to 9:30 Wednesday evening beginning July 26 ending Aug. 30.

2 L.B. Area Residents Die in Smashups

Two Long Beach-area residents were killed in out-of-state traffic accidents early this weekend.

Georgeanna Schroeder, 26, of 1502 Loma Dr., Apt. 8, Hermosa Beach, died in Kaiser Hospital at Honolulu Saturday. Miss Schroeder, a Long Beach schoolteacher, was thrown from an auto when it collided with another car in the Waikiki Beach area. Miss Schroeder had arrived in Honolulu Thursday for two weeks' vacation.

Matt Skulich, 27, of 15617 S. Normandie Ave., Gardena, was killed in a head-on car-truck collision on the Seattle-Tacoma highway south of Seattle Friday night. His wife was unhurt. His passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Rosenthal of El Monte, suffered serious back and chest injuries.

Teen-Ager Snatches Purse From Woman

A 75-year-old woman lost $13 to a teen-aged purse snatcher, police reported Saturday.

The victim, Mrs. Minnie V. Wright, 1218 E. 1st Street, said the thief, a boy 15 or 16, grabbed her purse from her arm at the corner of Florida Street and Orange Avenue.

With Sandeman the Department Was Way of Life

IF ANY MAN EVER looked the part he played, Long Beach Fire Chief Frank S. Sandeman did. He was a tall, lean, rugged man who had nerve and liked action. But the great thing is that the fire department was not a role with him but a way of life. He not only looked like a real fireman, but he was one, and the best. His death this week of a heart attack takes from the community a devoted public servant. There is more than rhetoric in the comment by City Manager John Mansell: "No man was ever more dedicated to his city, his department, or his men."

CHIEF SANDEMAN HAD A fierce pride in his profession and in his department. He was a determined, positive man who fought hard for the things he thought were right, and just as hard against the things he thought were wrong. When fireworks manufacturers recently sought city approval of so-called "safe and sane" fireworks, he appeared personally before the Council and fought the proposal. He didn't see anything either safe or sane about putting fuses, matches, and inflammable powder into the hands of children. The city rejected the fireworks proposal in an action which could well influence the legislature to tighten up the statewide laws. There's no way of knowing how many lives and how much property will be saved as the result of Sandeman's staunch fight.

HE THOUGHT CONSTANTLY about ways to improve his department and fire-fighting methods in general. However, he placed great emphasis on safety and prevention. You didn't have to fight the fire you prevented. The efficiency and effectiveness of his programs are reflected by the high rating the Long Beach Fire Department receives from the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and by the low fire insurance rates enjoyed in this city.

CHIEF SANDEMAN WAS a modern thinker. He recognized the air age and did what he could do to cope with its fire problem. What can be done, for example, to reduce the chances of fire when a plane with wheel trouble comes in for a crash landing? And if fire does start, how can immediate protection be assured? The need for attention to such matters was dramatized this week by the burning of a jet plane following a crash-landing at Denver.

He advocated wider use of a system of fire hydrants at surface level near runways for use in emergencies. And he made an interesting suggestion which opens a whole field of speculation. Why not create an emergency runway with a covering of watery foliage, such as ice plant, to reduce the heat produced by friction between the plane and the hard layer underneath? That may or may not be the answer. The important thing is that the Chief was thinking about it and striving, even in the last days of his own life, to save the lives of others.

East Berlin Revolt Seen as Possibility

By WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE and WILLIAM BROOM

WASHINGTON—The Capital hears there's a real possibility of a people's revolt against the Soviet puppet government in East Berlin. This would add a frightening new dimension to the already critical situation in the divided city, and create a tremendous new problem for the United States. There would be heavy pressure from some quarters for the U. S. to help the uprising if it occurred. Yet just such an action might provide a big enough spark to the Berlin tinderbox to set off a nuclear war. Officials hope they won't have to face the dilemma.

The citizens of East Berlin are hungry, downtrodden and, as is well known, have been defecting in great numbers to West Berlin. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., who visited there last weekend, brought back word that thousands of workers in the eastern, Soviet sector, belong to free trade unions in the western sector. This makes for a two-way pipeline that provides information as to doings in East Berlin and intensifies the annoyance of workers there who are treated far less well than their counterparts in West Berlin.

IT'S SAID that Jackie Kennedy is finally beginning to enjoy her job as First Lady. In the beginning she was, according to intimates, rather afraid that she couldn't contribute anything to her husband's execution of his job other than look pretty. The recent European tour on which she was the hit of the show did much to give her confidence that she too could play a role. Now she's full of all kinds of ideas, not the least of which was using Mount Vernon as the setting for the Ayub Khan dinner.

THE VERY SOCIAL activities of the Kennedy administration have given the Capital's society reporters a new lease on life. The gal reporters love it and are constantly consulting with the wives of cabinet officers, White House staff members and other prominent Democrats. The other day a society reporter telephoned Mrs. Dean Rusk, wife of the Secretary of State, and asked the maid if she might speak with "one of Mrs. Rusk's social secretaries." As Rusk tells the story, the maid called Mrs. Rusk, who wiped her hands on her apron and went to the phone.

Russ Smile at Controversy They Helped Make Over CIA

WASHINGTON—The Soviet Union is looking forward to its biggest victory in the "cold war"—the possible disruption and disintegration of the Central Intelligence Agency here.

LAWRENCE

The Soviet apparatus has worked in many countries to try to break down the intelligence system of its adversaries, but, until recently, nowhere did it encounter such stern resistance to its intrigue as in the United States.

Today, however, Soviet agents look with satisfaction at the controversy they have helped to stir up in this country over the activities of the CIA. Long before the Cuban "invasion" episode focused attention on the CIA as a formidable opponent of Communist espionage, the effort has been under way to convince high officials of the American government that the CIA should be split apart or weakened in its operations.

It WAS NATURAL that the Cuban affair should afford a chance for an open attack on the CIA. The agitation to get rid of the agency, or at least to change its functions substantially so that it would be far less effective than it now is, was carried on in various ways. Finally, President Kennedy took action to get at the root of the controversy. He asked Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor—who, as a former Chief of Staff of the Army, knows the impact of intelligence work on military operations—to make a wide-ranging investigation into U. S. intelligence activities. A permanent presidential board, created in 1955 to check on the CIA and other agencies engaged in foreign intelligence, was reactivated. Dr. James R. Killian, Jr., of Massachusetts Institute of Technology—an able citizen, with an objective point of view on controversial matters, who served from 1956 to 1958 as the first head of the board in the Eisenhower administration was reappointed chairman. Summoned to dig into the subject, too, was the President's brother, Attorney General Robert Kennedy, who is as anti-Communist as anybody in public life.

WHAT DOES all the studying add up to? Certain changes need to be made to co-ordinate the relations of the CIA with other departments. The question of how secret operations of a quasi-military character shall be conducted is a ticklish one, but by no means unsolvable. The important issue is whether, when all the changes are put into effect, the morale of the CIA will be adversely affected or whether the institution will continue in the same spirit as before its relentless search for information about what the Communists are doing.

Reader Task Force Assigned Three-Week Interim Study

YOU MAY HAVE three weeks to turn in your papers as members of my special task force to provide some answers on a few political questions which I must desert during vacation.

Write your idea of the three top Democrats who might challenge Republican Craig Hosmer in the 1962 election for the Long Beach-Lakewood-Signal Hill congressional district, newly-numbered from the 18th to the 32nd.

Name three Democrats to challenge Republican Bill Grant in the State Assembly race for the new 39th Assembly District (being changed from the 70th).

Name three Republicans who might oppose Democrat Joe Kennick in the 44th Assembly District, which will keep its number.

NOW THAT Mrs. Ora Knudson, Democratic challenger to Grant in the 1960 Assembly race, has been appointed Lakewood postmaster, please write your speculations about what, if anything, will happen about the Long Beach postmastership, now the property of George J. McMillin, appointee of Craig Hosmer.

A hint: The Democratic County Central Committee members for our congressional district have recommended Councilman Virgil Sponberg for the job.

PLEASE BE AS objective as possible in giving your interpretations of two recent polls in the state.

The first poll showed that former Vice President Richard M. Nixon would beat Gov. Pat Brown 53 to 37 per cent if the governor vote were held now. Former Gov. Goodwin Knight would beat Brown 44-37. Former Sen. Bill Knowland would win over Brown 41-40.

The second poll, following the first by only a few weeks, shows Californians think themselves to be better off financially today than they were a year ago 40 per cent to 19 per cent, with 41 per cent saying "no change." This 40 per cent vote has risen from a 30 per cent figure in March 1961, a 19 per cent figure in June 1958.

Asked what they expected business conditions to be in 1962, 65 per cent said "better," 9 per cent said "worse," 16 per cent said "same" and 10 per cent had no opinion. This optimism rose 6 percentage points from March 1961.

Finally, a two-part question, one part each for liberals and conservatives. You may address your answer to either side, regardless of your own faith.

Part I—Gabriel Green, president of Amalgamated Flying Saucer Clubs of America, 1960 presidential candidate, will run for the U. S. Senate in the 1962 Democratic primary advocating: restoration of true free enterprise under a unique credit card economy that permits total distribution of the nation's production capacity; discontinuation of nuclear bomb tests; repeal of Landrum-Griffin and Taft-Hartley, full and equal rights for all citizens, congressional investigation of Pentagon secrecy on flying saucers, more senior citizen benefits including medical aid. Question: What-a-?!

Part II—The Independent American, out of a Louisiana post office box, appeals for restoration of the two-party system in a deadly blast against both Democrats and Republicans. Question: Does this add up to two, one or nothing?

Under the title, "America Needs a Conservative Party," Louisiana asks such self-test questions for liberal vs. conservative determination as: "Are you in favor of Big Federal Spending which is creating more inflation and which will soon cause taxes to be increased?"

Question: People are no damn good. Yes—; No—.

Three of Seven Anti-Teenager

EDITOR:
I feel you do the youth of our country a grave disservice when you pick UPI and AP news items from all over the country that play up crime among the teenagers.

Page A-3 of July 11 had large black headlines "TEEN-AGERS AMBUSH, KILL WEALTHY INSURANCE MAN," "TEEN-AGERS THROW BLINDING ACID IN EYES OF AIRMAN" and "4 TEEN-AGERS BOOKED IN FATAL SHOOTING OF GIRL." Only the latter took place in the Los Angeles area, one happened in Texas and one in Mass. Only seven articles appeared on this page and these were three of them!

Those who work with youth know that we can be proud of our younger generation. But I think it unfair that you should prejudice those who are not in contact with young people by constantly playing up the crimes of a very few mentally disturbed youths.

Let's have less tabloid type news in our local paper. MRS. PAUL GRANDLE 3857 Elm Ave.

Says Hosmer Poll Replies Inconsistent

Congressman Hosmer seems to have thrown caution to the winds when he sent the results of his questionnaire to the Secretary of State and the U. S. negotiator at Geneva. I trust these two gentlemen will analyze the responses with a greater degree of intelligence than did Mr. Hosmer.

Many of these questions involve matters of such importance that they cannot and should not be decided by the usually uninformed "man in the street" checking off yes and no answers on a questionnaire. Further, it is indeed naive to call any group of 8,000 "typical of the nation" in a population of 180,000,000. More noteworthy is the fact that only one-third of the constituents took the time to make any response.

The best of questionnaires are hazardous. Most are used for very limited purposes. Seldom do experts attempt too draw a conclusion and then only after repeated use and modification.

Mr. Hosmer's constituents are, to say the least, rather inconsistent. More than two-thirds "believe winning is going to take higher taxes and foregoing many desirable domestic programs to keep communism from taking over the world and want to get on with the job." Now this same group—74% want no withholding tax placed on corporate dividends or savings account interest; they are 2 to 1 against sending a man to the moon for $9 billion; they are 4 to 1 against boosting foreign aid by $535 million; they are 3 to 2 against a $250 million foreign aid contingency fund; they are 58% against federal aid to teachers. According to Mr. Hosmer these are "the people willing to work, sacrifice and fight if necessary to preserve the United States."

It seems quite evident these people are more concerned with the price tag than they are with preserving the peace or winning the cold war.

EDITOR:
Recently a good neighbor took me to the First Presbyterian Church and the minister explained very clearly what communism really is and how terrible to live and perhaps die under its dictatorship.

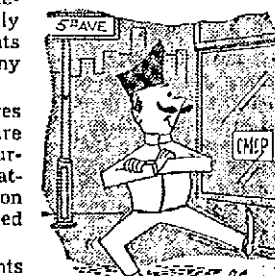

As I sat there someone seemed to say, "You can do something to help." Tell people.

Our ministers pray for God's help against this evil but prayers without works availeth nothing, and if everyone who reads the Public Forum would ask his minister or the leader in his church, be it Protestant, Catholic or Jewish, to preach on communism, we shall see a change.

Languages in the News

Among the surprises that awaited the Moiseyev dance group from Moscow during their latest excursion into the capitalistic world was a curious incident that took place in New York City. Members of the Russian troupe were overheard to express their astonishment at the large letters—MCP—written in many shop windows along Fifth Avenue.

The initials are especially puzzling to Russian eyes, inasmuch as the letters—CCCP—seen everywhere in the Soviet Union stand in the Russian alphabet for SSSR (Soyez Sovetskikh Sotsialisticheskikh Respublik—"The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics"). This is because the Russian "C" is our "S" and our "P" is the Russian "H". The "M" is the same in both languages and one of the dancers offered the suggestion that maybe the "M" had been substituted in honor of "Moiseyev."

But what did the cryptic initials really mean? Simply, "Chase Manhattan Credit Plan."

Car Costs More Than Gas, Tires

(EDITOR'S NOTE: How much do you know about what your car really costs you? One survey calculates it would cost $2.21 or more every day just to keep a car in your garage without driving it a mile.)

By BEN PHLEGAR

DETROIT (AP)—Do you know how much it costs you to own and operate a car?

For some people it may be their largest single expense. For many others it is second only to food and housing.

America's 60 million car owners spend more than $60 billion annually buying cars, paying taxes on them, buying the gas, parts and accessories it takes to run them and the insurance.

The American Automobile Association has put together some facts and figures to help figure just what that car costs you.

First of all there are two types of costs—running costs and fixed costs. The running costs vary with how many miles you drive and they include gas and oil, tires and maintenance. Fixed costs are fairly standard even if you leave your car in the garage for days at a time. They include insurance, licenses, taxes and depreciation.

TO DETERMINE your costs make your own test. The AAA suggest this easy method: Fill your gas tank until you can see gas in the filler neck. Record the mileage on your odometer—the mileage indicator portion of your speedometer.

Drive normally until the tank is nearly empty, then refill it to the same point as when you started. Divide the number of miles driven since the test started by the number of gallons required to refill the tank. The result is the number of miles-per-gallon you're getting.

Maintenance is another extremely variable area. If you buy a new car you can expect to get by the first year with a few grease jobs and a gallon of anti-freeze. As the car ages it will cost more to keep it in condition.

Tire costs again depend on your type of driving. A study by Runzheimer and Co., a Chicago research firm, shows the average cost-per-mile for tires on cars used almost exclusively for business is slightly over one-half cent.

INSURANCE IS a fixed cost since premiums rarely vary with the mileage you drive. Taxes paid regularly, such as property and use taxes, also are fixed annual costs. Licenses and registration fees also are fixed by the year.

Depreciation is the biggest single cost and the hardest to figure, especially for owners of new or recent model cars.

Technically depreciation is very simple—the difference between what your car cost and what you can see it for. But the value varies widely, depending on how you dispose of it.

The AAA says that obviously there is no pat formula for determining depreciation. But it suggests one method is to determine the cash outlay necessary to replace the car with a new one in the same price class with the same optional equipment.

FOLLOWING IS a breakdown of the national average

Variable Costs	Average Per Mile
Gas and Oil	2.62 cents
Maintenance	.79 cents
Tires	.49 cents
Total	3.90 cents
Fixed Costs Annually
Fire and Theft Insurance	$30.38
Property Damage and Liability ($25,000, $50,000)	109.76
License and Registration	22.40
Depreciation	646.00
Total	$808.54 (or $2.21 per day)

Thus, the company says, an ad Dial HE 2-959 now.

der, Bel Air four-door sedan: for an average motorist driving 10,000 miles a year, the variable costs figure to $390, the fixed costs to $808.54 and the total costs to $1,198.54, or 12 cents per mile.

Runzheimer says that for mileage in excess of 18,000 annually, an additional depreciation allowance of $14.50 per thousand should be added to the fixed costs. This would mean that a car driven twice as much as average, or 20,000 miles, would cost $1,617.54 a year or 8.1 cents a mile.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Clothespin Aid to Nosebleed

(Prepared in collaboration with George X. Trimble, M.D., medical education director, Memorial Hospital of Long Beach.)

By BEN ZINSER

One good first aid measure for persistent nosebleed, believe it or not, is to attach an ordinary, spring-controlled clothespin to the patient's nose.

The advice is that of Dr. Albert P. Seltzer in the doctor's magazine Consultant.

Place a piece of gauze on the nose and apply the clothespin over the gauze, he suggests. Leave pin in place for about 20 minutes.

The procedure works for nosebleeds not severe enough to warrant packing of the nose.

ARE YOU apt to faint when you donate blood?

Dr. David T. Graham of the University of Wisconsin studied 414 consecutive blood donors and came up with these findings, reported in the journal Circulation:

The younger a donor, the more likely he'll faint. The higher his pulse rate at time of donation, the more likely he'll faint.

And a donor who admits to anxiety is more than twice as likely to faint as the one who denies he's anxious.

Among the 414 studied, 15.2 per cent fainted.

GALLSTONES occasionally disappear of their own accord, comments the British Medical Journal.

Seven cases of spontaneous disappearance of gallstones have now been reported in medical literature, an editor of the journal discloses. Although recorded cases are few, such spontaneous disappearance probably is not unusual.

Gallstones are very common, the report continues. And about half of all cases display no symptoms. Surgery is required when stones became impacted in gall bladder passages or when the gall bladder becomes inflamed.

Evidence that gallstones can be dissolved by medical treatment is only theoretical, the journal says.

LONG-TIME EXPOSURE to snuff can result in cancer of the mouth or gums, report Drs. Jerome J. Landy and Harold J. White of the University of Arkansas Medical Center in Little Rock.

In the past 10 years the physicians have seen mouth cancer in 25 women who had been snuff-dippers for 20 to 50 years. Average age of the patients: 67.5 years.

The exact chemical nature of the cancer-causing ingredient in snuff is not yet known, the doctors say in the American Surgeon.

PUBLIC HEALTH officials think that eight cases of human infectious hepatitis in Florida can be traced to a group of infant chimpanzees imported from Liberia for medical research purposes.

Five of eight women lab workers assigned to play with the chimps developed hepatitis, a virus-caused liver inflammation. In addition, the project director and his assistant, both of whom had only casual contact with the animals, were afflicted. The eighth victim was a university student who visited the lab and handled the chimps.

Researchers say they ruled out water, milk, food and medical injections as a possible source of transmission of the disease.

EXCESSIVE CRYING by a baby may sometimes be caused by the persons about him, says Dr. J. J. Slavens, teacher of pediatrics at the University of Toronto. It may possibly be due to his parents' method of managing him, he says in the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

EINAR ERIKSSON

The Man With the Healing Hands

Forty years practice. Testimonials from highest authorities in Norway—An unusual gift for healing the blind, lame, arthritis, eczema, etc. — Free information, 10-2 Monday thru Friday. Limited time in U.S.A.

HE 5-1565 • 1583 ATLANTIC AVE., Long Beach, Calif.

"I have for years sought medical help in vain from specialists for a back condition of several years standing that gave me considerable pain and made it difficult for me to work. Mr. Eriksson did not try to diagnose my ailment. All he was interested in was to heal me and that he did. Spiritual healing may be somewhat unorthodox in this modern age, but, believe it or not, it sure works!"

Burt Carlson, Alhambra

"I had lost 99% vision on one eye and 65% on the other one. Specialists told me they could not find out my trouble or help my vision. It was at this time I went to see Einar Eriksson. After ten treatments my eyes began to get better and now I can see to read, drive a car or do anything anyone else can do. I know for a certainty Mr. Eriksson was the one who helped me regain my sight for I have not taken any shots, medicine or seen any doctor, nor do I wear any glasses."

R. W. Corhern, Long Beach

"Twenty-five years ago I developed a fungus which spread over my hands and feet. I sought help at the Veterans Hospital in Long Beach, but nothing could be done to arrest it. The nails on fingers and toes were rotting away, and blood could be squeezed out of my finger tips. My wife said, 'You have tried everybody except Einar Eriksson, now try him.' I did. It took a few months, but he did cure me, and I stayed cured. Today my hands and feet are perfect!"

Stamps With Recipes Add High Interest to Contest

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

I, P.T. Food Editor

WHICH IS WHICH? One could ask—"which are the most interesting, the recipes which are being sent in for the 7th Annual Cook Book contest, or the stamps which bring them to us?" Quite naturally, we'd say the recipes—but the stamps are REALLY something! Each tells its own story. They range from the battle at "Fort Sumter" to "Boy Scouts of America," the "Winter Olympics," "World Refugees," "Range Conservation," and the "Kansas Statehood" stamp, graced by a huge sunflower, to mention but a few.

Today, however, we're interested in reminding you that the deadline is nearing, so hurry and get your recipes in the mail. You have just one more week—they must be postmarked by midnight of July 23.

THERE ARE a few classifications in which YOU might top 'em all. For instance... there's "Ways with Eggs"—suggestions for "quantity cooking"—"Dietetic Dishes"—"Game Cookery," "Leftovers" and of course "Flaming Foods"—such as elegant chafing dish recipes, desserts flambe, and cakes and puddings, all "lit-up" with brandy. Why not whip-up your own imagination and send in a good one? Flaming foods speak true hospitality, you know!

There are two wonderful grand prizes—$100 worth of bakery goods from Helms Bakeries Co., delivered by your Helms man, and a deluxe Gaffers & Saffier automatic gas or electric range. There are three cash prizes in each category, as well.

Members of 36 local women's and two men's clubs will do the preliminary judging. After they select the best recipes submitted in the 38 classifications, the clubs will then send their choices to a committee of five graduate home economists who will select the winner and the second and third place recipes in each.

ALL RECIPES must be mailed to Mildred Flanary, Cook Book Contest Editor, Independent Press-Telegram, Long Beach 12, Calif.

Entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, July 23. Hundreds of the outstanding recipes will appear in a special cookbook supplement to The Sunday Independent Press-Telegram which will be published Sept. 3.

Under the contest rules all persons participating must use only one side of the paper to type, print or write legibly their recipes.

They must designate in which classification they are entering each recipe.

All ingredients must be listed completely with accurate measurements.

They must include their name, address and telephone number on each recipe.

NAMES OF the persons submitting the recipes will be published with the recipes and none of the entries will be returned, all becoming the property of The Independent Press-Telegram when submitted. In case the same recipe is submitted by more than one person, the one bearing the earliest postmark will be the only one considered.

In the judging, simplicity will count. Availability of ingredients against difficulty of purchasing some ingredients will be another factor. Other points the judges will consider include: length of preparation, cost, involvement in preparation, uniqueness.

HERE ARE the classifications which may be entered:

1. Appetizers, canapés, hors d'oeuvres.
2. Barbecue dishes.
3. Beverages (hot or cold).
4. Cakes.
5. Candy & nuts.
6. Casseroles (main dishes).
7. Cereal dishes.
8. Cookies.
9. Cold dishes.
10. Dishes for men only.
11. Dishes made with wine or beer.
12. Eggs (fried, scrambled, etc.).
13. Fish & seafoods.
14. Flaming dishes.
15. Games.
16. Game cookery.
17. Hot beverages (not yeast) coffee, cakes, muffins.
18. Ice cream, ices, sherbets.
19. Jams, dessert sauces, fillings.
20. Jams & jellies.
21. Leftovers.
22. Marriages, meal sauces, gravies, stuffings.
23. Meat.
24. Pies.
25. Potato dishes.
26. Quantity recipes.
27. Refrigerator dinners & puddings.
28. Relishes & salads.
29. Rice, spaghetti, macaroni, noodles.
30. Salad dressings.
31. Sandwiches.
32. Soups.

STAMP OF APPROVAL

Jan Van de Water is putting her stamp of approval on a few of the stamps in Uncle Sam's "collection." The stamps were affixed to the envelopes containing the hundreds of recipes being sent in by readers for the I, P.T. Seventh Annual Cook Book contest.

33. Vegetables.
34. Walnuts, Hot Cakes, Fritters.
35. Yeast breads.
36. Yorkshire puddings, scones, bread, dumplings.

Neck Bothers Kenton's Wife

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—She's a jazz singer. Mother of two. Her husband is a top band leader. Her mother is vice principal of a junior high school.

And bare bodomed pictures of her were featured in a girlie magazine. So what happened? "I was ready to kill myself a candidate for the gas oven," says Ann Richards, 25,

Bob Preston Will Stick to Rye, N.Y.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Robert Preston, "the music man," is riding Hollywood again—but he doesn't intend to move back here. "My home is in Rye, N.Y.," says Preston. "I'm the only actor in town. Everybody knows me and I know everybody."

"It's not sour grapes—or anything else. I just like Rye, that's all." Preston had a successful career in Hollywood, then he started getting offers to do only villain parts. That's when he moved east, and eventually into Broadway fame in the hit musical.

"I'm different from most of the newer movie actors. I have no desire to become a producer or a director. I only want to act—and act often. "I couldn't tell you how much money I make. I don't think artists should be businessmen. I go crazy while I'm idle."

"If I live in New York I can work offstage—in plays, TV. When a good movie offer comes, I can get out here fast. No one is in that much of a hurry."

Rhodesia Prepares for Election Riots
SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP)—Government troops, air force men and police begin anti-riot tests today, a week before a scheduled referendum on a new constitution for Southern Rhodesia.

The black majority is strongly opposed to the constitution and racial violence is feared.

Miss Richards said she complained to the publisher, and he told her she should be happy. It would help sell her record albums. Sure enough. She has a report that men who don't even own record players have bought her albums.

Would she pose again, say, for the photographer who accompanied the interviewing reporter? Delighted, said she. Whereupon, switching to skimpy garb barely (pardon the word) less revealing than that in the magazine, she smilingly arranged herself in a variety of provocative poses.

Yes, Bill Beedle from O'Fallon, Ill., has it made on a couple of continents and is now trying it on a third. Sitting in the Apollonia Hotel here one recent rainy afternoon, he spoke of his longing to return to Africa where he has an interest in the Mount Kenya Safari Club in Nanyuki, Kenya, East Africa.

"It's like a disease with me. I keep wanting to go back," he said. "Africa's your Palm Springs," I suggested. "Not mine—YOURS!" he exclaimed, for as practically everybody knows, he's given up the California scene to live in Switzerland.

"No, it's not a place where you want to stretch out and rest," Holden said. "Africa's terribly primitive. It's still a country of violence. It's like our west was 100 years ago. Our west was still pretty rough in 1861. It had to grow up."

HOLDEN WILL soon be taking his sons, 14 and 17, and his wife, the former star Brenda Marshall, on another safari. All this seemed far removed from the business at hand—finishing a picture here among the Swedes. "The Counterfeit," and starting another one in London with France Nuyen. And a quick hop home to Switzerland for the weekend. "I've got calls to make to London, Hollywood and Zurich. I wish I had my phone bills!" he said.

IT'S A DELIGHTFUL merry-go-round for the former Air Corps lieutenant who occasionally takes off for Hong Kong where he owns a third of a radio station. It's especially delightful since he's added Africa to the regular itinerary. "Africa is fascinating and it's fabulous!" he said.

Pretty fabulous, too, is Eric Erickson, the former Brooklyn kid and Cornell athlete whom Bill portrays in "The Counterfeit." Now 71 but looking 60, Erickson is a hero here in Sweden because he posed as a Nazi sympathizer and spied for the Allies in World War II.

ERICKSON TRIED to teach aquavit-drinking and other Swedish arts to Holden during the picture-shooting here. "The bum should play me," Holden said, affectionately. Holden expects to live in Switzerland indefinitely, at Lausanne, where Norman Kraana, Jack Palance, Charlie Chaplin, Noel Coward and others have homes. "My home is Switzerland and would be with or without

Bill Holden Is Mr. Nice Guy

By EARL WILSON

STOCKHOLM — Still lean and handsome and only 43, Bill Holden, a self-made millionaire, today is "Mr. Nice Guy" of the movies—a chauffeur-driven Chrysler Imperial takes him to the set but he rides in front beside the driver.

It's unusual to find such a Successful Star so free of temperament and foibles — you just can't locate anybody who'll bum-rap Bill.

Yes, Bill Beedle from O'Fallon, Ill., has it made on a couple of continents and is now trying it on a third. Sitting in the Apollonia Hotel here one recent rainy afternoon, he spoke of his longing to return to Africa where he has an interest in the Mount Kenya Safari Club in Nanyuki, Kenya, East Africa.

"It's like a disease with me. I keep wanting to go back," he said. "Africa's your Palm Springs," I suggested. "Not mine—YOURS!" he exclaimed, for as practically everybody knows, he's given up the California scene to live in Switzerland.

"No, it's not a place where you want to stretch out and rest," Holden said. "Africa's terribly primitive. It's still a country of violence. It's like our west was 100 years ago. Our west was still pretty rough in 1861. It had to grow up."

HOLDEN WILL soon be taking his sons, 14 and 17, and his wife, the former star Brenda Marshall, on another safari. All this seemed far removed from the business at hand—finishing a picture here among the Swedes. "The Counterfeit," and starting another one in London with France Nuyen. And a quick hop home to Switzerland for the weekend. "I've got calls to make to London, Hollywood and Zurich. I wish I had my phone bills!" he said.

IT'S A DELIGHTFUL merry-go-round for the former Air Corps lieutenant who occasionally takes off for Hong Kong where he owns a third of a radio station. It's especially delightful since he's added Africa to the regular itinerary. "Africa is fascinating and it's fabulous!" he said.

Pretty fabulous, too, is Eric Erickson, the former Brooklyn kid and Cornell athlete whom Bill portrays in "The Counterfeit." Now 71 but looking 60, Erickson is a hero here in Sweden because he posed as a Nazi sympathizer and spied for the Allies in World War II.

ERICKSON TRIED to teach aquavit-drinking and other Swedish arts to Holden during the picture-shooting here. "The bum should play me," Holden said, affectionately. Holden expects to live in Switzerland indefinitely, at Lausanne, where Norman Kraana, Jack Palance, Charlie Chaplin, Noel Coward and others have homes. "My home is Switzerland and would be with or without

MARRIAGE-GO-ROUND

Triangle Play Delights Crowd

By ELSIE EMERY

A first-night audience Friday warmly accepted Magnolia Theatre's opening performance of "The Marriage-Go-Round."

Lyle Talbot, who directed and starred in Leslie Stevens' mirthful role as Paul Delville, distinguished professor of anthropology. His expert timing was matched by Kathy Davis as his wife, Content; and Francine Pyne as Katrin Sveg, Swedish dynamo who sets the professor's motor humming.

LIKE A GOOD glass of ale, the play has substance beneath the froth, and the three skilled performers brought out the full savor of the pithy lines.

Wally Crockett, with less to do, deftly handled the role of a professor who hasn't overlooked a pretty girl in 20 years.

Complications begin in the placid, academic Delville home when the gorgeous Katrin settles in as a house guest. With the candid announcement that she has come so that she and Paul may produce a perfect child, she sets out scientifically to break down his Puritan reserve; probably not a man watching could have resisted her campaign.

SEDUCTIVELY gowning in a number of costume changes, she is positively modest when draped in a bath towel. Quoting the professor's own treatises to him, pointing out her strategy of appealing to his "x factor, a built-in reflex," she seems about as harmless as a cobra in the cookie jar. Counterpointing the flashback action of the play are scenes in which the professor and his dean-of-women wife lecture on marriage, each illustrating points by their recent domestic crisis.

Miss Davis brings off one of the best scenes when, lecturing, her intellectual approach wavers and she discusses the way a woman loves a man. She is always convincing, witty and sophisticated.

The three principals are fine foils for one another, each making a strong point of the triangle within the marriage circle.

Old Railroad Giants in Battle of Merger

By ROBERT STRAND
 SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two historic western railroad giants are at it again—battling to get bigger. Southern Pacific and Santa Fe, who once fought their battles with bullets and ballots, engage each other with batteries of barristers Monday in a hearing to determine which one can take over control of a third railroad, Western Pacific.

Southern Pacific is already the nation's biggest railroad moneymaker and Santa Fe has 13,000 miles of track. And the prize is WP, a financially sound line 1,189 miles long.

WP's importance lies in the fact it is a connecting link in the Transcontinental Overland Route through the gateway of Utah. It also is a link over the Bieber Route for north-south traffic on the Pacific Coast.

THE PRESENT dispute broke out last October when SP disclosed it had acquired 10 per cent of the WP stock and would seek control.

Within two weeks Santa Fe bought up 20 per cent of the stock and said it would seek control rather than see WP taken over by SP.

Neither can take over WP without permission of the interstate Commerce Commission. The ICC has said it intends to encourage railroad consolidations in the interest of economy and efficiency.

So the ICC opens a hearing Monday into the problem.

It is expected to hear the views of several eastern railroads, at least eight state utility commissions and the U.S. Justice and Agriculture Departments as well as the parties involved and their friends.

SANTA FE and SP have worked hard for favorable opinions from their friends. Every sizable city in the area has been canvassed and more than 2,000 civic groups, boards of supervisors, labor organizations, shipping associations and farm groups have taken stands on the subject.

Western Pacific, which says it is making money and would prefer to remain independent, takes the side of its historic partner, Santa Fe. The railroad says the merger fever is running so high that it probably would be only a matter of time before it would be gobbled up.

Both SP and Santa Fe say they would operate WP as an independent firm.

The arguments are so complex that the ICC is not expected to rule on the subject until late next year.

And then, lawyers say, there is a good chance the whole thing will be gone over again in the courts.

Oceans May Provide Key to Survival

By RAY C. MEANS

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Two young Americans, taking part in extensive tests with the bathyscaph Trieste starting Monday, report Russia is quietly conducting undersea research—a field that may be more important to U.S. defense than missiles, satellites or massive armies.

Don Walsh and Larry Shumaker, both lieutenants, stationed at the Naval Electronics Laboratory in San Diego, believe the key to survival may be under the ocean.

Monday, the two men are to begin a series of 60 dives in the bathyscaph, Trieste, a blimp-shaped underwater vehicle. The dives are designed to provide more information about communications and detection below the surface of the sea.

"THE MAIN purpose," as Walsh explains it, "is what is becoming the main purpose of the Navy as a whole—to operate submarines undetected while at the same time being able to detect the enemy."

Walsh said, "the Polaris missile, launched from a submarine under water, has become our major weapon. Just as a general must know his battlefield, the captain of a submarine carrying a Polaris missile must know the terrain in which he works."

Both Walsh and Shumaker agreed that, thanks to the Trieste, the U.S. is ahead of Russia in a survey of the sea. "But," they caution, "the Russians have every surface craft in operation dangling cables into the ocean compiling data. Even Soviet trawlers are 71 per cent utilized for oceanographic research."

SHUMAKER said, "it may be a case of us watching the Russian's right hand making boasts about their outer-space success while the left hand is carefully hidden doing undersea research."

The new series of dives will take place at various locations off the coast of Southern California. The farthest out will be about 200 miles. There, the water reaches a depth of 12,000 feet.

Walsh and Shumaker will alternate as pilots of the Trieste. One of the eight scientists taking part in the project will accompany the pilot, his selection depending on what data is sought during a particular dive.

Although only two or three hours will be spent on the bottom each time, the dives will take about eight hours because of the slowness with which the bathyscaph ascends and descends. Should anything go wrong during the dives, "there is no ejection seat or escape hatch; it's a one-way trip," Shumaker said.

ACCORDING to Dr. Andreas Rechnitzer, deep submergence research program coordinator of the project, the new tests are a continuation of work started last year when the bathyscaph made its record dive of nearly seven miles into the Marianas trench off Guam. The Trieste underwent nine months of overhaul after the dive and has been equipped with specially-built scientific equipment for the new research program.

The bathyscaph itself is a 6-foot blimp-shaped object with powerful lights underneath and fore and aft to enable an observer to see all that is happening through a 90-degree window in front. Visibility from the rear is gained through use of a specially-designed television camera.

Wife Nazis Hanged in 1943 Exonerated

WUERZBURG, Germany (AP)—After 18 years, Wilhelm Klaes got a German court to exonerate his Jewish wife, hanged by the Nazis on charges of opposing them "because of Jewish selfishness and Jewish hate."

A local court now has ruled that the People's Court at Wuerzburg which sentenced Charlotte Klaes to death in November 1943 tried her unjustly. She was accused of giving starving Jewish relatives food-ration coupons bought from black marketers.

PRINCE BLESSED SIZZLES TO CUP VICTORY

54,107 See Kerr Entry Outcharge Whodunit at Wire

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

The rich got richer Saturday as the Travis M. Kerr entry of Prince Blessed and Grey Eagle sizzled to a smashing one-two triumph in the $162,100 Hollywood Gold Cup.

Jockey Johnny (Moneybags) Longden, wealthiest horse skipper in the business, steered Prince Blessed to his neck triumph, while Kerr was the man who owned Round Table, greatest thoroughbred money-winner in history!

Grey Eagle carved a blistering pace—the first mile of the mile and one-quarter classic was the swiftest run at the Inglewood track this season—then waged a spirited head-to-head duel with his stablemate down the stretch before the Longden mount won out.

The stablemates were forced to battle tooth-and-nail down to the very end as the favored Whodunit was charging at the pair like a runaway tank truck going down Signal Hill.

The Kerr entry returned $11, $9 and $4.60, while Whodunit's supporters salvaged the show prize of $4.40.

Whodunit was a half-length in arrears of Grey Eagle, with the fourth finisher, New Policy, nearly another length behind.

"The race was run exactly as we had planned," claimed 33-year-old trainer Jim Nazworthy. "We sent Larry Gilligan out on Grey Eagle to grab the lead, with Longden ready to charge from behind with Prince Blessed. We definitely thought Grey Eagle had a big chance to win the whole thing, even though most of the handicappers figured he'd kill himself off on that pace."

The Gold Cup was almost the image of its Santa Anita counterpart, the $100,000 Handicap, except that Prove It wasn't in Saturday's 14-horse field. Prince Blessed and Grey Eagle ran 2-3 in the Handicap using the identical strategy as in the Gold Cup.

FALL SIX OFF PACE

Futile Phils Rip Dodgers

By GEORGE LEDERER

Some 85,000 Saturday ab-sentees from the Coliseum don't know how lucky they are, because seldom have so few seen so little from the Dodgers.

The Philadelphia Futiles made it two in a row over the Dodgers by a score of 7-2 before a turnaway audience of 9,131, including 8,062 paid. We say turnaway because some may never come back.

Although Chris Short turned in a fine pitching job for the Phillies, the two teams could have swapped uniforms and no one would have detected or suspected the Dodgers.

THEY WERE blanked after the first inning and managed only six hits for a three-game total of 21. This is not a pennant pace.

The Dodgers fell six games off the pace as the Reds dumped Chicago, 2-1, in a night game.

Sandy Koufax failed for the fifth straight time to go the distance, was lifted when he trailed 4-2 and left the rest of the damage in the hands of the depleted Dodger bullpen.

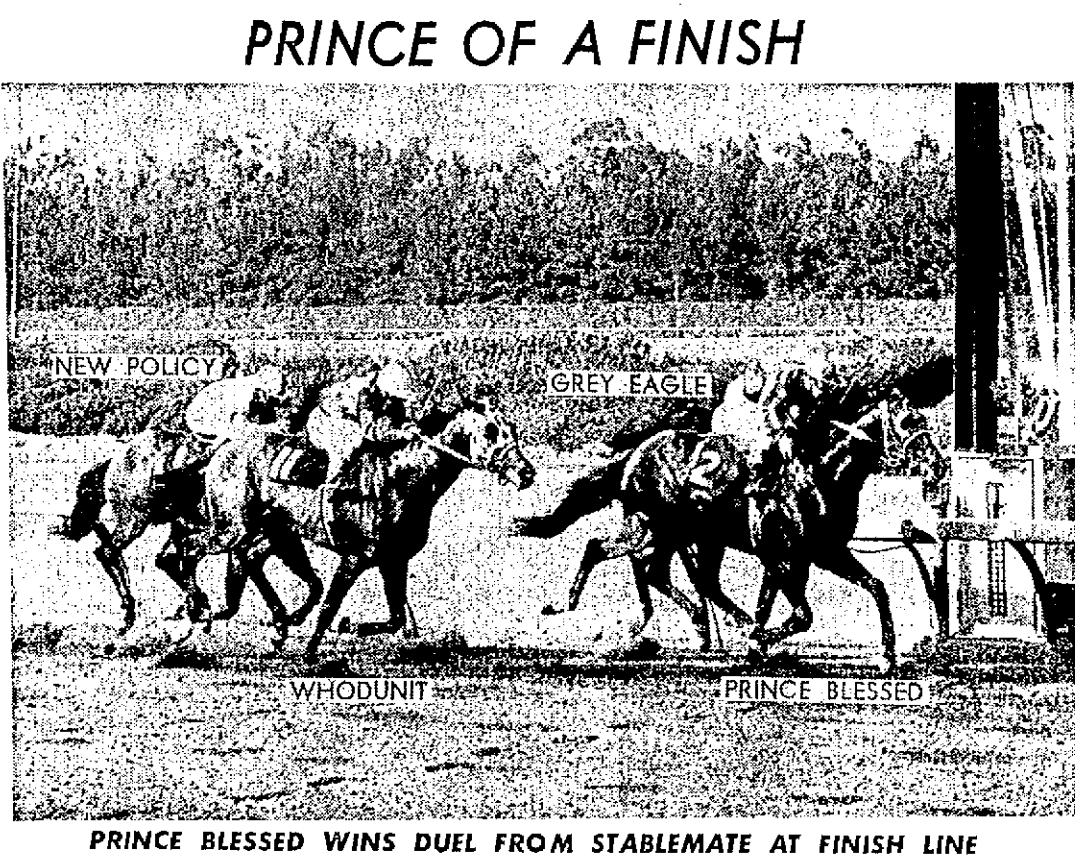

Dick Farrell, who hasn't been able to get anyone out for a month, was up to snuff when he served a first-pitch, two-run homer to Charlie Smith in the eighth. His second pitch resulted in a single by Tony Gonzalez, who stole second on the third serve.

ANOTHER FARRELL pitch was wild, but Farrell wasn't about to vindicate himself by covering the plate. He left this chore to Gil Hodges, whose alert and great play caught Gonzalez for the third out of the three-run inning.

Farrell's oversight will cost him at least $25. Manager Walter Alston said he "will talk" to Farrell about the play, but did not reveal the monetary nature of the discussion.

Alston did bring to light a well guarded secret until this time when he revealed that Don Drysdale was fined for failure to cover the plate in a recent game at Milwaukee. "We fined Drysdale for the same thing," said Alston. "Farrell isn't any different."

PRINCE BLESSED WINS DUEL FROM STABLEMATE AT FINISH LINE

Longden Holds Prince Blessed Back

Kerr's grey blur snapped to an immediate lead as the gate was sprung, with First Balcony cutting all the way over from his outside (14th) post position to settle right behind the Eagle.

New Policy slipped into the No. 3 slot, with Headmaster and Prince Blessed next in the strung-out line. Longden was holding Prince Blessed back like a longshoreman tugging to keep the S.S. Catalina in its Wilmington dock.

Whodunit was content to relax in eighth place the entire first mile.

Grey Eagle blistered around the first three turns with First Balcony always just a length behind him.

Prince Blessed made his big move around the far turn and when Longden loosened the reins the colt snapped to action like an errant rubber band.

Longden dispatched New Policy, then First Balcony and aimed his sights at the fleeing Gilligan and his Eagle. At the top of the stretch Prince Blessed caught his stablemate—and everyone in the throng of 54,107 figured the Eagle had done his job and would quickly fade into the rear ranks.

But it never happened. Gilligan kept Grey Eagle right there beside Prince Blessed and the ding-dong stretch battle commenced.

WILMA IN OLYMPIC FORM

Yanks Lead Russ, 64-54

(Compiled from Wire Services)

The lightning limbs of track queen Wilma Rudolph and Villanova whizzers Frank Budd and Paul Drayton gave the United States three world records Saturday on the first day of their annual dual meet against Russia at Moscow.

The U.S. men's team won seven of the 11 events, scoring 1-2 sweeps in five of them, to take a 64-54 lead.

But despite the brilliance of willowy Wilma, the Soviet women won three of five events and also accumulated a 10-point lead, 31-21. The Russians have agreed to score

MISS RUDOLPH, 21-year-old Tennessee State U. star who won three gold medals in the Olympics, equalled her own world record of 11.3 seconds in winning the women's 100-meter dash and then brought the U.S. women's 400-meter relay team from behind to win that event with a new world record of 44.3 seconds.

One other world mark was set—by Russia's Tamara Press, who broke her own mark in the women's discus throw with a heave of 188 feet, 4 1/2 inches.

In addition to the 100 meters, the U.S. teams scored 1-2 sweeps in the men's competition in the pole vault with John Uelses and Henry Wadsworth, the shotput with Gary Gubner and Jay Silvester, the 400-meter run with Ullis Williams and Adolph Plummer, and the 800-meter run with Jerry Siebert and Jim Dupree. The Yanks took 1-3 in the 110-

Holscher Meets Adamson for Title

Birdie Beats Barber; Pinky's Putter Fails

By JERRY WYNN

Dynamite Bud Holscher tarnished Long Beach golden boy Pinky Stevenson, 4 and 3, and unheralded Bob Adamson topped Jerry Barber with a magnificent birdie on the 20th hole in the semifinals of the $5,000 Southern California Professional Match Play Tournament at Recreation Park Saturday.

Holscher and Adamson will play 36 holes for the title today, starting at 9:30. The winner will receive $1,000, and Holscher will get an additional $500 from his golf equipment sponsor. Both finalists are 30 years old, but there the resemblance ends.

Holscher of Lakeside Club is the SC-PGA champion, a former touring pro and a golfer of recognized class. Adamson, an assistant to Eric Monti at Hillcrest CC, can only boast of the captaincy of the University of Idaho golf team and a win in the Japanese Northern Amateur while he was stationed

Sadowski's Homer Trips Tribe in 12th

By ROSS NEWHAN
P-T Staff Writer

CLEVELAND—Eddie Sadowski, the Angel, was a wild Indian in Cleveland Saturday.

The Seraphs' stellar defensive catcher crashed a home run in the 12th inning which gave the Angels a hectic 6-5 victory over Cleveland before 28,426 disappointed fans. Actually, only 5,690 were disappointed—they had to pay, as kids and ladies were admitted free.

Sadowski's homer, which capped a great afternoon and series for the backstop, brought an end to two Angel losing streaks. It snapped a four-game winless skein and a five-game drought in Cleveland.

The victory was the Angels' 11th in their last 16 games and sent them winging to Washington on a happy note. The Seraphs windup this road trip, which now stands 4-4, with a doubleheader in the Capital City today opposing Ed Hobaugh (6-3) and Tom Cheney (1-1).

Sadowski's winning blow, struck as the leadoff man in the 12th inning off Frank Funk (9-8), was one of three homers hit by the Angels. But despite the power display, it took another great relief stint by Art Fowler to allow the Angels to triumph.

Fowler, who was knocked out of the box Friday night,

Little Difference to Jockey's Wallets

Whodunit came storming down the middle of the track, picking up real estate on the Kerr pair like a greedy land developer, but the stablemates blitzed past the wire before Ralph Neves' charger could get to them.

Actually it made little difference to the jockeys' wallets which Kerr mount finished first because both Longden and Gilligan had agreed to split any winnings down-the-middle. First place was worth about $10,000 to a jockey, with $3,000 the second reward.

"He ran a powerful race," Longden said of Prince Blessed, "but he almost got away from me. He wanted to roll too early today, so I let him go earlier than I wanted. He got to the front easy, but he didn't want to go by Grey Eagle."

"We'd have made it if we got a breather," declared Gilligan, "but First Balcony was pressing us all the way and we just had to keep running. The Eagle never quit and we were coming on a little at John's horse in the stretch."

Neves claimed because of the bulky field that Whodunit probably lost the race in its early stages.

"We blew a lot of ground going around horses and trying to stay out of trouble," explained Neves. "We got straightened out in the drive home, but we ran out of ground."

Hank Moreno said his New Policy suffered when Prince Blessed brushed him as the Longden colt flew past. "But my horse got tired 70 yards from the finish and we'd had it," conceded Moreno.

First Balcony Didn't Have It—Burns

Bill Harmatz said his well-regarded Dress Up got bumped going by the stands the first time "and after that he just wouldn't try."

First Balcony "didn't have it again today," commented Eddie Burns, riding for the first time since being involved in the Mr. America tragedy last Saturday. Burns also claimed that Longden brushed his mount as Prince Blessed flashed by.

Sea Orbit, which had won two earlier Hollypark races from much the same field, didn't run a lick because "the ground broke at the start and he got off bad," moaned Angel Valenzuela. "Then we got shuffled around and knocked back—and that was it."

Longden, who parlayed back-to-back $100,000 triumphs (he was astride Four-and-Twenty in last Saturday's Derby), almost didn't make the race because of an ailment.

"I didn't ride Friday because I was taking treatment for a neck ailment which was bothering my legs," squeaked the 54-year-old wonder. "The legs hurt me before the race, but I can't feel a thing now."

Nazworthy stunned press observers when he commented on being "disappointed" over the race. "I wanted to run 1-2-3," chuckled the young trainer, who actually had a third horse in the chase, Ann Peppers' 46-1 shot, Headmaster.

His "disappointment" should be short-lived—just until he trots to the bank at 10 a.m. post-time Monday!

Mauch Doodles Over Howard

Bob Lemon and Gene Mauch of the Phillies drool when they glance at the Dodger bench . . . and neither can understand why the Dodgers aren't waltzing out of sight of the other National League dancers.

"They've got some bench all right," says Lemon. "Why, with guys like Willie Davis, Snider, Howard, Spencer, Hodges and Aspromonte, they've got practically another major league varsity."

"Yeh," grunts boss Mauch. "Ask me how I'd like to have that Dodger bench crew."

Since the pitiful Phils appear bent on driving to an all-time low in the N.L. win column — and were a staggering dozen games away from even seventh place at the All-Star break — I'm sure Mauch would settle for the Long Beach Rockets finishing out this season.

Mauch agrees with Lemon that the Dodgers should be leading the N.L. pack right now.

"They'd be in front if Frank Howard played regularly," declares the youthful skipper. "That big guy would hit 30 homers by accident."

In this respect, Mauch sees eye-to-eye with Bobby Bragan, the ex-Dodger coach who's now with the new Houston entry. Bragan was high on Howard all last season and insisted this spring that if the Dodgers kept their answer to Paul Bunyan in right field the entire season, they'd never look back at the pack.

On this subject, Dr. W. Bun Nichols of Bellflower sends along a clipping from the column of sports editor Bob Johnson of Spokane, where (Incidentally) Bragan managed a few seasons ago.

Pointing out Bragan's thoughts on Howard, Johnson continues: "It's hard to figure why L.A. keeps Howard out of the lineup. Admittedly he still swings at a lot of bad pitches but when he connects, brother, that ball goes. How they expect him to find the strike zone sitting on the bench is hard to imagine."

"Frank has all the potential to be the biggest name in the major leagues but he'll never make it, and neither will the Dodgers, sitting in the shade of the dugout."

With due respect to Bragan, Mauch and Johnson, I'll take the current Dodger right fielder, Ron Fairly, in preference to big Frank.

I'll agree with Alston, Durocher, Bavasi or whoever else dictates the Dodger lineup. It's much nicer to have an outfielder who gets on base consistently and can field (Fairly) than one who hits for the same average as Jose Pagan and fields like Babe Herman.

GRABBING THE BRASS RINGS:

... Sudden thought: Are San Francisco redhats still pursuing their drive to have Alvin Dark of the Candlesticks named manager-of-the-year? Just wondering, that's all.

... With the Rams due to open their Redlands broiling factory this week, Les Richter surveys the NFL race and comes up with this report: The St. Louis Cardinals to win the Eastern title and Detroit or Green Bay to bag the Western flag. (Fearless Les expresses little fear of the 49ers, Colt and Bears.)

... Any Ram veterans with ideas of reporting late to the hated Redlands purgatory should forget them. "I know all the excuses," points out g. m. Elroy Hirsch. "I used all of 'em, but that stuff doesn't go anymore."

... Didja see where another brilliant golfing decision was made a few days ago? Arnie Palmer lost a shot when a freak wind blew his ball off the tee in the British Open. Now how on earth can anyone justify such a penalty just because a wind suddenly arises? Oh, well, I should have given up trying to fathom the Rules of Golf years ago.

... P. W. Morgan of Long Beach, vacationing in Charleston, S. C., sends along this Carolina sports column note: "Asheville's Sally League leading Tourists have drawn 58,000 fans this season, far and away the best figure in the league. The Tourists have averaged 2,700 per home game since $175,000 bonus boy Bob Bailey joined the club—a splendid argument in favor of bonus contracts." Splendid for such stops as Asheville, that is.

... The Angels have a new name for the thick glasses of Riney Duren: "bottle bottoms." Duren has several sets, all tinted differently—for night games, twilight games and day games. (No, no, Ralph, the rose-colored ones belong to Don Drysdale!)

Donovan Stops K.C. on Six Hits; Krause Beaten

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lew Krause, Kansas City's $125,000 bonus pitcher, went down to his fifth straight defeat Saturday as the Washington Senators scored a 7-1 victory behind Dick Donovan's six-hit performance.

Krause, 18-year-old right-hander, went three full innings and was roughed up for three runs and five hits.

Donovan blanked the A's on one hit for the last six innings and retired 20 of the last 21 batters he faced.

Tigers Win, but Yanks Retain Lead

Sub for Cash Poles Homer in Eighth, 2-1

DETROIT (AP)—Larry Osborne, pressed into service as an emergency performer, belted a towering eighth-inning home run and lifted the Detroit Tigers to a 2-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

Osborne's first homer landed in the upper center-field bleachers 400 feet from home plate. It enabled Jim Bunning to best Camilo Pascual in a tight pitchers' duel.

The hefty first baseman was in Detroit's lineup only because of slugging Norm Cash's foot infection.

Bunning, a slow starter this season, recorded his 10th victory—and fifth in a row—against six losses. He yielded only four hits and the only damaging one was Earl Battey's ninth home run in the seventh.

Battey's homer tied the score after the Tigers had broken up a scoreless struggle in the fifth.

COBB LISTED 'POOR,' LIFE IN JEOPARDY

ATLANTA (AP)—Ty Cobb, former baseball star who has been hospitalized several times in recent years, was reported in poor condition Saturday in Emory University hospital.

The 74-year-old baseball wonder had been in fair condition until Saturday. He had an uncomfortable night and a spokesman said he is unconscious at times. His life is in danger, the hospital announced.

Jay Registers 13th Victory as Reds Increase Lead, 2-1

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The Cincinnati Reds stretched their National League lead to six games by edging the Chicago Cubs 2-1, Saturday night behind the steady pitching of Jojo Jay, who picked up his 13th victory of the season.

The Reds bunched three hits with a walk and a sacrifice to score both of their runs in the eighth inning.

Eddie Kasko led off the frame with a double, moved to third on Vada Pinson's sacrifice and scored on Frank Robinson's single. Robinson's hit extended his streak through 10 games, during which he has made 20 hits in 37 swings.

After a walk to Gene Freese, Wally Post sent Robinson home with the second and deciding run of the inning.

Jay, winning his 13th game in his last 14 decisions, lost a shutout when Ron Santo socked a solo homer in the ninth inning.

Jack Curtis, a rookie southpaw, went the route for the Cubs and was charged with his third loss against six wins.

Jay scattered eight hits, walked two and struck out three.

The game, witnessed by 24,201 fans was delayed 47 minutes by rain in the bottom of the second inning.

Cards Score 8 in 8th, Rip Braves, 12-4

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Pinch-hitter Curt Flood's bases-loaded double in the eighth inning sparked an eight-run explosion as the St. Louis Cardinals scored a come-from-behind 12-4 victory over the Milwaukee Braves Saturday night.

Flood's blow started the scoring in the Cardinals' biggest inning this year. Red Schoendienst followed Flood with a run-scoring single and Don Tausig blasted a bases-clearing double. Next, Kenny Boyer stepped up and blasted his 13th home run of the season.

N.Y. Disdains 6-Run Deficit, Posts 9-8 Win

CHICAGO (AP)—Clete Boyer's double and Tony Kubek's single in the 10th inning gave New York a 9-8 uphill victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday and kept the Yankees clinging to their precious three percentage-point American League lead over Detroit.

A crowd of 37,730, boosting the three-day total to 125,140, saw the Sox blast 13 hits, including four home runs, but still fall short of the persistent Yankees.

The never-say-die Yankees, down by six runs in the fourth when Chicago took an 8-2 lead, pounded their way into an 8-8 tie with two runs in the top of the ninth. Only a great catch by Al Smith on a bases-loaded drive by John Blanchard prevented the Yankees from going in front in the ninth.

Roger Maris, continuing his assault on Babe Ruth's record of 60 home runs, hit his 35th in the third inning for a 20-game lead over Ruth, who didn't hit No. 35 until the 106th game on Aug. 5, 1927.

Christmas in July: Rams Open Training Camp

By JERRY WYNN
It will be Christmas in July for Dick Keelor of Long Beach State and 15 other rookie professional football players Monday.
Each one certain he can beat the broiling sun, the odds and a returning veteran out of a job, the group reports to Redlands University to open the training camp of the Rams.
The rookie party, led by coach Bob Waterfield and his staff, will take physical examinations and draw equipment on Monday, then cavort for cameramen on Tuesday before being joined by the balance of the squad—33 veterans—on Wednesday.

Veterans and rookies again will pose for photographers on Thursday, and begin regular, two-a-day workouts on Friday.
Maybe the anticipated heat at Redlands will be a good omen. Old Simon Legree Waterfield is sure to keep physical contact at a blistering level throughout training, and not even Jayne Mansfield in a bikini should generate the heat of the dogfight forecast for the Western Division of the National Football League this season.
Packers, Colts, Lions, 49ers, Bears and Rams... take your choice. There's nary a few touchdowns separating the talent of all six clubs.

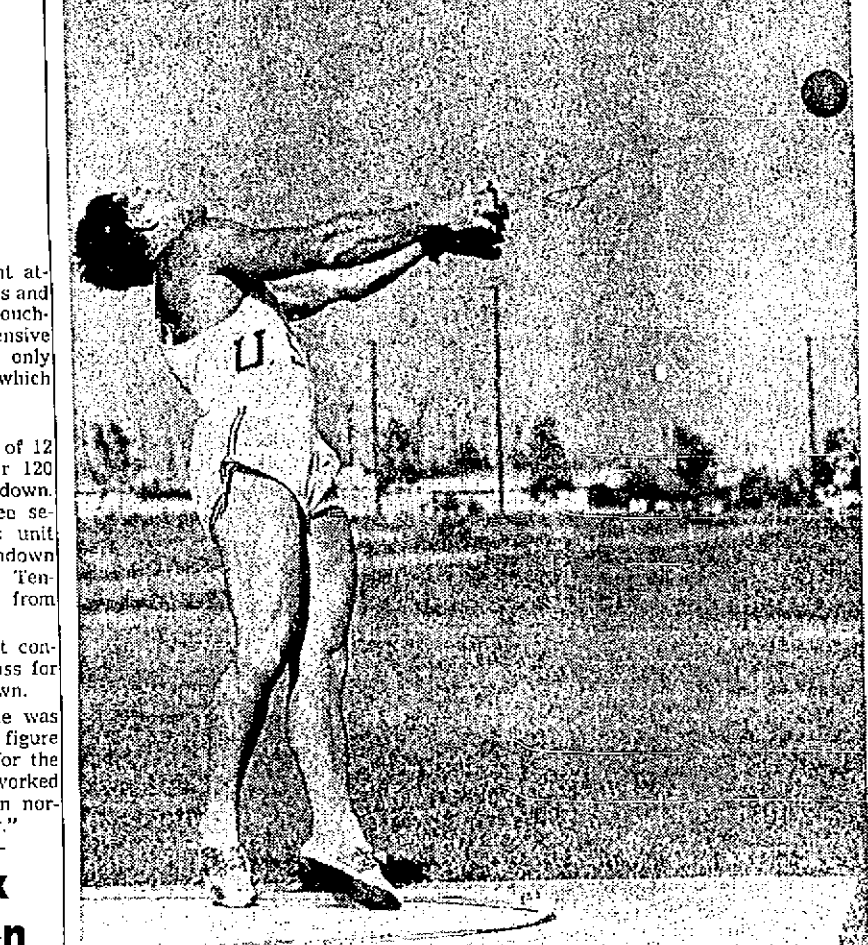

The Rams' first pre-season game is less than a month away, the Washington Redskins the opposition in the annual charity tilt at the Coliseum, Aug. 11.
Then come the Giants (Aug. 19), Browns (Aug. 25) and 49ers (Sept. 1) to the Coliseum before the Rams finish preliminary action at Minnesota against the new Vikings (Sept. 10) and begin main-event slugging at Baltimore against the Colts (Sept. 17).
A vastly-improved club in Waterfield's first year as coach despite a 4-7-1 record, the Rams look ahead to the new campaign with a mood of cautious optimism. They feel all it will take to become a title contender is strengthening of the offensive line and defensive backfield plus a come-through job at quarterback by candidates Frank Ryan, Zeke Bratkowski and Buddy Humphrey. A deal for Y. A. Tittle is not dead yet.
Gone from the 1960 roster are such familiar names as Bill Wade, Will Sherman, Lou Michaels and Carl Karilivacz (the latter will make all headline writers happy.) New to the squad are Lindon Crow, Frank Varrichione, Bratkowski and the rookies, who step front and center this week.
All but four of the yearlings will report Monday, and those four already are hard at work in Chicago drilling with the College All-Stars.
They are the much-heralded pair of linebacker Marlin McKeever from SC and halfback Pervis Atkins from New Mexico State, guard Hal Beatty from Oklahoma State and end-halfback Elbert Kimbrough of Northwestern.

An illustration of the appeal of the Rams, fostered by their exciting tradition and the winning personalities of president Dan Reeves and general manager Elroy Hirsch, comes in the fact that nine of their 10 top draft choices of 1960 have signed on with the club. The lone absentee is Northwestern back Larry Wood, who decided to play in Canada.
The draft choice include linemen Charles Cowan, New Mexico Highlands; Willie Hector, COP; Bruce Olderman, Allegheny; Joe Scibelli, Notre Dame, and Dave Jones, So. Carolina State; backs Duane Allen, Santa Ana, and Bill Strumke of Georgia, and end Dick Dorsey of SC.
Free agents to check in Monday are linemen Angelo Brovelli, Washington State; Richard Max, Cal Poly; Lou Popelar, Fresno State; Wayne Brock, formerly of the Cardinals, and Keelor, former captain and star guard at Long Beach State, and backs Tony Yim, Occidental; Chuck Longo of San Jose State, and Alvin Hall, Marines.
It's off to Redlands and Christmas in July.

'PRETTY DARN GOOD'

Rookie Quarterbacks Win Praise From Van Brocklin

Dome Only Salvation of S. F. Stadium

Since the wind-blown All-Star game Tuesday revealed to the nation the terrible conditions in San Francisco's Candlestick Park, a new move has been launched to get the city to seal out the elements by erecting a dome.
However, Mayor George Christopher continues to oppose a dome.
Instead, he says that he hopes a new wind study costing $55,000 can be completed promptly so some solution can be worked out.
A number of solutions have been proposed. One has been to build some 25,000 additional seats in the outfield so the field would be completely walled in. This also would give the park a capacity to handle pro football games.
A more modest proposal is to plant a heavy stand of trees beyond the outfield fence.
However, observers feel that "walling" in the park will not eliminate the wind problem... that a dome costing in the neighborhood of $3 1/2 million is the only answer!

IN ALL probability this is the last year the major leagues will stage two All-Star games.
The players are the only ones who want to continue with two games because it boosts their pension fund. And although the owners are against two games, they'll go along with the players.
However, with the National League following the American next season by expanding to 10 teams, the tight schedules will make it tougher to get in two.
But the major reason the second game may be discontinued is that television—main contributor to the receipts which go into the fund—is losing interest in airing it.
TV people point out that a second game is anti-climactic and that it is becoming difficult to sell the event to sponsors.

AFTER A GOOD ROOKIE SEASON with Milwaukee, Joey Jay never pitched back to his potential until traded to Cincinnati this season. Now he's the National League's leading hurler.
What's the reason behind his resurgence? Johnny Logan, Jay's former teammate on the Braves who is now with the Pirates, explains it thusly:
"At Milwaukee, Joey was lost in the shadows of Spahn, Burdette and Buhl. He had no identity of his own. Now he's a big man with the Reds, given his regular turn and allowed to pitch. He's always been a good pitcher. He has more confidence now, and his new manager has confidence in him—something Joey Jay never had when he was with the Braves!"

When Roger Maris belted his 34th homer Friday, he moved 14 days and 15 games ahead of Babe Ruth's record "60" pace, while Mickey Mantle pulled even with the Bambino's record pace with his 30th round-tripper in the same game.
Although four behind Maris at this time, Mantle is conceded by most baseball men to have the better chance of closing in on Ruth's mark as the season progresses due to Maris' past record of falling off in the later stages of the campaign.
Ruth's record is highlighted by 17 home runs in the final month.
It has always been said that whenever anyone got too close to "60" that opposing pitchers would help preserve Ruth's mark by giving up a rash of walks.
But with an entire new generation of players in the game, this "threat" may not exist any longer.
Incidentally, it is estimated that a player who equals or betters Ruth's mark would collect well over $100,000 from personal appearances, endorsements, etc., in the first six months following his achievement.

McFARLAND hit six of 12 pass attempts, good for 120 yards and one touchdown. He participated in three series of plays and his unit scored another touchdown when Ken Waddell of Tennessee plunged over from five yards out.
Bob Luske of Detroit connected on a 36-yard pass for the remaining touchdown.
Van Brocklin said he was over-all pleased and "I figure it's pretty darn good for the first week. We've worked them a lot harder than normal for the first week."

Drag Mark by McEwen

Tom McEwen of Long Beach defeated Lefty Muddersbach of Pico Rivera by .001 of a second Saturday night to take the $500-top eliminator award in the July racing championships at Lions Drag Strip.
McEwen also broke Muddersbach's national elapsed time record with a run of 8.81 seconds for a speed of 173.41 miles per hour before a crowd of 8,648. Results:
Open fuel—Garry Eagle 10.85; Modified—Herman Bros. 15.25; B—Curver Sandblasting 12.15; Roadsters—Accessories Limited 14.27; Street racers—Chuck Hickman 11.53; Gas class—Stone and Wood 12.67; Sports class—Larry Hucker 10.14.

Heath Captures Asset Feature

Allan Heath, Northridge, Saturday won the main 30-lap event in the California Racing Association's big car meet at Ascot Park.
Colby Scroggins, Eagle Rock, placed second while Billy Cantrell, Anaheim, was third.
In the semi-main 15-lap event, first place honors went to Jack Brunner, Gardena, while Clay Robbins, North Hollywood, was second and Ken Boyer, Signal Hill, third.

Giants Open Monday

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — The New York Giants start training for the National Football season with the opening of a rookie camp at the Fairfield University campus Monday.
The stocky, blonde pro of two years had pushed his drive horribly, and the ball rested under a tree. He had to approach about 100 yards between two trees and over a trap to reach the green,

HOLSCHER, ADAMSON DUEL

After the match, Barber stormed off the course complaining about the slowness of the match. He was so upset, he almost caused an accident while driving his car out of the parking lot.
The match was pathetically slow. Barber is noted for his painstakingly methodical play and snail's pace on the greens, and Adamson was far slower Saturday. He'd line up a putt, back away, line it up again, etc., etc.

"I DIDN'T want to putt until I had control of myself," he explained. "I didn't want to miss by choking. And when you are playing Jerry Barber, playing slow is the best way."
Whatever the reason and result, it was bad golf.
The thrilling windup of the Adamson win stole the thunder from what had been Pinky Stevenson Day.
The home-town favorite had wowed his highly-partisan fans by rallying to upset Jimmy Thompson on the 19th hole in his morning quarter-

SIKES TAKES PUBLIC LINKS GOLF CROWN

DETROIT (AP) — Dick Sikes, a skinny kid with a safecracker's touch around the green, captured the U.S. Public Links golf championship Saturday with a decisive 4 and 3 triumph over fellow collegian John Molenda of Detroit.
Sikes is only the third player ever to win medalist honors and go on to the championship in this event's 36-year history.
Sikes shot two-over par 72 in the morning 18 while Molenda had 73. Sikes had a two-under 33 for the first nine of the second round, Molenda getting a 36.

Hail Arnie New King of England

BIRKDALE, England (AP) — Arnold Palmer won the British Open golf championship by a single stroke Saturday with one of his patented late surges and became the first American to win the coveted title since the immortal Ben Hogan did it in 1953.
The Latrobe, Pa., professional started the rain-splattered day one blow off the pace. Then, came one of his dramatic charges. He blazed over the soggy front nine of the Birkdale course, where par is 36-36—72, in 32. That carried him to a third-round 69 which put him out in front. A comfortable par 72 on the fourth round brought him the title.

Dai Rees of Wales finished with 285, just one stroke behind Palmer. That was the same margin by which Palmer failed to win the crown a year ago in his first try.
Paul Runyan of La Jolla, Calif., was the only other American in the 48-man field. He had 75-72 for a 299.
Palmer stretched his legs in the locker room and said: "Why should I complain about this English climate? I think it's beautiful—just beautiful."

Fee Wins Rank of Rear Admiral

Commander of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard, Capt. John Fee, is one of 36 line officers that President Kennedy has approved for promotion to the temporary rank of rear admiral.

Fee, commander of the base since January, has a long career in naval shipyard duties, including an assignment as maintenance officer of a task force during the Bikini atom-bomb tests.

His first assignment following his graduation from the Naval Academy in 1935 was aboard the USS Nevada, then based in Long Beach.

During his tour of duty aboard the Nevada he married a Long Beach girl, Marjorie Mary Maxwell.

Early A-Bomb Secrets Revealed in '40 Papers

NEW YORK (AP)—Confidential documents and letters tracing the development of the U. S. government's first contract for atomic energy research were made public Saturday by Columbia University.

The papers had been kept secret for 21 years. They tell the story of the initial scientific speculation about nuclear energy, the notes exchanged with government officials and the start of work that led to the atomic bomb.

The original contract, between Columbia and the National Defense Research Committee, was signed in November, 1940, at the threshold of World War II.

Known officially as NDC-RC-32, it provided Columbia scientists $40,000 to "conduct investigations in connection with certain properties of uranium and other substances."

Eventually, the huge undertaking became known as the "Manhattan Project," involving expenditure of billions of dollars, but in the beginning, the papers show some cost-shaving restrictions.

"Not allowed," was the government stamp on a $6.67 item for telephone calls and registered mail submitted by the university on one voucher.

The papers show that with-

Columbia scientists in 1939 performed some tentative experiments in nuclear fission, based on Einstein's famed formula, E equals Mc squared.

SUBSEQUENTLY, Prof. Szilard and other scientists got Albert Einstein to sign a letter to President Roosevelt on Aug. 2, 1939, urging further atomic research.

Soon afterward came the first government contracts. As the project expanded beyond Columbia facilities, it was moved to Chicago in February, 1942.

BELMONT-NAPLES AREA NEARLY FILLED

Last available homesites in the Belmont-Naples area of Long Beach are shown (No. 6) fronting the Marine Stadium. Park Shore Homes, now offered for sale in this strip are finding quick buyer response for as W. H. Campbell, president of Bayshore Tower Inc., the developer says, "there just isn't any more waterfront property." Shown in this aerial view, looking from the west toward Seal Beach are: No. 1, Long Beach Marina; No. 2, Davies Bridge on Second St. extension; No. 3, Pacific Coast Hwy.; No. 4, Naples area; No. 5, Marine Stadium and No. 7, Belmont Shore.

AUDITORIUM 60 PER CENT COMPLETE

Auditorium Manager Win Hansen and Convention Bureau Manager Howard Jones survey present stage of construction on the vast, new 15,000-seat amphitheater-like "BIG Addition" to the present Long Beach Municipal Auditorium. Work started on it last November and is now 60 per cent complete. It is scheduled to be finished early next July.

More Counties Will Get Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Agriculture Department has designated four more California counties as an area where the farmers home administration may make emergency loans to eligible farmers through June 30, 1962.

The counties designated are: Marin, Mendocino, Napa, and Sonoma.

There are now 14 California counties so designated.

The department said dry and unseasonable weather have damaged crops, fruits and vineyards and many farmers in the area need emergency credit.

Realtors to Hear Weck Morgan

Launch Major Step for Parking Relief

Another major step in improving the downtown parking situation has been taken with work started on a major, city-owned lot at Fourth and Pacific Ave.

This is the first parking lot to be started under a city program launched two years ago by the City Council supporting a move of the Downtown Long Beach Associates. Under the program the city sets aside $150,000 in parking meter revenue each year for the improvement of parking, explained Vito Romans, executive manager of the downtown businessmen's association.

FIRST OF THE MONIES was used in making surveys in the Belmont Shore area where parking congestion had been a problem. The city purchased an old home at 422 Pacific Ave. and two more parcels. Work of razing the home was started last week and soon this new lot, adjoining a large parking area at the rear of Walker's Department Store, will provide a big, open expanse of parking.

Under the city program, the land acquired is dedicated as a parking lot area. However, the city will not be the operator in competition with private operators. Bids are taken and a lease is made between a private operator and the city. The money paid the city on the lease is returned to the general parking fund for other similar projects.

MORE PARKING SOON DOWNTOWN

Civic and city officials gathered for a ground breaking ceremony to launch the first downtown parking lot under a new program, hailed by business leaders as a most progressive step to alleviate parking congestion. Revenue from city parking meters was used to purchase this home and adjoining lots at 422 Pacific Ave., for a parking lot. Participating in the groundbreaking are Gerald Desmond, city attorney; Jess Gilkerson, city engineer and George Trammell, president of Downtown Long Beach Associates.

Auditorium Addition Opening Year Away

Construction work on the vast, new Long Beach Municipal Auditorium amphitheater reached the 60 per cent completion stage coincident with the opening of the International Trade Show in the present auditorium this weekend.

Next year at this time the new structure is scheduled to be completed and the proposed first major event in the huge new oval shaped amphitheater will be the second, or 1962 edition, of the International Trade Show. This was learned today from Howard Jones, manager of the Convention Bureau.

WORK ON THE HUGE new Auditorium addition, which will accommodate some 15,000 persons around its oval in rising tiers of seats, started last November, and is progressing rapidly, Win Hansen, Auditorium manager, pointed out. The initial Trade Show this year, with colorful and interesting exhibits of products and cultural articles from some 15 foreign countries over the world, as well as American business firms, major steamship lines and airlines, is underway now. It will conclude Sunday night at 11 o'clock after a three-day run, replete with exhibits and twice-a-day entertainment shows featuring top TV, radio and movie personalities.

THE TRADE SHOW here next year, according to plans of the producers, Donnan Smealie and Edwin Mee and business and civic leaders, will be "bigger by far."

This year's exhibition is made up of over 100 exhibit spaces in the present municipal auditorium. The big addition, now under construction, will have 300 exhibit spaces.

Built-in dishwashers, such as shown here, are standard equipment in Sol Vista Luxury Series homes.

Distinguished by design and quality construction, the Sol Vista Luxury Series Homes were awarded the seal of Medallion which not only means that the kitchens are "all electric," but that these homes measure up to the rigid electrical standards modern living requires.

With so many electrical wonders now available, you want to be sure the electrical facilities are adequate and with the Sol Vista Medallion Home you know you have full "housepower," carefully and scientifically planned," stated Irving Solomon, vice president of the Alco-Pacific Construction Co., Inc.

"Further, he continued, you'll welcome the brightest new idea in modern home design—a "Telephone Planned Sq Vista Home"—with built-in telephone outlets and concealed wiring in the room walls. It's not only designed for your family's telephone convenience and pleasure today, but anticipates tomorrow's needs."

Gardendale Homes Fit Buyer's Budget

MANY EXTRAS IN HOME

One of the many "extras" offered by Gardendale Homes in Buena Park is a dressing table with mirror for the lady of the house. The big 1,300-plus square-foot homes, which start at $15,995, can be reached by taking Carson Boulevard to Walker, then turning north on Walker to the Gardendale Homes entrance.

The name of Gardendale Homes has come to mean "quality-plus" in the minds of Orange County home buyers, dealers Ray Feaster, exclusive sales agent for Gardendale.

Gardendale Homes, located in several choice areas in growing Orange County, all have one thing in common, Feaster related. They are built to include every possible modern convenience yet are priced with an "eye to the buyer's budget."

All Gardendale Home buyers receive grant deeds to their property after a down payment starting from $95, plus closing costs, with the down payment varying to some extent depending on the specific location selected by the home buyer.

GARDENDALE HOMES, including Scotsdale Homes, all have wall-to-wall carpeting, built-in range and oven, wood-burning fireplaces, 1300-plus square feet of living area, landscaped lawns, and many other features.

Gardendale No. 1 is located in Garden Grove on Newhope Street. This new unit has three and four bedrooms and a family room and is in a choice location.

Gardendale No. 2 in Buena Park is almost sold out, Feaster said, with the unique "living ceilings" which reflect slivers of light proving to be very popular with home buyers.

FEASTER SAID that with Gardendale No. 2 in Buena Park almost sold out, they will sell four-bedroom homes for the same price as three-bedroom homes, with this special allowance good only this week. Gardendale No. 2 is located on Walker St. between La Palma and Crescent.

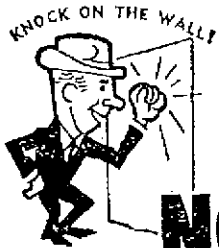

Gardendale No. 3, Scotsdale Homes in south Santa Ana, is an extremely choice location for persons employed in Santa Ana, Garden Grove or the beach cities, Scotsdale Homes have exceptionally large family rooms, dressing tables with mirrors, acoustical ceilings plus all the other Gardendale features.

To reach Scotsdale Homes, take Brookhurst or Harbor Blvds. to Sugar (south of Garden Grove and Bolsa) and follow the signs of the big Scotchman.

Feaster suggested that all those interested should check this new unit has a newspaper today for detailed driving directions as well as the phone numbers of the various fine economical groups of Gardendale Homes.

"I BUILD ALL KINDS, BUT I LIVE IN A MEDALLION HOME"

"Medallion Homes are jet-age—that is, they're built for the future. At the same time, they offer more benefits to the buyer today. That's why I build them, and that's why I live in one.

"And, once you've lived in a Medallion Home there's no comparison. The greater comforts of electric living are obvious in every room. Especially in the kitchen. It's cool, easy to operate, and stays so much cleaner.

"I wouldn't live in any other kind of home."

Mr. Tancredi has been building homes for the past eleven years and recently joined the Medallion Home program. He reports "exceptionally good acceptance" for his new development, Suburbia, in Santa Ana. It's built to Medallion Home standards, of course.

When you consider a new home, be guided by the experience of veteran builders. Make sure the house has won the Medallion Home Award.

Only one new home in five earns this distinction. These are the qualifications:

1. A flameless electric kitchen—cool, clean, modern. It comes equipped with major electrical appliances, including automatic flameless electric range and oven.
2. Complete "Housepower"—only a home built to rigid Medallion Home standards has the overall electrical capacity necessary for truly modern living.
3. Abundant lighting—planned for comfort, convenience and beauty.
4. Flameless electric space and water heating.

"WHEN THE FUTURE IS ALL-ELECTRIC, WHY BUY ANYTHING BUT A MEDALLION HOME?"

A PARLIAMENT HOME

Many custom features are included in the big Parliament Homes now selling in Westminster. Sales agents say the large U-shaped kitchens have big appeal to homemakers.

U-Shaped Kitchens Have Great Appeal

Sales Agents McFarland & Mattocks report the spacious U-shaped kitchen in the Parliament Homes of Westminster are highly favored by new development.

The "Medallion" all-electric kitchens include a built-in range and oven, dishwasher and disposal, and features high quality ash hardwood cabinets and ceramic tile counter tops. A door leading directly from the attached garage keeps grocery storage to a minimum.

COMPARED TO homes in the same price range, the Parliament development offers unusual quality construction and custom features. Twelve exteriors in a wide choice of themes and four basic floor plans provide the right house for every family. Homes are available with three bedrooms and den or four bedrooms. All plans include two baths, a large family room, floor-to-ceiling fireplace and a glass sliding door leading to the rear patio area.

Construction features include select hardwood floors on raised foundations of tongue and groove subflooring, insulated and acoustical ceilings, aluminum stripping on entry doors and an unusual amount of storage and linen closets.

OTHER MAJOR features include forced-air heating

Sun Ray Providing Free Fence, Drapes

Free complete fencing of the rear yard with decorative block walls, free draperies for every window plus traverse rods and free wall-to-wall carpeting throughout the home are extra bonus features now offered buyers in Sun Ray Estates in Westminster.

"The Provident" won the coveted Construction Industry's Exposition Award this year at the Los Angeles Builders and Home show.

Sun Ray Estates is R. W. Watt Construction Co.'s new home development on Garden Grove Blvd. just five short miles east of Long Beach State College.

The Provident award winning series is available in four distinct floor plans and is probably the most complete package ever offered the buying public anywhere in the country, it was stated by Watt.

NO DOWN, no costs and move in free is offered to veterans—all this together with concrete block wall fencing, completely draped and wall-to-wall carpeting throughout including the bedrooms.

With all the above money-saving and expensive items, The Provident also includes such wanted features as built-in range and ovens, natural doors and cabinets, forced-air heating, snack bars and many models have wood-burning fireplaces.

The Provident comes in three and four bedroom models, each with two baths.

Doesn't Fit

LONDON (UPI) — John Thomas Coleman, who weighs 392 pounds, was too big to squeeze into the witness box in a court here. The judge ordered Thomas, a laborer, to stand outside the box as he fined him $1.40 for drunkenness.

AMONG QUALITY features of the new Stardust Homes are: Mahogany kitchen cabinets, mahogany doors and panels, built-in ranges with 20-inch ovens, huge sliding glass patio doors, forced-air heat, copper plumbing, vinyl linoleums in kitchen and baths, separate utility rooms, pullmans with oval sinks, automatic hot and cold water mixers, attractive wallpaper, and many others.

From Los Angeles, Stardust Homes' Unit 1 may be reached via the Santa Ana Freeway to Beach Blvd. turnoff at Buena Park, continuing south past Knott's Berry Farm 8 miles, then left on Heil Street 1,000 yards to the model homes.

From Long Beach, the homes may be reached by driving east on Seventh Street (which becomes Garden Grove Blvd.) or Carson (Lincoln) or Spring (Cerritos) to Beach Blvd., Hwy 39, turning right and continuing 3 1/2 miles south of Garden Grove Blvd. to Heil Street, then left.

Surplus Tank Has Bonus, Too

PASO ROBLES (UPI) — Rancher H. E. Blythe got a bonus when he bought a missile transportation tank recently from a military surplus outlet.

Blythe said he opened the tank and found a Nike Ajax ground-to-air missile inside.

He summoned demolition experts from the army's camp Roberts, who reported that the weapon was unarmed and harmless.

Expect Widows to File Appeal

SAN DIEGO (AP) — An appeal to the State Supreme Court by a group of widows of city police and firemen is considered likely today in their suit for increased pensions.

The 4th District Court of Appeal upheld a Superior Court decision that such pensions were limited to $75 a month.

Retirement fund officials estimated the city was saved $3.5 million by the ruling.

CAREERS AHEAD

Again this year, the Independent, Press-Telegram is proud to play a part in the launching of young careers into the world of business. For many years, the Independent, Press-Telegram has employed young people from high schools and colleges in various departments of these newspapers for summer months. Many of them have returned to permanent jobs on the newspapers after graduation. But all of them have had a valuable business experience whether or not they choose a career in journalism.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD

Bachelor Has Doubts

I'm 40 years old, a bachelor and set in my ways. I've finally met the gal I want to marry, BUT every now and then I get qualms. I'm a cigar smoker, and have been from way back. She has made me promise that when we marry I'll give up cigars.

Also, I've played poker every Thursday night with five fellows for six years now, and naturally would like to keep the game going. She says nix on this, too.

I suppose cigars and poker shouldn't come between a guy and a gal, but—well, Molly, I am worried.—CARL

DEAR CARL: If this gal fell in love with a cigar-smoking, poker-playing guy, then why must she change his ways when she changes her name?

Ask her if she would rather be married to a happy hunk or to something she can lead around on a leash.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: I'm 21 years old and the boy I'm writing about is 25.

We have been dating about a year—not steady, but often. We get along beautifully together, have much in common, but when you come down to it, I don't really know much about him.

I mean, he almost never discusses his personal affairs with me and doesn't encourage me to discuss mine.

I've almost given up going out with other young men, but whether he dates other girls or not I don't know. Still and all, I know he spends most of his time with me.

Am I wasting my time just waiting around for him to pop the question? Or should I take matters in my own hands and ask him will he or won't he?—VALERIE

DEAR VALERIE:

Let's face it, I don't think you know the young man well enough to propose marriage. And, frankly, he doesn't sound in the marrying mood. If he did, he'd want to tell you all about himself and look for a similar response from you.

Right now, as I see it, you're just friends, not lovers. Don't, dear girl, jump the gun on him.—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: I am 16 years old and very much in love with a boy in the Navy. We plan to be married some day.

Well, he came home on leave recently for 10 days, and the first nine days he got along perfectly with my parents. But on his last night home we went out and made an all-night affair of it. We left at 11 p.m. and came home around 10 the next morning.

Mother, who seems to have very little faith in me, is convinced we spent the night in a motel. She has been calling me a tramp ever since.

My father has forbidden me to see the boy again and says he will beat him black and blue if he shows up here again.

My boy friend has written me that he wants to talk to Dad and clear up the whole to-do. I told him Dad was plenty big—and fit to be tied.

Should I give him up? Should I let him talk to my folks? I'm worried sick.—CHRISTINE

DEAR CHRISTINE:

Well, what in the world were you up to from 11 p.m. until 10 a.m.? Seems to me you're the one who owes your folks an explanation. And I don't see how you can blame them for thinking

Style Copy Cats to Lead Dog's Life This Fall

By MARY ELLIS
I. P. T. Fashion Editor

NEW YORK — When it comes to fall fashions, most anything goes. Especially money.

Clothes for the coming season are fitted or full, long or short, understated or opulent, colorful or subdued (mostly subdued), trimmed or untrimmed.

are so lavishly expensive and so intricately engineered that they defy emulation—either by do-it-yourself seamstresses or popular-priced manufacturers.

As Liz Bernkopf, fashion editor of the Boston Globe, so aptly put it: "What will the simple folk do?"

Highly technical tailoring, welt seaming, insert pleats and godets, shapings from bias cuts, intricately cut shoulder and waistlines defy the amateur seamstress.

Many creations are so opulently decorated that they represent a king's ransom in jewels and furs.

Take Samuel Winston's beautifully lavish collection. As grand finale, five evening floor-length dazzlers appeared on the ramp at one time. The total cost: A cool $15,000!

NEVER were materials more lavish and exciting. For a new layered look, they are ridged, puffed, blistered, double woven, carved, crosswoven in one color over another.

Although there are deep colors in three favorite ranges—green from spruce to darkest evergreen, berry tones from strawberry to grape, plum and eggplant, also brown from amber to walnut—the emphasis is on subdued, sometimes lifeless, hues.

New styles have extravagant trimmings—or none at all. Beads and jewels are applied as if by a jeweler, usually paving an entire dress.

Every type of fur-bearing animal (except the copy cat) is represented. Sable, chinchilla, lynx, nutria, French seal, fox, leopard are used as collars, linings and bandings.

Lizard and kid leather are used as bindings on wool dresses.

This holds true for street, three-quarter and seven-eighths length coats in combination with either a dress or an overblouse and skirt.

There's no parting, for instance, of Monte Sano's clutch coat in brown zigzag tweed lined in the sheer wool plaid of its boatneck dress . . . nor, for evening, of his three-quarter black fox coat shimmering in long-haired glory over a matte black dress in sleek fantasia silk.

Capes and cape effects appear in most collections. A new sleeve treatment sets the sleeve forward and so low it appears to be an extension of a cape.

lights from collections:

Wilson Folmar, man behind the seams at Edward Abbott, tops a taffeta belted skirt with stretch fabric bodice . . . puts a 1930s swing skirt on a black dress with bloused bodice . . . does evening crepes that wear their own jeweled brooches.

Brannell puts band and bow around the hemline of a magenta suit . . . outlines the slim hem of a burgundy velvet evening gown with Russian sable.

Jane Derby, whose daring, dashing sequined evening pajamas of a couple seasons ago startled, then started, the fashion world into a dinner-pajama furore, this season has gay, frivolous "sultan" trousers of silk taffeta and, believe it or not, marquisette.

Ben Reig gives fashion "fur-ore" to a black cocktail dress by covering it with a solid glitter of sequined leopard spots.

Exclusive with Herbert Sondheim is glistening lame silk tweed—one bias-worked in plaid, the other in hound's tooth checks—worked into a simple after-five blouse dress.

With all this glamor, a demarcation between the haves and have-nots will be clearly defined this year by the apparel on any woman's back.

Margaret Lois Purcell Weds in Palos Verdes

Margaret Lois Purcell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Purcell of Portuguese Bend, became the bride of Clifford Stanley Foerster at a recent late afternoon ceremony in Neighborhood Church of Palos Verdes. Dr. Albert E. King officiated.

The new Mrs. Foerster, who was escorted to the altar by her father, wore a gown of white organza over taffeta with cap sleeves and Sabrina neckline. Her veil of illusion lace was attached to a tiara of pearls and sequins and her cascade bouquet was of white orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Michael Purcell, the bride's sister-in-law, of San Jose, formerly of Long Beach, was matron of honor.

Dr. Donald R. Foerster of Elsie, Ill., the bridegroom's brother, was best man.

ATTENDANTS were Patty Stratford, the bride's cousin; Delsie Finch, Palo Alto; Sue Alfson, Los Gatos; John Buchanan, San Antonio, Texas, the bridegroom's brother-in-law; and Clifford Schaefer, Beaumont.

The Purcell family has been associated with the Independent Press-Telegram for the past 13 years.

The newlyweds will reside in San Jose, where he is a senior associate engineer with IBM, and she is a senior at San Jose State College.

Following a reception in the church the couple departed for a wedding trip to Carmel and Lake Tahoe. The bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Foerster, are of San Antonio, Texas.

CURRY IS the color of this shaped front coat in diagonal wool from Fall-Winter collection 1961 of Originala. It has oval back, lap seams on sleeves creating "moving forward" look.

The Wild Waves Say...

By IOLA MASTERSON
I, P.T. Women's Editor

MEMBERS OF the Girl Watcher's Society who also are accredited helicopter pilots, take note. You are in luck, maybe. Along comes Monday, July 24, "no you outlive" and about 60 Nightingales will be draped in all manner of smart swim wear, around the pool at Lynn Barnes' home on Treasure Island, Naples.

Chairmaning the fun-run-swim luncheon party is Joann Timmons. Affair, in case you GWS pilots care to rendezvous above, begins at 11 a.m. and will continue until it's too late to go home and cook. Anyone for dinner out, dear?

WELL, WHISTLE Dixie and look who came bustin' in south of our north border. Ford (Cotton Pickin') Montgomery flew in from Oregon Tuesday at 7 p.m.—was gone again by 4:30 p.m. Wednesday. He's doing something terribly impressive these days like oversee construction of the new Hilton rising in Portland. Was at the Lafayette, I presume, on some kind of cotton pickin' hotel business.

A BUNCH of fellows who play golf together forsnok tees for hooks, clubs for rods last Wednesday and headed for blue water instead of green grass. It was a case of albacore fever plus an invitation from Lee Perry. Lee had promised the gang that the six top scorers would win a ride with him for a fishing party. Winning scores were posted just in time for this prime time. Boating an even dozen of the fine sportfish were John Goode, Jerry Fresonke, Earl Donaldson, Bill Polts, Phil Erdahl and Jim McBride.

CALIFORNIA living at its best, just like the ad men picture it, came alive at Long Beach Yacht Club Thursday during one of the popular ladies' day luncheon, swim and bridge dates. Betty Bennett behaved like all good chairmen are supposed to which accounts for the success of the day. Among members hostessing guests were Christine Wagner, Margaret Davis, Bea Hart, Mil Cameron, Mary Gillespie and Phyllis De Lance.

MUSIC STORE people, Doris and Dick Cross, have just published a new number named Roger Michael. He's an 8-pound, 11-ounce bundle of melody who began plunking on heart strings July 6. Mother and son returned home Tuesday from the hospital to join the rest of the chorus composed of two brothers and a sister.

ONE HUNDRED per cent uptown type elegant party was enjoyed by Cecelia and Dave Tallichet last Sunday. They were guests of movie producer William Wyler at a cocktail buffet garden party. Swish affair was in honor of Shirley McLaine and Audrey Hepburn co-stars of Wyler's new movie, "Children's Hour." Hoo, boy—some kids. Hope Cecelia had a tight grip on ol' Dave's elbow at all times.

ONE OF THE most unique parties ever hosted by good host Bill (William T. J.) Harris was the one he didn't attend. Could he help it if he had a Dodger date of long standing on the same night, wife, Norma, wanted to entertain for a musical festival? So while Norma's guest list grew to 14, Bill was rooting for dem bums with "Chet" Moore, "Scotty" Scott and reunioning with Ronnie Call (former LBER, now prez of Sav-On Drugs). Un-guests of the absent host were the Walter Olivers, Kenny Martinsons, Tom Russells, Elaine, Koo, Elizabeth and Steven Ilo, Mike and Mary Mecherikoff who are here for their annual seaside vacation from their home in Alhambra.

OFF IN A storm of good wishes (and let's hope it's the only kind they encounter) went Ginny and Rex Welch aboard the Mariposa Monday. They're headed for Tahiti to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary which is a nice way to go if your head is set on a celebration. A few of the many who had farewell cocktails aboard then stood dockside to watch the big liner head for sea were Marge Ferrie, "Bugsy" Crocker, Jan and Bill Flood (can't guarantee the spelling but they'll know whom I mean), Elva and Dick Lawson, Joan and Julie Bescos and Lois and "Cy" Young.

NO ONE, but no one, needs to miss out on pre-United Nations night festivities July 25 as International Beauty Congress competitions begin in earnest. Jessie Lee (Mrs. Donald) Malcolm is in charge of a gala no-host cocktail and buffet at Petroleum Club for all those planning to attend that night who are not otherwise party-involved.

Special guests at this festive gathering will be U.N. chapter members from other cities. This is the night it is hoped everyone will attend the pageant in a costume representing a foreign land of their choosing or particular background. Should be colorful. Shucks, should be downright brilliant.

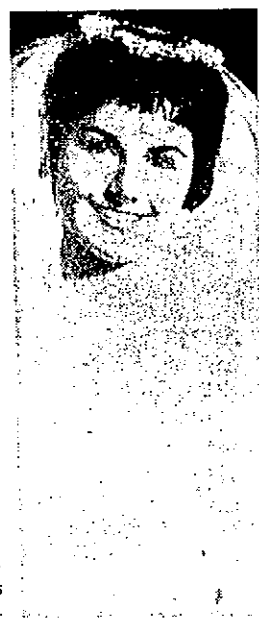

GUESS WE could call Virginia and Milo Meylink's shindig the other night a "Can't Wait" party. They invited 28 friends to join them at their new swimming pool, business, location in Garden Grove. Cocktails and Chinese buffet dinner added to the night. Assisting were Ginny and Bob Pierce, Mary and B. P. Johnston, Barbara and Norb Dean, Pat and Jim Torrey and Anna and Bob Gray. It wasn't billed as a swimming party—but two did, accidentally on purpose.

LITTLE CLUB FETES DAUGHTERS

Warm tradition in the Little Club for many years has been its annual summertime party for daughters, daughters-in-law. On Wednesday about 40 will motor by bus to Whittier to home of Mrs. Wilbur Robertson (seated, left) for chatting, swimming and picnicking. Hostess is daughter of Mrs. Milton McGrew (center), who will bring as a guest her other daughter, Mrs. William Plested (right), visitor from Kansas City, Mo. Standing (from left) are Mrs. John Miller and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Fred Miller. Mrs. James G. Craig is Little Club president, and Mrs. George L. Craig is in charge of picnic plans.—(Staff photo.)

GOP Has New Meaning --Grand Old Polynesia

About the closest you can get to Hawaii next Saturday, especially if you don't plan to leave town, will be Nada and Bill Davis' home, 1601 Hackett in La Marina Estates. They're providing the "beach" for Suburban Republican's posh luau.

In addition to exotic entertainment, fancy drinks and a catered island dinner, there'll be swimming and plenty of good, old democratic conversation. Ann and Rodney Titcom (she's ways and means), Doris and Dean Dana (she's handling reservations) and Jerry and Bob Hardey (he has program ideas under control) others assisting are President Bill Frambach and wife, Ann, and Val and Gene Richards.

It's entirely possible some big name GOP leaders will be there. DDE might even stop by. Not like fellow by the name of Dale Donald Edwards.

DEAR ABBY

Time Now to Confess, Pray

DEAR ABBY: You've got to help me out of this mess. I am a married man with a family. I was laid off my regular job, so I took a job in another state. I got mixed up with a young girl there. I didn't tell her I was married. I did a foolish thing and gave her an "engagement" ring. I must have been nuts.

She told me last Friday she is in a family way, and we have to get married right away. I can't marry her because I am already married. I know her father, and I'm afraid he will kill me. If I run out on her and am caught, will they put me in jail? My job pays good money, and I don't want to leave town. How do I get out of this mess?

- STUPID AND MESSED UP.

DEAR STUPID: I doubt if you'll be lucky enough to get into a nice, safe jail. Tell your girl friend about your wife. Then tell your wife about your girl friend. Then tell a lawyer about both of them. And pray.

DEAR ABBY: How do you stop a grown man of 24 from licking his plate? Yes, Abby. This husband of mine (and father of two children) just loves to lick his plate. He does it all in fun, and to show me what a good cook I am, but the children are going to start to imitate him. Any suggestions would be appreciated.

—DOTTIE.

DEAR DOTTIE: If your great big overgrown boy doesn't stop licking his plate—give HIM a licking.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter was asked to be a bridesmaid again. This will be the third time this year. Each time she had to buy her own dress and shoes, and get a present for the bride. Each time it has run us about $60.

Our daughter goes to college, and does not earn her own money. We have another child in college, and have to budget ourselves very closely to make ends meet.

Am I wrong in thinking that if the bride's mother wants her to have a big wedding, with bridesmaids, she should pay for the bridesmaids' dresses?

—CUTTING CORNERS.

DEAR CUTTING: The most common practice is for the bridesmaids to buy their own gowns. The other way is the exception, and not the rule. The bride's mother has an obligation to keep the dress modestly priced. If she wants super-duper bridesmaids' dresses, she should buy them. Generally, if a bridesmaid can't afford to buy her own dress more than once, she should decline the invitations.

What's bothering you? For a personal reply, write to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. Include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THREE HAMS—Eugene F. Shelby, ham No. 1, is calling his wife, Barbara, ham No. 2, to inquire if ham No. 3 (it's in the casserole) is about ready for dinner. We're really not being rude, but "ham" is the practically official title of an amateur radio operator—a person sufficiently interested in short-wave communication to dedicate a considerable bit of time to it. Shelby is using his car rig (transmitter and receiver) and Barbara receives at her rig, strategically placed right by kitchen range.

Shelby Quintet Adept at 'Hamming It Up'!

By BETTY WENTWORTH

We didn't have any trouble finding our destination. The Eugene Shelby home at 3110 Magnolia Ave. is surmounted by an out-sized antenna, typical characteristic of a house with a ham (amateur) radio operator inside.

Then in the yard we spotted novice operators WV6PCO, WV6PJT and WV6PLJ, better known as the Shelys' youngsters. Barbara Jean, Carolyn and Eugene, all proud owners of their novice ham licenses. (Using their call letters they have dubbed themselves Pretty Cute Operator, Purple Jug Thrower and Pink Iridescent Jaguar.)

Inside we met WV6PXS (Penniless Ex-Secretary), none other than Mrs. Shelby (Barbara), as well as W6RIS (Rats, Insects, Snakes!) head of the family and possessor of his advanced class ham license and also his first class commercial license, much coveted by the rest of the family.

IT ALL STARTED when Gene Shelby was a boy. Beginning strictly with junk parts, he put a tube here and a transistor there, finally getting his novice license when he was about 14. When the Shelys were wed in 1946 the bride realized that "a ham's wife lives a different life from other people. It's an all-consuming avocation," says vivacious Mrs. Shelby.

old enough to join them before embarking on getting her license. "It's so fascinating that it COULD make it possible to neglect your housework," she laughs.

About a year ago they started Step 1, memorizing the code and then building up speed until they could send and receive five words a minute, minimum the law requires. One then passes a written exam and gets his novice license, which mother and children all have now, valid for a year.

"They're working on their technicians' licenses, good for five years, and requiring 13 or more words a minute. Later comes the general and then advanced license."

"Dad's our best teacher," says Carolyn. "One day he broke open about five tubes to teach us what goes on inside. I still didn't understand it, but I'm studying."

Watching this close-knit family in action we'll wager on the trip coming true. One last line from Barbara. "I can't imagine how people ever get bored. There's so much to do I don't know how we'll ever fit it all in," she last almost wistfully.

RADIO HAMS have field days several times a year when they practice all types of communication, code, oral or radio teletype. This would be of immeasurable value in case of disaster as their equipment and power are portable.

Those intrigued with the mysteries of "hamming it up" can join this group which meets the first Friday of every month at the Signal Hill Police Station. The club sponsors twice weekly classes at Belmont Shore Fire Station Civil Defense headquarters.

Then there's the car rig (pictured), which Shelby installed, and a third rig at their mountain cabin at Crestline. "We're in almost a forest of antennae. We have one in an 80-foot Ponderosa pine with a 34 element beam which we're currently experimenting with. There are always new fields to explore," states Shelby.

Local Pair Recites Vows

Arnold Chapel at Bethany Baptist Church was the setting for the recent wedding of Dorothy Louise Fraser and Earl A. Miller Jr.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Milton Fraser, 1612 Orizaba Ave., was graduated from Wilson High School and attended Long Beach City and State Colleges.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl A. Miller of 5115 Walton St., was graduated from Poly High School and served two years with the U. S. Army in Germany.

Elaine Passero attended the bride, who was gownned in a white lace wedding dress, as maid of honor. Jeannine Conroy and Beverly Ryan, the bride's cousins, were bridesmaids.

BRUCE WATSON was best man and Kenneth Miller and William Miller, the bridegroom's twin brothers, were ushers.

The newlyweds are now at home in Long Beach following their honeymoon in Palm Springs and Idyllwild.

FIVE HAMS—and proud of it—are members of Shelby family. Barbara Jean, 10 (left), is on the microphone; Mrs. Shelby is at telephone delivering message received on rig from another ham; Carolyn, 12, is tuning transmitter; and Eugene, almost 13, is filling out log. Father? Patiently waiting his turn at what used to be his rig before rest of his family was licensed.—(Staff photos by Chuck Sundquist.)

No Need for Players to Save King

"God save the king" is a fine motto for England, but there is no reason why bridge players should abide by it.

West opened the queen of hearts against South's three no-trump contract and East made no effort to save his king. He put it right on his partner's queen. Hearts were continued and while South held off until the third lead it did him no good. West's suit was established while he still held the ace of diamonds and South had to go down. Actually, he went down two because he did not cash his eight top tricks.

FIVE CLUBS is a cinch against any lead. In fact, six clubs makes against any opening but a heart.

The hand is a hard one to bid, but South should have kept his side out of the no-trump trap by bidding three hearts rather than three no-trump.

West would probably have doubled that for a lead and the double would surely have kept North and South out of no-trump. Even without a double by West it is likely that North would have gone to four clubs over the three-heart bid whereupon South would have closed the bidding at five.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

At Helm of Bakery Sales

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L. P. T. Food Editor

They call him "Whitey." The reason for which is problematical. Perhaps it stems from the fact that he—with the ready assistance of his "also-eight-year-old" pal—painted his dad's brand new, black shiny Patterson sedan a house-paint white.

Ellsworth V. (Whitey) Shaw STILL lived to grow up and become district sales manager of Helms Bakeries Co.

Norfolk, Neb., kept him interested until the age of four, when he joined his parents on a trip to California. They liked what they saw, and stayed. In 1932 his dad's business brought them to Long Beach, and Shaw enrolled in Poly High, continuing on through City College.

As editor of "Hi-Life," the Poly paper, he weathered the earthquake. And although the building crumbled, he never missed an issue. He simply moved his desk and "thunder" out in front of the rubble and continued publishing.

UPON graduation from City College, he went to work in the laboratories of Shell Oil Co., where he remained until joining the Air Force in World War II. The next four years he served as a pilot instructor. He still wears the bars of a captain in the Air Reserves.

Accustomed to the out-of-doors, and liking it, he joined the Helms Bakeries Co. 15 years ago as salesman. A year later he became assistant supervisor, and three years after that he was promoted to sales manager of — to quote him — "the largest house-to-house bakery in the world." Its motto is "Fresh Daily at Your Door."

Long Beach boasts 87 routes—2,000 homes in each route, with each Helmsman servicing 300 customers per day. You'll be interested to know that each salesman owns his own coach and buys his own goods. He owns his own whistle, too. . . . and can eat all he wants.

HELM'S Bakeries, the 29-year-old company, was started in California in 1932, at the time of the Olympics. It contracted to furnish bread to the contestants. . . . and has continued to do so ever since, whether the games be held in Timbuktu or Tokyo. For years it sent the bread . . . today, it sends the recipes.

A member of Elks Lodge 888, Shaw belongs to the Meadowlark Men's Club, where he shoots a cool 80 on the greens. Fishing, too, lures him more often than not; while on the howling alley his average helped immeasurably in the Long Beach Baking League winning the championship this past season.

His recipe arrived nameless . . . but good. We'll call it "The Helmsman's Special."

HELM'SMAN'S SPECIAL
6 eggs, beaten
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped green onion
1 cup finely chopped ham
½ tsp. salt and pepper
Combine all ingredients and mix. Drop large spoonful onto hot oiled griddle. Brown on both sides. Serve on hot buttered buns.

HAVE YOUR OWN HOME by summer! You will find the home of your dreams in "Homes for Sale" in Classified, the town's marketplace of available property.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA ..... JULY 16, 1961

OUR COVER

Hail the Queen! Stella Marquez, chosen the most beautiful girl in the world in the Long Beach International Beauty Congress last year, returns to reign again when the competition to choose a new queen begins Thursday. Miss Marquez rejected film and TV offers last year to return to her home and become an "ambassador" for her native Colombia. In this capacity she recently completed a tour through Europe, South America and the Far East. She speaks English, Italian and some French besides her native Spanish. She has poise and personality, and will make a gracious queen for the beauty event. She has dark brown eyes and hair, and, in case you might have forgotten statistics, she is 5 feet 7, weighs 126 pounds and measures 37½-24½-37½.

NEXT WEEK

After 40 hard and often bitter years of struggle in Congress, Hawaii achieved statehood March 18, 1959. What effect has this had on the people and the economy of the Aloha State? What about taxes and politics? Has statehood had any effect on racial thinking in this melting pot? Southland has the answers for you next week in a story titled, "The Poi State Runneth Over."

Carol Fisher and puppet, "French Fry," who helped her conduct TV program to teach French in school series.

A Puppet's Challenge

By Irma McCall

SAY "FRENCH FRY" to Carol Fisher, attractive young schoolmarm at Lowell Elementary in Long Beach, and watch her smile. Last year in Columbus, Ohio, Carol and French Fry co-starred in a TV hit loved by 4,000 kids with a yen to learn conversational French. In a lively contest the children named the little gray chenille terrier — not Fido, Spot, or even Fifi — but French Fry, the appealing puppet who struggled with them to "parlez" a foreign language.

The mischievous dog enjoyed a better than average IQ, for after a semester of 15-minute lessons three times a week, he could almost chat with De Gaulle. Eager fifth graders trooped into classrooms before school hours to absorb basic knowledge of the French language and a bit of French culture. Bright students need challenge, and learning a new tongue is the answer for some.

Enchanted future Bachelors, Masters, and Ph.D.'s sang songs from "South Pacific," played Simple Simon and "Qui Sait" (Who Knows?), competed in quizzes sans payola, worked up skits for TV. One peppy production featured a Halloween witch who lost her black "chat" (well, then cat). During the year lucky performers from each class entertained and instructed the TV audience with songs and plays.

VISUAL AIDS included Carol-drawn and commercial pictures. It's easier to remember chapeau, biftek, and garcon after seeing the image.

Carol discovered an aptitude for foreign languages in high school and at Ohio State University. Unlike Long Beach students who favor Spanish, Carol was intrigued by French. After graduation she added the practical to the academic by teaching in the Army Dependents' School in Orleans, France.

For a never-to-be-forgotten year she gloried in the enchantment of Europe. Orleans lies in medieval chateaux country, and Carol's choice was Chambord, in night illumination a real fairy castle. She enjoyed restaurant dining with French escorts.

Carol chose a Simca convertible she named "L'Ange Blanche" (White Angel) for transportation. With a girl friend she traveled on every scrap of vacation, building memories of skiing at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, reliving the Renaissance in Florence and Naples, exploring the Hiedelberg campus, thrilling over "Il Trovatore" at La Scala, munching smorgashbord delicacies in Copenhagen.

EN ROUTE HOME Carol visited the British Isles, especially Ireland, where distant relatives living in a thatched cottages tempted her with soda bread and raspberry wine.

"When I returned to Columbus I wanted to do something different," declared Carol. "I asked the superintendent of schools if I could start a TV program to teach conversational French. To my surprise he OK'd the idea, and it was a real challenge because I had to make up a course of study. I was seldom more than two weeks ahead of the wolf. The puppet's voice was Bob Reddy who knew no French at the beginning, so he made the same mistakes as the kids, and I could correct him."

Asked how she happens to be teaching in Long Beach, Carol said, "The Rose Bowl game in 1959 did it! I saw Long Beach and loved it, and I applied by letter..."

If California schools can use French Fry, Carol is ready and eager.

Conservation carried on for years by Theodore Payne will be turned over to a foundation bearing his name.

By Anna Mae Murray

WHEN THE Theodore Payne Wildlife Sanctuary was dedicated early this year, Los Angeles County paid tribute to California's "grand old man of horticulture," 89-year-old Theodore Payne. The 320-acre site near Llano in Antelope Valley will be left in its natural state, an ever-growing memorial to the man who has been preaching and practicing wild life conservation in southern California for almost 70 years.

"What impressed me most when I came to the state," he said, "was the miles and miles of wild flowers. Suddenly they were disappearing from the landscape, plows were turning them under. Now bulldozers are making subdivisions and industrial sites out of the fields, the citrus groves and the walnuts. Time is running out but it still isn't too late to try to save for posterity some of the wild beauty that was here when the padres came."

PAYNE WAS born in England in 1872 and came to Los Angeles as a trained nurseryman, seedsman, landscaper and exhibitor in 1893. For a few days he picked apricots at $1.50 a day, then obtained a position as gardener to Madame Helena Modjeska, the famous Polish actress, at her estate "Forest of Arden" in Santiago Canyon. "It was there in the Santa Ana Mountains that I first became interested in the wild flowers of California," he said.

He joined what is now the Germain Seed Co. a few years later. Representing them on a trip to Europe he sold 40 thousand dried pampas plumes. The firm made him manager in 1903.

Payne has owned and operated large general nurseries in the Los Angeles area for 58 years. In order to awaken a greater interest in the native flora he began growing native trees, plants and flowers. During the "Eucalyptus boom" around 1907 he shipped great quantities of the seed to many parts of the world. Selling wild flower seeds met with very little success until he planted some vacant lots in Hollywood and Pasadena. Their brilliant displays aroused public interest. He wrote articles, lectured all over southern California. He pleaded that areas be set aside so that the generations to come might enjoy the wild plant life of the mountains, the inland valleys, the seashore, the deserts and the sand dunes, the chaparral belt, the salt marshes. Garden Clubs became interested in the conservation movement; laws were passed to protect the wild flowers. Payne's artistry combined with his enthusiasm for using native materials brought him many landscaping contracts. What started out as a hobby became his business.

PAYNE'S horticultural achievements have been many. He has put into circulation between 400 and 500 native trees, shrubs and flowers, shipping all over the world. He has collaborated with the Botanic Gardens in Claremont, Santa Barbara and La Canada ever since their inception, growing large portions of the native plant material used in them. He laid out and planted the five-acre "Wild Garden" in Exposition Park. During a Mediterranean fruit fly scare he collaborated with the state for the control of the pest. Many Californians prominent in the fields of horticulture received their early training in his establishment. (Continued on Page 23.)

Fun on Catalina--1900

By Maymie R. Krythe

IN THE 1890s and at the turn of the century, several small newspapers at Avalon—including the Catalina Jew Fish, The Avalon Crusoe, and The Wireless—did their best to boost their island. The editors extolled the climate, the scenery, and the recreational facilities; and today these old newspapers give us a good idea of how visitors there amused themselves.

Ads such as the following appeared in the Long Beach Press to attract people to the island:

THE GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME
Don't let it slip away without a TRIP TO CATALINA

This is the most prosperous season in its history.

Can you afford to deny yourself the pleasure of this wonderful trip through the busy harbor, past the new government breakwater, and over 30 miles of the grand old ocean to a magic island which, by the genius of man and nature, has been made a paradise for the pleasure-seeker?

THE VESTIBULED CATALINA FLYERS OF THE SALT LAKE ROUTE

Take you to the boat's side each day at 9:18 a. m., 2:23 p. m. Sunday you can spend the afternoon on the island and return in the evening.

WHAT MORE WILL $2.25 DO IN THE GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME?

To reach Catalina, Southland residents went by train to Wilmington to board steamers, the Falcon or the Hermosa. (The Hermosa later was used as a fishing vessel and was heavily damaged by fire off Costa Rica. The bulk towed back to the harbor and the deckhouse and after portion were removed and installed on W. Anaheim St. for use as a night club. Later the facility was used for a time as a union headquarters.)

On reaching Avalon, some people stayed in the tent colony, others in hotels. Several were so impressed that they bought lots—from $150 to $350—to build summer homes. One reporter asked, "Where can be found better prosperity?" However, he admitted Avalon was no metropolis, but declared it was improving each year. By this time, a road grader had been brought over to complete the stage road to the Isthmus.

"The country traversed by this road is very rugged and requires a great deal of grading and filling to make it passable," a contemporary wrote.

In the Catalina Jew Fish, the Metropole Hotel advertisement stated that it was under new management; the service was improved, and the rates reduced. Since its enlargement, the dining room could serve 200 at one time. Room and board cost $2.50 a day; there were special weekly rates; Sunday dinners were 50 cents; and board alone, $7 a week. Fish was served at every meal.

AT THE METROPOLE, boats and carriages could be hired; fishing lines and rods were free to guests; often there were social gatherings with women visitors entertaining with vocal and instrumental music. A ball was scheduled each Saturday evening. By 1900, the Metropole was the center of the resort life, and guests came from all over California, from states as far away as Massachusetts and Connecticut, and even from abroad. One reporter wrote:

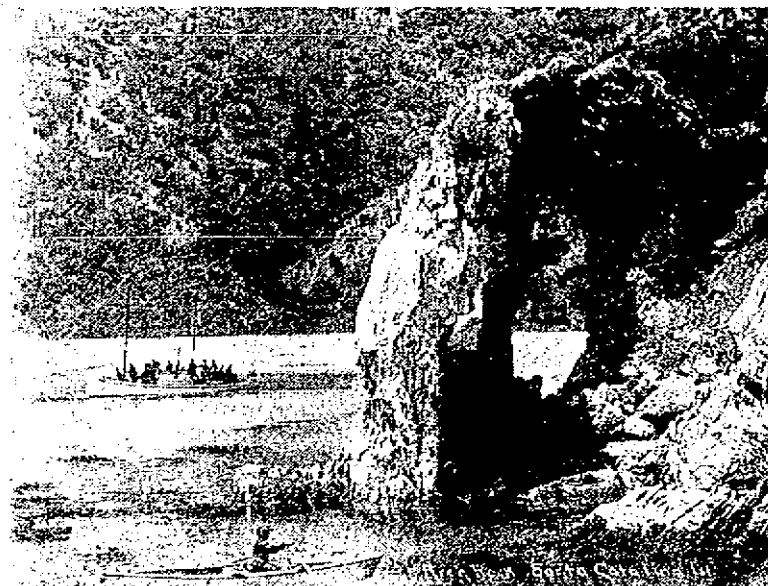

"The hotel continues to be well patronized, and all seem more than satisfied; the Sunday fish dinner seems very popular and is fast getting the house a good name; the Los Angeles folk in particular appreciating fish that are cooked so well, and are so fresh from the sea. The trouble is, the guests eat so much now, though."

Not far from the Metropole was an aquarium with unusual fish which many liked to visit. Moonlight walks along the beach were popular. On occasional Sunday evenings there were song services at the beach, or sacred concerts by visiting musicians at the pavilion. Bathing, swimming and sailing were other pastimes; and on one Admission Steamship travel to Catalina had developed by the 1890s. Above, Avalon scene with SS Hermosa at pier. The SS Falcon also plied channel waters.

Catalina's scenic beauties have intrigued visitors for generations. This is Arch Rock, photograph taken in 1905. Island waters abound in fish.

New environment for learning on an international level, this ocean liner is being converted into The University of the Seven Seas.

Round the World College

By Sylvia Jacobs

A NEW DEPARTURE in education, originating in the Southland but of international significance, has as its goal a better understanding of the world, its people and its problems, by college students of today who will have to deal with those problems tomorrow.

The literal departure will be from an east coast port, possibly the nation's capital, and is scheduled for September 1962, when students from the United States and other countries will walk up the gangplank of an ocean liner on their way to school. The ship has been chartered by The University of the Seven Seas, a non-profit California corporation, from Zim Lines.

Some 122 days later and 15 credits further along toward their degrees, the students of this unique university will disembark at either San Diego or Long Beach, whichever port has suitable berthing available, after having circumnavigated the globe. Remaining there during the Christmas holidays, the floating college will then start across the Pacific, in the opposite direction for the second semester's voyage.

DR. JOHN LOUNSBURY, who will be remembered by thousands of alumni of Long Beach City College and other Long Beach schools, has been appointed dean-director. He will head, to quote the sponsors, "the finest faculty ever brought together for one concentrated purpose, offering a challenge to advanced students to study in their chosen fields under the direction of international authorities."

Dr. Lounsbury's positions in Long Beach included principal of Burnett School in 1922, principal of the former Edison Junior High School and first principal of Woodrow Wilson High School when it opened in 1926. He was instrumental in securing a campus from Montana Land Co. for Long Beach City College and became the school's first president. He helped to plan and build the institution. He left Long Beach in 1942 and retired as president of San Bernardino Valley College in 1958. The following year he served as a Fulbright lecturer in Ankara, Turkey.

William T. Hughes, prominent Whittier businessman and president of the board of trustees, has recently returned from Japan, where he announced the project during the convention of Rotary International. Dr. E. Ray Nichols Jr., executive director, recently left for New York to make final arrangements for port facilities.

Courses of study scheduled range from astronomy, architecture and article writing, to oceanography, orchestral conducting and oriental drama. Besides many courses for which the students will get credit from the universities they previously attended, there will be non-credit courses such as conversational Japanese, Chinese and Hindustani designed to help them understand the people of the numerous foreign ports they will visit. Space forbids listing the complete curriculum and itinerary here, but anyone interested may write for it to Box 71, Whittier, Calif. Clubs and organizations who would like to have a speaker on the

Dr. John Lounsbury, who will be remembered by many alumni of City College, other Long Beach schools, will be dean-director of the new seagoing university.

University of the Seven Seas may write to the same address.

THE SHIPBOARD environment is expected to provide an ideal opportunity for study, free of shore-side distractions and with the faculty readily available for personal consultation. Students will keep fit with a varied program of physical exercise, and attend worship workshops conducted by chaplains of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths. Only students in their junior or senior year or post-graduate students will be accepted. Enrollments have already been received from various states and several foreign countries.

In the past, parents of college students had to go to additional expense in order to provide the additional educational advantages of extensive travel, and comparatively few could afford it. But a semester aboard the University of the Seven Seas will cost no more than room, board and tuition at some dry-land universities. Considerable saving can be made because the ship is chartered during the months of minimum tourist travel only. A semester's tuition under an outstanding faculty, plus air-conditioned quarters, plus an exotic cuisine, plus the trip of a lifetime, will cost $2,500, including everything except the student's transportation between his home and the ports of embarkation and his personal expenses.

All endowments to the University of the Seven Seas will go toward scholarships for promising U. S. or foreign students, as the donor may designate, rather than into a campus and ivy-covered buildings. Accommodating students without building new classrooms is a significant accomplishment in these days of booming college population. Educators predict that college enrollment will increase

Box Office Chemistry

MOVIE-GOERS may not realize it, but a good film producer sometimes has to major in chemistry to come up with a hit. Equations may vary, but the most successful pictures have often been those in which two stars were united to produce sparks at the box office. Herewith Leo the Lion, an old hand at chemical equations, presents some top combinations.

Tracy and Hepburn formed another team that flashed across the Hollywood horizon in one success after another, winning critical and public praise.

Shown in a scene from their peak success, "Mrs. Miniver," Garson and Pidgeon began their upward climb together in "Blossoms in the Dust."

Gable and Leigh teamed only once but they worked movie magic. "Gone With the Wind" was the vehicle and history was made in film romance.

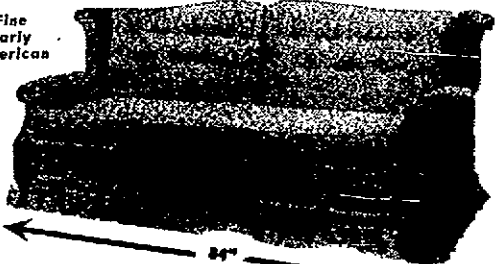

Latest team slated to make box office music together finds Dean Martin, Susan Hayward in loving mood in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's forthcoming "Ada."

Pony Heaven on a Hillside

By Estelle St. George

SEVERAL HOURS each day, seven days a week, Andrew Petersen keeps happy with his hobby of raising Shetland ponies at his home at 7 Acacia, Rolling Hills.

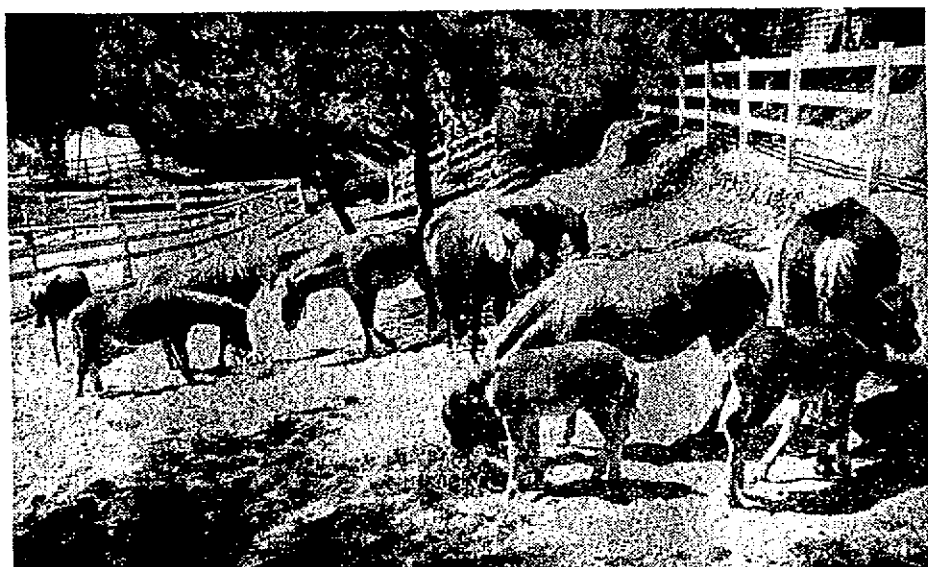

Passersby enjoy the hobby, too. They find the setting—a two and a half acre woodland—a picturesque and pleasing one with the baby ponies cavorting about under the watchful eyes of their diminutive mothers.

Topper, a middle-aged show pony, spends much of his time on the front lawn which he keeps well mowed. Ask Topper his age and he will paw the ground the correct number of times—only one of his many talents.

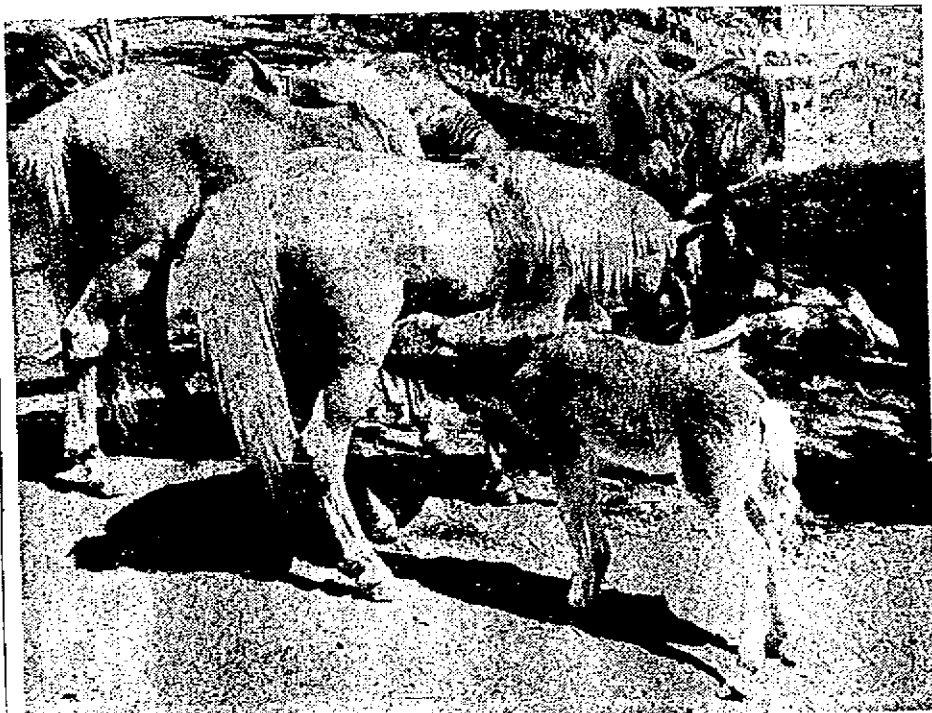

On special days the ponies appear in parades, proudly drawing carts or chariots which are designed and made by Petersen.

Ponies are Andrew Petersen's hobby, but this one appears too young yet to appreciate true value of hay.

However, life requires a certain amount of conformity and young tastes must come around to vegetation as a way of sustenance. Youngster samples mother's breakfast.

gracious living. In the living room an off-white couch faces antiqued, mirror-topped coffee tables in shades of pink and blue. The fireplace is off-white brick.

At one side of the couch a low chest is topped with a tall table lamp. In an alcove at the left rear of the couch, a green tree grows in a floor planter. An occasional chair and table are nearby.

At the other end of the large living room is a curved couch facing a marble-topped table. The couch is covered with a blue, pink, and green fabric—tones subtly blended into one.

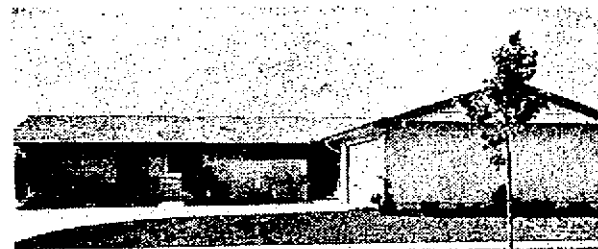

AT THE REAR of the living room is a tropic room, a recent addition. At a glance, the room appears to be glass enclosed. Close inspection, however, reveals that the large fitted panels which form the walls (over the screens) are made of a clear, plastic material that is transparent, durable and attractive. Backing the green screens, the walls lend an exciting touch of color. Individual panels can be removed for ventilation purposes if desired. The room has the restful quality of a green sea or pool. Pink wrought iron furniture complements the walls and gives a luxury note to the area.

The dining room, adjoining the living room is separated from the kitchen by a low, sit-down dining bar. Handsome lamps are hung from the ceiling. Paper on the walls resembles an expensive fabric with a gold embossed design. Attention is called to

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

Home Grows with Family, Income

RECONCILING the limited present with the promising future is one of the most difficult tasks facing a family planning to build a home.

The problem can often be stated in terms like these: If we build the house we can afford now, we're bound to have to move in four to six years when we have more children and (hopefully) more money.

Usually there are only two

apparent solutions. Either a small house now and pray for a resale price good enough to make possible the purchase of a bigger home; or continue to rent and try to save enough to finance the purchase of a completely adequate home.

THE FIRST alternative means there is a certainty the family will eventually be uprooted and moved to a new neighborhood; the second assumes the somewhat shaky premise that a growing family today actually can save large amounts of money.

In House of the Week B-52 Architect Rudolph Matern presents a third alternative: Build now and expand the house as family and income increase.

The plan is designed to grow and grow and grow—but not like Topsy. It starts out as a two-bedroom bungalow. Three expansion stages later it is a gracious four-bedroom ranch with 2 1/2 baths, luxurious rear porch and attached garage. The architect's pre-planning insures that the additions can be made at minimum cost, without disturbing the main living pattern.

THE BASIC HOUSE has 1,314 square feet of living area. Because of its simple rectangular shape and open planning construction is economical. In the first stage of expansion, a third bedroom and private bath are added at the rear to make the total 1,554 square feet. When the mudroom and fourth bedroom are added to the left of the kitchen under the latter stages of the second expansion, total living area becomes 1,797 square feet. The garage is a final addition.

Thus design ingenuity allows for many different circumstances of family size and budget limitations. Of course, if budget is not a consideration, the entire house could be built at the outset.

THE PLANNED addition at the left side also offers several possibilities, depending on funds available. It could first be a porch, then a garage could be added, and finally the porch could be finished as a fourth bedroom or shop, with bathroom, mudroom and laundry facilities.

A large, attractive foyer allows effortless, trouble-free circulation in the original section of the house. The living and dining rooms combine to form a spacious open area more than 32 feet long. The kitchen and family room make up another dramatically spacious area — 23 feet 4 inches in total length. Two big fireplaces — one serving the living room the other the family room—help to separate the two main areas.

LENGTH and a low roof pitch give B-52 a modern ground-hugging look. Lattice work, shutters and wood columns add a distinctive colonial atmosphere.

The plan for the garage addition includes a storage room and closet, providing generously for outdoor work and play equipment. There is direct access to the garage and storage area from the covered rear porch for added convenience.

To obtain plans, address Building Editor, Independent Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif., enclose 50 cents and request House of the Week Study Plan, Design B-52.

Wife, mother, mayor, college faculty member—busy woman is Seal Beach's Mayor Gibbs.

She Leads 3 Lives

By Mary Barry

TODAY's American home-maker plays many parts as she assumes her role of wife and mother. Such a typical homemaker is Mrs. Norma Brandel Gibbs who assumes not only the role of wife and mother, but also of college faculty member and mayor of Seal Beach to boot!

Many years ago Mrs. Gibbs found that the more she did, the more she could do. She learned early to be concerned with only the important things, and let trivialities dissolve into thin air.

ARCHITECT'S Sketchbook

Four methods of improving the front entrance of a home.

TODAY'S PROBLEM: What can be done to improve the outside appearance of an undistinguished home to give it some individual architectural character?

ARCHITECT HERMAN H. YORK of Jamaica, N.Y., answers:

One of the exterior elements a good architect concentrates on is the entrance. A great deal of ingenuity and beauty elsewhere in a home design can go to waste if the entrance itself is left uninteresting. Conversely, a lack of distinction elsewhere can be overcome to a degree with a warm, impressive entrance-way.

Shown in the illustration are four different designs which can be achieved with varying degrees of effort from a plain undecorated front entrance.

Ideally, an entrance should include some protection from the weather. Two of the four designs provide a projecting roof. To make such a roof structurally sound, it must be firmly anchored to the house studs. The other two designs require no disturbance of original siding. The desired effect is achieved with simple framing and stock mouldings.

To order, specify Entrance Designs S-12, send name and address and 50 cents to Building Editor, Independent Press-Telegram, 6th & Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

For Patio Fashion and Function

ANOTHER in a grouping of home projects, the table and benches illustrated (right) are fine furniture for any patio—and just because it's outdoor furniture, it doesn't need to be rough-and-ready or makeshift.

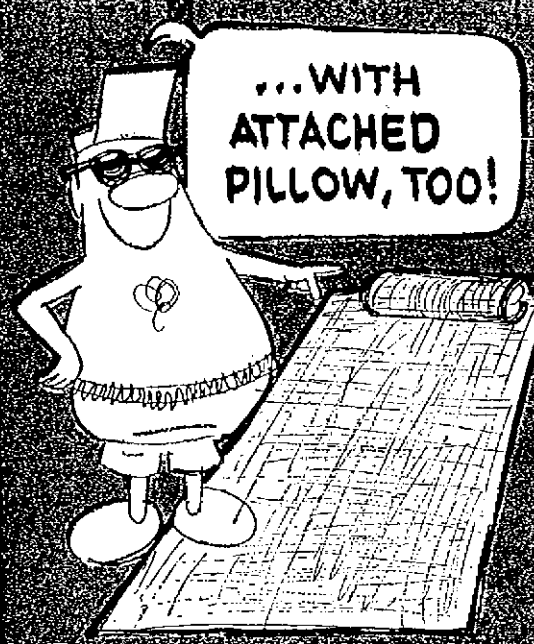

The dining table and benches are designed to fit into any sort of a patio you might have. And what is more, besides being good looking it's designed to withstand all sorts of outdoor weather. The table top is more than four feet in diameter (you may make it larger if you wish) and easily seats eight people; two on each bench.

Any do-it-yourselfer can make this fine set by using a full-sized pattern together with detailed instructions and illustrations.

For circular table and benches pattern No. 239 send name and address and $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Long Beach, Independent Press-Telegram Pattern Dept., P. O. Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

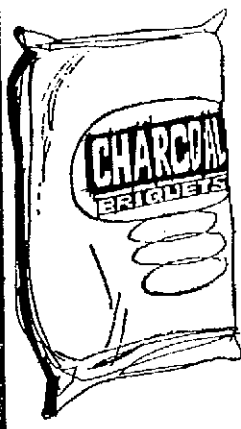

Marilee Jones of NBC-TV shows patio table and benches that are good looking, weather resistant and easily made.

La Reina Rule

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you history on WINTER and WINTERS—K.W., D.W., W.W., Long Beach; E.M., Nampa, Idaho; J.H., Fullerton. WINTER and WINTERS (Son of Winter) refer back to an English forebear who was baptized "Winter" because of his birth in mid-winter. In ancient English records of A.D. 858 I was delighted to locate two brothers listed, called Sumar (Summer) and Winter. Both the Winter and Winters coat-of-arms have a silver stripe across the center of a shield covered with checkered black and gold squares. John Winter, married in Devonshire, England, in 1609, was a settler of Richmond's Island, Maine, about 1635.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you data on NICKOLAI and NICKOLEY.—J. N., Mrs. L. N., Long Beach.

J. N., L. N.: NICKOLAI and NICKOLEY are from the Slavic "Nikolai," a Russian and Polish baptismal name that became a surname many generations ago. The ancestor was christened in honor of St. Nicholas, patron saint of old Russia, whose name meant "victorious-army." The Nickolai coat-of-arms, granted in medieval Livonia, is a shield colored gold on the upper half, blue on the lower half, with no emblems on it.

DEAR MISS RULE: May I have data on KUHN.—F.K., Artesia.

F.K.: KUHN is from the ancient German warrior named Kuoni, a flattering characterization of "bold, keen, experienced one." Another source, "Konig," meaning "king," altered to Kunne, then Kuhn, was applied first to a man who played the part of a king in village religious pageants. The Kuhn coat-of-arms from Bavaria has a gold lion on a silver background for the upper half of the shield, and a silver horse on blue as the lower half.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you genealogy on McNELIS.—Mrs. J. M., Long Beach.

J. M.: McNELIS is a modern form of the Gaelic Irish clan name MacNiallghuis. This proud lineage had as their forebear a battling warrior called Niallghus whose name translates as "Winner's choice." The early Gaelic clan name was changed to MacNellis, McNelis and Nealis in the 15th century by descendants who lived in north Irish Ulster.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you analyze SILVA.—Mrs. R.C., Westminster; Mrs. N., Mrs. F.S., Long Beach.

R.C., N., F.S.: SILVA is shortened from the Portuguese surname De Silva. The source was the ancient word "Selva" meaning "from the forest." Portugal had few forests, so that an ancestor from a "wooded" area was (Continued on Page 24) pitches in around the house—including father," says Mrs. Gibbs. "The two oldest children are girls, Cathy 10, and Barbara 5, who are members of a Brownie troop so they have learned to be a big help with the housework. They love their new sister Norma Jean, and are an aid in keeping her and their 2-year-old brother, David, amused."

ANOTHER ROLE Mrs. Gibbs plays is that of an assistant professor in psychology and counselor at Long Beach State College. She came to California from Chicago in 1957 primarily to teach at LBSC, a graduate of 3 universities, the last of which was the University of Illinois where she earned her master degree.

"I have always been interested in people and their problems," says Mrs. Gibbs, "so this field was a natural for me."

It was when Mrs. Gibbs was a senior at Northwestern University that she found she had tuberculosis, and was told she probably wouldn't reach the age of 30. Instead of resigning herself to her fate, she fought the battle for her health. Her stay in a sanitarium was less than a year, and after taking it easy for two more years, she was completely recovered. During this period she learned to make every day count, and it is this thought that still guides her life.

Because of this philosophy of life she was led to her third role as mayor of Seal Beach. "As a child growing up in Illinois I was taught we should do what we could at home and at school, and that if we didn't do our part we had no right to complain," she said. "It just follows then that we should all take part in our community affairs."

ONE OF HER first acts after taking office as mayor was the appointment of a city manager who takes care of all the city's administrative problems leaving Mrs. Gibbs the job of setting policies, and acting as the city's official representative and hostess. In California there are just six other women who fill the mayor's job.

Even though it seems Her Honor Norma Gibbs already has a full agenda, she says: "For relaxation I like to play the piano or take a dip in the ocean." Thus by being unconcerned with non-essentials she can always make time for what she really wants to do.

Days Daze You

American tourists find it's a tough proposition to keep track of the day in Brazil. Only two days have names: Saturday and Sunday. The rest are known as the second, third, fourth, fifth days, respectively. No sensible vacationist wants to keep track of time but when reconfirming his jet seat home it can be confusing when the Pan Am ticket clerk says: "Your flight leaves on the fourth day."

Foundation

Dedication of a wildlife sanctuary early this year paid honor to horticulturist Theodore Payne (above).

For the past 20 years he has limited his business to an acre fronting on Los Feliz Blvd., the Theodore Payne Native Plant Nursery, growing native plants exclusively. His beautifully illustrated catalog is a wild-garden guide, an "encyclopedia" of the native flora of the state.

"But I'm getting too old for this work," he said, sadly, "so I'm turning over everything I have to the Theodore Payne Foundation for Wild Flowers and Native Plants. I will carry on in an advisory capacity and the foundation offices will be here until a permanent location is selected."

THE FOUNDATION, incorporated as a non-profit organization in the state, will carry on his work in conservation and in popularizing native plants. The necessary capital for the initial operation will be procured through the sale of tax-deductible memberships.

"There are more plants native to California than to any other state," Payne said. "They are needed for landscaping the great Freeway systems of the state, for the grounds of public and industrial buildings, for campuses and home gardens. They are needed for erosion control, for use in water conservation. The demand is great but very little is available commercially."

The Foundation will grow these plants, making them available to everyone at reasonable prices, the proceeds to go back into the Foundation.

Theodore Payne has sold his last acre. One day soon Payne's weathered little board-and-batten office will be gone from Los Feliz, with it his tiny potting shed, the cans of Fremontia, Carpinteria, Ceanothus — the worn bench under the Catalina cherry. But his name will live and his work will go on.

Busy Trinidad

Trinidad, which has experienced a steady growth in tourism in recent years, is busy expanding its tourist plant, according to the Trinidad and Tobago Tourist Board.

The island's Industrial Development Corp. plans to spend $4,200,000 this year for expansion. Most of this will be used for hotel development.

The new Trinidad Hilton Hotel, slated to open sometime next season, will get some $3,500,000 for construction work this year.

Your Name

 noted for his unique place of residence and was named for for it. The De Silva coat-of-arms has a group of six golden coins placed between three black bears on a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain DYE. — Mrs. B. D., Norwalk; W. D., Mrs. I. D., Long Beach.

B. D., W. D., I. D.: DYE began in 13th century Britain as a nickname taken from the first two letters of the baptismal name Dionysus meaning "boisterous one." The Dye coat-of-arms from Yorkshire has a black stripe below three black spur-rowels on a silver shield. Dye descendants were registered in New Jersey as early as 1715.

DEAR MISS RULE: Have you the source of HALBERT? — R. L., Artesia.

R. L.: HALBERT, French in origin, is from "Hari-Bert," a warrior name indicating "boldest in the army." Halbert descendants frequently used the softened form of this name, Haubert. The family coat-of-arms is a shield divided into four quarters, two with a gold anchor on a black background and two with a silver cross below a silver crescent on red.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give genealogy on DODGE. — K.D., Long Beach; V.H., Garden Grove.

K.D., V.H.: DODGE has been handed down for 700 years from an ancestor called "Dodge," one of many early English nicknames taken from Rodger, a warrior title meaning "famous spearman." Lancashire records of 1332 list Henry Rogge-son (Dodge-son.) The unusual Dodge coat-of-arms from Suffolk is a shield covered with six alternating gold and black horizontal stripes. Embazoned over the stripes is a silver eye, weeping golden tears, placed on a vertical red stripe down the center of the shield. Salem, Mass., historical listings note John Dodge as a home owner in 1661.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly explain COLANGELO. — M.C., Long Beach.

M.C.: COLANGELO is an Italian name composed of two baptismal names combined and transferred into a surname. Nicola, meaning "man of the victorious army" was shortened to Col. To this was added Angelo for "angel." The resultant "Col-Angelo" was introduced as a family name early in the Middle Ages.

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, Independent Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

Spain's delightfully spiced cookery includes favored Arroz con Pollo (rice with chicken), a taste teaser.

Spanish Taste Treat

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent-Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

PIQUANT Spanish cookery has won fame around the world and one of its most favored dishes, both for home and restaurant use, is Arroz con Pollo (rice with chicken).
For Southlanders who like a dish to cook indoors and carry out to the patio, this is a good one. A secret of its flavor is a pinch of saffron.

Arroz con Pollo is presented today with the addition of chicharos (peas). The recipe:

Arroz con Pollo y Chicharos

- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon basil
- 1/2 teaspoon oregano
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 medium clove garlic, minced
- 1 teaspoon vinegar
- 1/2 cup olive oil (or cooking oil)
- 1 3-pound frying chicken, quartered or cut into serving pieces
- 1 cup coarsely chopped onion
- 1 cup coarsely chopped
green pepper

- 1 can (1 pound) tomatoes
(about 2 cups)
- 1/2 cup finely chopped ham
(about 2 ounces)
- 1 medium bay leaf
- 1 pinch saffron (less than 1/8 teaspoon)
- 2 cups water
- 1 package (4 1/2 ozs.) pre-cooked rice
- 1 package (10 ozs.) frozen green peas, partially defrosted

Mash first five ingredients together. Add vinegar and 1 tablespoon oil; brush over chicken pieces. Heat remaining oil in covered fry pan or electric skillet. Brown chicken on both sides in hot oil.
Add onion, tomatoes, ham and bay leaf; cover and cook slowly until chicken is tender; about 40 minutes. Remove chicken from pan and keep warm. Add water, rice, saffron and green peppers to tomato mixture. Arrange peas around edge of pan; cover and simmer just until rice is done, 5 to 10 minutes. Return chicken to rice and serve.
Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Portraits of the Kennedy Cabinet

By Vera Williams

Independent, Press-Telegram Book Editor

NINETEEN personalities in the White House and the Kennedy cabinet are presented in "THE KENNEDY CIRCLE," edited by Lester Tanzer (Luce, $4.95). Fourteen reporters, representing newspapers, magazines or networks, are the contributors.

The limelight focuses on Dean Rusk, secretary of state; Abraham Ribicoff, secretary of health, education and welfare, and Robert Kennedy, attorney general.

Each man's personality is probed, together with his relationship to the President, and the way he fits into his job.

David Brinkley, who wrote the introduction, says the men are not New Dealers and not reformers but pragmatists—men who believe "the best idea is the one that works fastest with the least fuss, while irritating the fewest people."

LEONARD BERNSTEIN approaches the age of 43. The world knows him as a musical director, composer of serious music, successful Broadway figure, popular TV personality. What comes next? The question is suggested, if not explored, by John Briggs, music critic, in "LEONARD BERNSTEIN" (World, $4.50), an objective, extremely readable biography. Briggs has been careful of the pitfalls of hero worship and debunking. He gives biographical facts, anecdotes, carefully evaluates Bernstein's compositions and career. Photographs span the conductor's life.

HELEN OTIS LAMONT

Former executive editor of Woman's Home Companion, Mrs. Lamont selected 50 of the best stories in the 60-year history of the magazine, for "A DIAMOND OF YEARS" (Doubleday, $4.95).

"THE GRAND PARADE"

by Julian Mayfield (Vanguard, $4.95) is an objective study of the big American problem of white-Negro relationships—this despite the fact that it is an excellent piece of fiction—a novel. For Mayfield, still a young man, is a writer who can look at either side of the race problem and be equally fair. He does not spare his own people (the dark) nor does he spare those with light skins where it is deserved.

The characters in this fast-moving story include the rich and the poor. There are politicians without scruples and those with unshakable principles. There are zealots and harlots, the educated and illiterate, the strong and the weak, the vocal and the quiet; and each character is made clear to the reader. The book builds to a climax that leaves the reader breathless but also full of thought.

ONE OF THE MOST useful aviation reference works in years is "WORLD AIRCRAFT ILLUSTRATED" compiled by John Underwood (Aero Publishers of Los Angeles, $8.50). Containing 440 photographs, the volume gives information on the current civil and military aircraft, including those of the Iron Curtain countries as well as the western world. Information includes a brief history of each aircraft in addition to operational data. Also listed are a number of small planes available in kit form for the do-it-yourself fan. The editor of this 248-page, letter-size volume is an authority on aircraft history and is the editor of the quarterly "Lightplane Review."

DID YOU KNOW that pastries with fillings, known as pirozhki, are favorite Russian dishes? That, in Russia, appetizers are called zahoosky? And blini means paper-thin pancakes? These and more than 200 other Russian recipes, all using ingredients obtainable in any grocery store, are given by Kyra Petrovskaya in "KYRA'S SECRETS OF RUSSIAN COOKING" (Prentice-Hall, $3.95). Another new cookbook is "ELENA'S FIESTA RECIPES" by Elena Zelayeta (Ritchie, $1.95), already widely known for her "Elena's Famous Mexican and Spanish Recipes." This volume is filled with mouth-watering recipes for chuletas, carnitas, chiles rellenos, minguches, etc. "Remember," Elena says, "a full belly makes a happy heart."

ADD TO THE SPATE of natural history books this year: R. H. Pearson's "A SEAL FLIES BY" (Walker, $3.50) about two personable seals, Flipper and Diana, that the author adds to his English home. The seals are intelligent, fun-loving, they work at training their owner. Photographs and drawings add interest.

ON NEW YEAR'S Day, 1863, Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation. The struggle of Negroes in the succeeding generation to realize the promise of that proclamation is told movingly by Arna Bontemps, assisted by Langston Hughes in "100 YEARS OF NEGRO FREEDOM" (Dodd, Mead, $3.50). The author cites Negro educators, editors, scientists, politicians and artists, and he pays tribute to Booker T. Washington, William Du Bois, Pinckney Pinchback, Theodore Greener, Timothy Fortune, George Washington Carver, Emmett Scott, Paul Laurence Dunbar and Charles S. Johnson.

An Editor's Autobiography

"TAIL OF THE PAPER TIGER" by O. H. P. King (Caxton, $6) is the fascinating autobiography of a small town Southern California editor whose by-line became synonymous with the Korean War.

Okey King grew up in nearby Venice, attended USC and after failing to land a job on the Press-Telegram put in a questionable apprenticeship as a waterfront cub for the Los Angeles Examiner before spending 20 years raising a family as a reporter-editor and everything on the Pomona Bulletin.

Then came his second career as a start-at-the-bottom fledgling wire service newsman in the AP bureau in San Francisco, Far East and Korean War correspondent and then personal adviser to Dr. Syngman Rhee in the ROK government.

His third career as a writer and lecturer is presently in full bloom.

"The Korean War lacks the romanticism of other conflicts in which the U. S. has engaged," writes King. "... Historians impressed us in childhood with the invincibility of the Stars and Stripes and the outcome of the Korean War is not in keeping with our traditions.

It was like a bad dream ... but was rich in intense living, in heart-warming incidents."

GOING PLACES — —with the Sloanes

NOW that the New Yorkers have started to desert the city for the summer, thoughtfully making room for visitors, let's take an uncluttered look at the non-tourist's New York.

RESTAURANTS — There are two kinds of restaurants in New York—for food, and for food plus display. Both will feed you well and both can be expensive. But for nonsense good eating, as well as a fighting chance for your pocketbook, the first is your best bet.

You can go to the unpretentious kosher style delicatessens where the working people eat and have hot corned beef and salami and pickles and fresh homestyle bread as you'll find it nowhere else in the world. Or you can graduate to the likes of Lindy's, where the homestyle cooking is refined, heaping, efficiently served and comparatively inexpensive.

The Chinese restaurants here are better than they ever were in pre-Communist China. Italian restaurants are good.

The showy restaurants are peopled almost entirely by walking expense accounts. There are many fine French restaurants at various price levels, rare outside of France.

Night clubs? Also for the human check books, and generally not for the human stomach.

The best guide in New York is a weekly magazine called Cue, which reviews restaurants, plays, movies and current attractions.

HOTELS—For the budget-minded, the small hotels on the side streets in the 40s and uptown are good bets. Two good choices in the theater district are the Taft and the Edison, both busy and commercial, but reasonable and well run.

For the most New York atmosphere, such hotels as the Essex House, St. Moritz and Barbizon Plaza, all facing Central Park, are moderate and comfortable.

ENTERTAINMENT — Tickets for the most hard-to-see plays can usually be had from agencies (most hotels have one) at a reasonable premium. If not, investigate the so-called off-Broadway houses, which often have less commercial and more beguiling shows.

WHAT TO SEE—After you get Chinatown, the Empire State Building and the Statue of Liberty off your chest, try these for something different: See 5th Ave., the world's greatest street, two ways—on foot and from a bus. Note the ponderous mansions of the old-line wealthy along Central Park, and pause a while in Washington Square among the beatniks. The most expensive merchandise in the world is displayed there.

DELAPLANE

"You recommend the Michelin Guide for driving in France. Where do we buy it?"

ANY OF THE Paris bookstores along the Champs Elysees or in the Opera district. Here in the U. S. at Abercrombie & Fitch; the Librairie de France in Rockefeller Center, New York City; Brentano's in New York (or their branches in other cities).

"... if we drive to New York and take a plane, is there some inexpensive place to leave the car?"

The Oil Market Garage, 166-172 Perry St., New York, specializes in this: $12 a week or $40 a month. Includes pickup and delivery service from dock or airline terminal.

"How do you go about renting an apartment in Paris before you get there?"

I'd get a friend who has a friend who has a friend who lives in Paris—that is, I'd try to get some direct contact if possible.

In New York City, Pat Palmer, Inc., 22 E. 67th St., is supposed to be an expert on renting anything from apartments to castles in Europe. Minimum contract is three months. (I don't know this firm personally and don't have any reports on how it works out. I'd like to have one from you.)

"How do you find out about freighter travel? Do you know whether it is a worthwhile way to go?"

IT CERTAINLY is cheaper. Other advantages are a lot of quiet. Ports other ships don't hit so much. I did 28 days on a freighter to Rio and thought it was great.

The disadvantages: You are committed to live with 11 other passengers—maybe you won't like them. Meal hours are pretty early, 5 o'clock dinners, etc. They are suited to the crew working day, not yours as on passenger liners. You may not like those off-the-track ports. (The reason big ships don't visit them is that they don't have as much to offer.)

It's hard to get on freighters—that 12-passenger limit doesn't leave many passages open. The best book on this is Ford's Freighter Guide, $2.50, Kenneth Ford, Publishers, 2031 Glendon Ave., Los Angeles, Calif. Fares, sailing dates and addresses.

"On a flight to Tokyo, Hong Kong and Bangkok, what else can we see? Formosa?"

Sure. Any airline ticket gives you stopovers in places the line overflies. That is, they'll give you a ticket on another line that does stop in that place. Then you pick up the original line farther along.

For Formosa, you fly CAT—Civil Air Transport. Your originating airline will write it in—here or you can do it in Tokyo. Supposed to be a good stopover with a good, new hotel.

THE PRICE IS RIGHT: When you hit the Caribbean, the British have the least expensive islands. Except for Jamaica, that's right up there. Try St. Lucia, Nevis, Grenada, Antigua. Barbados off season—summer and early fall.

Stan Delaplane finds it impossible to answer all of his travel mail. For his intimate tips on Japan, Italy, England, France, Russia, Hawaii, Mexico, Ireland and Spain (10 cents each), send coins and stamped, self-addressed, large envelope to Chronicle Features, 821 Market St., San Francisco.

Arizona Offers New Fun Region

By Fred Taylor Kraft

Independent Press-Telegram Travel Editor

COME 1963, westerners are going to have a vast new playground in which to romp and relax.

This is the Glen Canyon Recreation Area, a 1.4-million-acre federal fun region which surrounds what eventually will be Lake Powell, near the boom town of Page in northern Arizona.

Formed by Glen Canyon Dam on the Colorado River just below the Utah state line, Lake Powell—186 miles long with a shoreline of 1,800 miles—will start filling next year and is expected to be in full use in a couple of years.

However, tourists won't have to wait that long to enjoy the region's scenic, historic and sports appeal. Canyon Tours, Inc., has started work on the first of its $3 million program to provide motel, dining and other tourist facilities at Wahweap, not far from Page. In fact, some units are reported ready for tourists right now.

CAMPERS GET a break, too, with the National Park Service developing facilities in the same area which will be ready before year's end. Plans call for developments at seven other locations, two accessible only by boat. Summed up, National Park Service plans to spend more than $15 million and officials estimate that, including private development, approximately $30 million will be spent on tourist facilities in the entire area.

What's to see and do? Right now the chief attraction is watching construction of the mighty dam, now about half completed and scheduled to be finished in 1964. Several vantage points are located on Hwy. 89, near Page.

WHEN COMPLETED, the huge area will offer, in addition to camping and sightseeing, such water sports as boating, skiing, fishing (bass, crappie, catfish, bluegill and trout), and swimming on a year-around basis.

In the same general area are Navajo Bridge, east of the Vermilion Cliffs and south of Page, and Rainbow National Monument, in Utah. Best way to get there from the Southland is to turn north on Hwy. 89 at Flagstaff, Ariz.

GREYHOUND announces a series of escorted tours of the Pacific Northwest and Canada which sound great. Included on the itinerary are the redwood forests north of San Francisco; the rugged Oregon coast, considered to be one of the world's finest marine drives; a 4½-hour steamer cruise from Vancouver to Victoria, B.C.; a voyage through island-studded Puget Sound to Seattle; visits to Portland, the Columbia River gorge, Mt. Shasta, San Francisco and Sacramento. Tour includes roundtrip transportation, "private" coach which stays with the group the entire trip, hotel accommodations each night, services of a professional escort who acts as guide and host, and special sightseeing. From Los Angeles, the tour is 14 days and costs only $293.50, plus tax.

IF TOURING through Flagstaff, Ariz., late this month, don't overlook the annual Exhibition of Navajo Arts and Crafts being held July 23-30 in the Museum of Northern Arizona. Not only will outstanding examples of silver work, rugs and other products be available for sale, but Navajo artists also will demonstrate their skills.

WEEKEND GADABOUTS:

Next weekend, because of the eye-filling International Beauty Congress, will be a good one to stay in Long Beach. They say the girls will be prettier than ever this year. But if you must gad:

Perris Valley will hold its 14th annual Potato Festival—July 21-23—celebrating bounteous crops. A carnival and queen contest are among the events.

San Luis Rey Mission, near Oceanside, will hold its annual Fiesta on July 22-23. Following an ancient Mexican custom, people will bring their animals—and children, their pets—to be blessed Saturday noon by the padres. The outdoor fiesta mass, composed during the days of the Indians, will be sung at 11 a.m. Sunday. A barbecue, Indian games and dancing will follow.

Mojave (north from Palm-dale on Hwy. 6) holds its Air Show and Indian Powwow on July 22-23. Dedication of the airport will be celebrated with the Cole Brothers air show of aerobatics, chute jumps, car-to-plane transfer, and a huge display of planes.

Going Places

with its vast complex of terminal buildings and runways built over highways.

Ride the subway, especially if you've never done it before. Above all, walk wherever the spirit moves you. No city is as varied from block to block as New York, none offers so much stimulation to the just plain curious.

For something unusual, try one of the Sunday walking tours of the Museum of the City of New York (phone LEhigh 4-1672 for reservations; cost $2.50). They take small guided groups through little known areas of great geographic and historic appeal.

SHOPPING—Generally expensive, but there isn't anything legally for sale anywhere in the world that you can't buy here. The best bargains are at the discount houses. But you've got to know what you're about. Among the most reliable bargain stores are S. Klein, Ohrbach's, Peerless Stores, and E. J. Korvette.

Shirley and Bob Sloane will be happy to help readers with their travel problems. Address them in care of Southland Magazine, Independent, Press-Telegram, 6th and Pine, Long Beach 12, Calif.

CAMERA ANGLES

Know-How, Automation, or Both?

By Irving Desfor

KNOW-HOW vs. automation has stirred debates in my household lately and I contend that know-how plus the automatic camera makes the best combination for good pictures. Here's how it all came about:
I was testing the Rollei-magic camera, the only automatic 2 1/4 x 2 1/4 twin-lens reflex. It measures the light in front of the camera and automatically selects the correct combination of shutter speed and lens opening as the release lever is pressed.

As with all automatic cameras, the film speed must be set. Beyond that, the photographer must attend to one other chore to make a picture: he must focus.

I TURNED the camera over to my wife and 16-year-old daughter, Barbara, who are typical of so many people to whom the principles of correct exposure are a mystery. But they could fathom the idea of focusing and of observing a moving needle. When they saw it, it meant they had enough light to shoot by.

The testing ground was a camera cruise up the Hudson River on which we were accompanied by hundreds of other camera fans. When black-and-white film was switched to Kodachrome, the film speed was changed and caused nary a moment's hesitation to my women. That saw that needle and clicked away.

Then, later, Barbara called for help. We had docked at Bear Mountain and were walking under a ramp when she stopped to shoot the boat in the river. Under the deep shadow of the ramp, however, the needle didn't show. Couldn't she take a picture? She wanted to know.

THE SITUATION is one in which an automatic camera goofs, its exposure meter tricked by the heavy shadow of the ramp or sometimes a doorway or tunnel. It would also be fooled if the lighting were reversed—that is, if the camera were in bright light and the subject in the shade.

This is where a little know-how came in handy.
I moved Barbara down the ramp to an open space. There the needle became visible. I told her to press her finger ever so lightly on the release lever . . . but not enough to snap a picture.

As she did so, the needle became rigid, locking the proper exposure combination for that light in place. Then she moved back to her pre-selected position, got ready, and pressed the lever all the way down. The picture was made with the proper exposure.

The camera can be switched off automatic operation for flash or time exposures. But we are still debating who to credit for a good boat picture, the old man with the know-how or the chick who clicked the shutter.

Stopping Action

Many sharpshooters enjoy taking action pictures of summer sports, and those that are most expert at action picture-taking adhere to a few simple rules.

Those with box cameras and a set shutter speed of about 1/50 of a second will find that snapping the action as it comes directly at them increases the odds for successful "stop action" shots. Those with adjustable cameras should use the fastest shutter speed possible without underexposing the picture.

Subjects moving at right angles to the camera require faster shutter speeds than those moving diagonally or head-on.

Distant action, such as baseball plays shot from the grandstand, can be stopped by a slower shutter speed than the same action occurring only a few yards away.

Catalina Fun

With the great number of fish in the nearby waters, the island attracted a number of fishermen who caught tuna, rock bass, yellowtail and jew fish. In 1898, Capt. Frederick Holder, C. P. Morehouse, C. E. Doran and C. Manning founded the Catalina Tuna Club. Dressed in business suits, white, stiff-collared shirts and bowlers, these sports fishermen and others from various states set world records in taking tuna.

CATALINA abounded in such animals as wild pigs, burros, goats and deer. Mexican Joe was the popular guide, who had much information about the island, and often took hunting or fishing parties around. Some persons visited the mountain, 2,360-foot Black Jack, on horseback from Avalon, while others went by steamer to Swane's Landing, where they obtained mounts. After lunch in picnic style, the visitors would return to Avalon.

Other diversions included afternoon and evening concerts by the Musso Orchestra. One event that caused much excitement was a steamer excursion to see a 600-foot cliff blown up at the government quarry.

One newspaper praised the type of visitor who came to the island by saying:

"One of the most desirable features of this resort is the absence of toughs and people of low character. Those who come here are of moral nature and of sterling worth."

Thoughts on Behalf of Fido

him with such words as, "Go get your ball," or by offering him one of his toys.

Toys should not be of soft rubber, as the dog will eat them. Nor should they be of any splintery material. Beef hide chew sticks, nylon bones, strong leather toys, hard rubber toys (check often to be sure the dog isn't nibbling off pieces), and an occasional large knuckle bone are acceptable. If the dog chews on something you value, such as the edge of a carpet, make a paste of alum and smear it where he is chewing. Or put some bitter substance on it such as weak nux vomica.

Guess who wasn't invited to the barbecue. But these basset hounds can see what's going on through grille.

By Eleanor Avery Price

DOGS WITH nothing more to do than yip and cry in the backyard are unhappy pets. They are blameless for the trouble they create but, of course, should not be turned loose to roam. It is up to owners to see that they have interests and are made part of the family.

If your dog isn't leash broken, see that he is so you can take him on walks around the neighborhood. An early morning brisk walk is fine, and another more leisurely one in the evening will also be appreciated. Do not permit the dog to soil any lawns or shrubbery along the way.

Arrange some means for your dog to see out of the back yard. If you have a board fence, you can cut a lookout hole or two in it large enough for him to poke his head through. Or perhaps a grill can be incorporated in the fence that will help him see beyond the confinement of his yard. In the house, place a chair by a window overlooking the street, and let this be his chair. Of course, if he barks at everything that moves he will need some training.

AND HERE is where an obedience training class comes in handy. It will help you train your pet as well as give him something to do. You will also benefit by the fresh air, the mild exercise, an absorbing hobby, a fine recreational activity, and some new friends.

Keep up the lessons at home during the cool of the day, but never make them long and tiresome. Alternate them with play periods. A dog loves to retrieve a ball even when he has outgrown his puppyhood.

Grooming the dog daily lets him know you care for him. And keep him inside with you part of the time.

CHILDREN at home during summer will, of course, provide companionship. However, their noisy boisterous play may tend to make the dog bark more and sometimes cause him to revert to his natural animal mannerisms which domestication cannot always sublimate. Teach the dog to "Come," and call him if he is misbehaving. If he ignores you, a sharp "No!" accompanied if necessary by a swat on the dog's hind quarters with a folded newspaper should teach him that his actions are not acceptable. Removing him temporarily from the children might also help him mend his ways.

Older children can be taught to keep their dog in line with firm but not shrill commands or by distracting

Consequently, the sponsors of the University of the Seven Seas regard this school as a pilot project. Their long-range purpose is to charter other ships that are not being used to full capacity throughout the year, launching a fleet of floating colleges that can accommodate many times the 525 students who will embark the first semester.

These are the forerunners of the students of the future, some of them citizens of our own privileged country, some of them citizens of foreign lands, but all of them, in a larger sense, citizens of the world.

YOUR GARDEN

Drought Needn't Be Murderous

By Joe Littlefield

DROUGHT resistance is an important factor in many garden plantings. Where irrigation may be difficult, as on slopes, or where frequency of watering may be irregular or prolonged, certain plants display a hardiness not shared by others.

Among drought - resistant plants are the compact English myrtle, bottle bush, Tamarix, Arbutus Unedo, Spanish broom, rosemary, Cassia artemisioides, rock roses, Breath of Heaven, California holly, lemonade berry, Catalina and Carolina cherry. There are many others, names of which can be supplied by nurserymen.

Drought - resistance means more than just setting out a plant, watering it once and forgetting it. Any plant must be watered until it is established, then frequency of watering may be reduced.

MANY PLANTS need more frequent waterings. To prevent water from evaporating fast from soil, and save on watering, spread an inch layer or so of compost soil, moistened peat moss mixed with manure, bean straw, leaf mold, or one of the prepared spread mulch materials.

By giving plants slow deep soakings you won't need to water them as often as you will when bare soil around plants, bakes and cracks.

Alyssum, once started, can tolerate neglect within a limit. This is Royal Carpet.

'Pals' of the Lazy Gardener

By Bob Gilmore

POOOR SOILS need not prevent your having an attractive landscape. As a matter of fact, certain plants actually thrive on relatively infertile ground. Many of our most popular ornamentals will prosper on a very thin diet.

Godetias are not at all particular about the soil in which they grow. This colorful annual is splendid for cut flower arrangements as well as for general garden decoration. Several varieties are natives of California and all are very much at home in this area. The plants thrive in the sun and certainly make few demands of the caretaker. A relatively light soil will prove best.

ANOTHER highly colorful plant for growing conditions is the common iris. Like the godetia, iris is extremely easy to grow; once established you can practically forget it. Botanically this is referred to as iris germanica and another one of its name is "fleur-de-lis." You should keep this in mind as several iris types exist, the others being somewhat more temperamental.

Iris germanica certainly belongs in the lazy man's garden. The colors, which include all the shades of the rainbow, will certainly tone up your summer garden. The flowers range through yellow, lavender, blue, red and brown.

ANNUAL PHLOX is native to the wide open spaces of Texas and as might be expected thrives in full sun. The phlox is another highly colorful annual that does well in relatively poor soil. On the other hand, a fertile soil will cause no harm. The annual phlox is a free-flowering in-

Golden Slippers, a 1962 All-America Rose Selections choice, achieves a color break among floribundas in its unique petals of fluorescent orange and gold that begin in bright gold buds that are flushed with red.

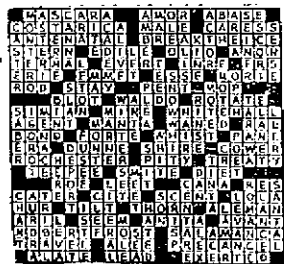

By Dorothy Jonson

No one insect does more damage to lawns today than the lawn moth or sod webworm. I no longer think of them as being a spring, summer or autumn problem. I do not think of them as being seasonal at all because from early spring until late fall, new cycles of lawn moths will appear in various sections of the country with their subsequent hatch of sod webworms creating brown patches in lawns.

Proper timing of the application of control measures for this pest is very important. Do not apply control measures when the moths are "on the wing," nor immediately afterward. Wait at least a week or 10 days. Then, whatever material is used will be applied as the young worms are starting to hatch and will be many times more effective.

There are several products effective against sod webworms, but many of these materials are poisonous to the birds that eat the worms. For that reason I like to use a combination of copper and ether. It will kill the sod webworms and yet is not poisonous to the birds.

dividual and the blooms perform well as cut flowers.

The familiar coreopsis is an exceedingly vigorous perennial. The golden-yellow flowers are light and airy in effect; they also serve well as indoor decorations, lasting for days in water.

PELARGONIUMS very likely produce more and ask for less than almost any other comparable garden subject. The flowers appear intermittently throughout the year. The plants are at their peak during summer and fall. Not too much water is recommended and the soil definitely must not be on the rich side. During the winter season the plants tend to go dormant and water should be withheld. A sunny exposure will prove ideal.

Other plants that do well in poor soils include: diosma, lavendula, ivy salvia, splendor, aloë, agave, dianthus, chrysanthemum frutescens, gazania, vinca, statice, hemerocallis, euphorbia, gaillardia and mesembryanthemum.

AL HENDLIN
Delicious Combination
THEY GO together like Romeo and Juliet, like Rogers and Hammerstein, like Mantle and Maris.
Steak and lobster.

This combination is appreciated by epicures wise enough to know that the flavor of steak and the flavor of lobster provide contrasts of pure eating delight. Especially if the steak and lobster are prepared by Frank Pagay, master chef at Al Hendlin's handsome Coral Room restaurant, 4130 Paramount Blvd. at E. Carson Street.

Frank's combination includes an eight-ounce, char-broiled sirloin served with an eight-ounce lobster. Both are top quality items. The $3.95 price includes chilled relish tray, large salad with choice of dressing, baked potato with cheese sauce, bread and butter and beverage. Also served on this dinner are Tournades of Beef, $2.95, small filets sauteed delectably with pineapple and rice; wonderful sweet-and-sour barbecued spareribs, $2.75, and a variety of broiled steaks, priced from $2.95 to $4.50.

A MAN OF diversified interests and ideas, host Hendlin is currently impressing his patrons by offering superb, pampered prime rib au jus for $1.95 on Sunday and Monday evenings only. Served buffet style, this includes a generous slice of beef, choice of 10 fresh delicious salads, potato or rice and bread and butter.

A former professional entertainer, Hendlin has many years of experience in the show business and restaurant fields. The Coral Room displays numerous decorative touches which he conceived, including a large stone fireplace, waterfall and good-looking banquet room. Nightly, except Sunday, there is entertainment from 8:45 o'clock on by The Great Cetani, a musician with endless comedy routines.

The Coral Room has a vast rear parking lot and also a front parking area.

Taste and Taboos May Slow Start of International TV

By DICK KLEINER
NEW YORK (NEA)—International television is a hot item. Communications satellites and other technical developments have made it a distinct possibility for the near future; all networks are including it in their future plans.

But one clear voice is raised in warning. It belongs to Stockton Helffrich, director of the New York Code Office of the National Association of Broadcasters. Helffrich was formerly director of continuity acceptance for NBC, the network's watchdog of good taste. And it is good taste which constitutes his concern now.

Helffrich feels that international TV, although possible, will be difficult because of the varying national taboos and standards of good taste.

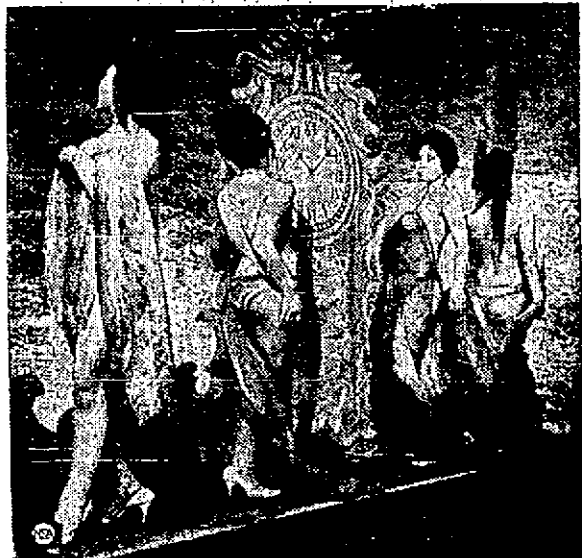

"Our ideas are not universal," he says. "For example, when 'Bonanza' is sold overseas, English stations cut it severely. It is too violent for English taste. And 'Bonanza' is not acceptable at all in Mexico for the same reasons."

SIMILARLY, what's OK in some countries might not fall within our feelings of acceptable fare. Japan has a popular burlesque program, "The Pink Mood Show," with strippers in action. Obviously, that's out here.

Helffrich's interest in international taboos is occasioned by his being in charge of a panel discussion "Taste and Taboos" during the first international Assembly of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. This first major worldwide gathering of TV executives will be held next November here.

He says there are many areas where one country may find the TV programs of another country unacceptable. Sex — especially the amount of female skin which may be shown — is one. Others are race relations, violence, divorce, birth control, politics.

HELFFRICH doesn't feel

these problems are insurmountable. He thinks that at first each nation will have to control televised imports to some extent, but that eventually free exchange of TV programs can have a healthy effect on the world.

He draws a comparison between international television and national television in this country.

"TV had a lot to do with breaking down racial barriers here," he says.

"Arthur Godfrey's mixed quartet, The Mariners, showed some people for the first time that there were places where the two races mixed on equal footing. At NBC, we gradually slipped Negroes into dramatic shows — we had them working side by side with white people in newspaper offices, police stations and hospitals, for example.

"I'M SURE that, over a period of years, this had a great deal to do with breaking down some barriers. People who never thought of it before saw Negroes working as equals, and they couldn't help but be affected by what they saw.

"The same thing can be done on an international basis. Over a period of time, many of these differences in taste and taboos can be broken down by television.

"I'm an optimist about it. I'm an optimist in general — if you're not an optimist, there's no point in going on."

In the immediate future, however, international television has problems. The technical matters are almost licked. But the cultural differences will be around for a while.

CONTESTMANSHIP ON TV

Quiz Shows Angle for Types

By BERNARD GAVZER

NEW YORK (AP)—Critics may deplore and sociologists analyze TV's quiz and game shows, but most fans have only one question when they visit the TV capitals of New York and Hollywood: How do you get on a show?

Here's the answer:

The field is wide open. There are 20 game-quiz type shows. Some are strictly variations of games played in parlors in olden days before TV — and you can win prizes even if you haven't enough talent to tie your shoelaces ("video village"). Some are pseudo-cerebral, requiring a degree of brainwork ("concentration"). And others seem to be designed for hardluck characters who would break a tooth biting whipped cream ("Queen for a Day") or who have strange and bizarre occupations or claims to fame ("What's My Line?", "The Groucho Show").

SINCE THE great scandal, operators of games and quizzes have been extremely sensitive. In a way, this has worked to the advantage of dreamers who want to win their way to riches and glory. To show that everything is on the up-and-up, and that no amount of pull can get you on, most of the shows insist on picking contestants from the audience.

This is true, for instance, of "The Price Is Right," biggest quiz in popularity and prizes. NBC gets requests for 60,000 tickets each month for the daily daytime telecast and the night show, hosted by amiable Bill Cullen.

Ticket holders are given cards to fill out when entering the studio. While the show is on staff members cull the cards for likely candidates. Home town, birthplace and occupation have something to do with choice since the producer likes to get variety in background.

The prizes on the night-time show have total price tags ranging from $16,000 to $23,000. That's one reason why so many people try to get on it.

IN SHOWS like "What's My Line?" and "To Tell the Truth," being in the audience has nothing to do with getting on. The non-panelists are ferreted out by staff people. Publicity men get into the picture by trying to get clients on such shows, not for the prizes but for the publicity.

Staff workers on shows like "Camouflage" and "Play Your Hunch" do a lot of random searching beside selecting from the audience, figuring they can find suitable people in any crowd.

The kind of people sought vary according to the general pattern of the show. You wouldn't be likely to see one of Jack Bailey's "Queen for a Day" potentials trying to exchange patter with Hugh Downs on "Concentration." "Queen" contestants are picked from the audience. They fill in cards stating their big wish and telling something about themselves. About 21 are selected for quick interviews, and then four finally are picked. The Bailey show travels, so it could practically come to your doorstep.

*****

"CONCENTRATION" is a different kettle of fish. You apply, just as though you're looking for a job. There's a quiz, just to see if you can solve a picture and word puzzle. And then there are personal interviews.

What factor decides whether you'll make it on any of these shows?

Well, some of them like to get expectant mothers, so expectant there's an element of suspense. Others go for people of foreign birth, but not with heavy accents, unless it is British. Off-beat occupations have a particular lure.

It helps if you're attractive, "not good-looking, but looking good, since we don't want beauty queens and matinee idols."

*****

YOU ALSO have to be an outgoing type, unlikely to clam up in front of the camera.

If you want to try, the next time you're bound to New York or Hollywood, write the networks for tickets. Write long in advance. Maybe the show will pick you. But it won't if you've been on any other similar show in the last three years.

While no one has reduced contestmanship to a science, it would seem that the cinch contestant would be a British-born resident of Peoria who won a baby contest, has three children, is pregnant, has a hobby of straightening hairpins, likes to work puzzles, has a husband with pneumonia, and needs a place to live because the house just burned down.

Good luck.

TV'S TOP FLAPPER

Charleston-Kicker Lives Part

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Every so often, a Hollywood star begins to live the role he (or she) plays on screen—and such is the case of Dorothy Provine, the Charleston-kicking flapper on ABC-TV's "The Roaring 20s."

The last TV star who acted similarly was Gene Barry, who played "Bat Masterson" and took to wearing his role's derby, cane and vest off screen as well.

The blonde Miss Provine, who was born in Deadwood, S. D., and reared in San Francisco, does not mix with gangsters or handsome newspaper reporters in speak-easies, the way she does in "The Roaring 20s."

But she wears flapper-style dresses and hair-bobs, lives vicariously in the 20s through a real interest in its history and dances—and has a whisky-tenor voice with a touch of childlike innocence that is reminiscent of the era stereotype.

"I GUESS the whole character formation started when I was a kid," said Miss Provine. "Mother taught me the Charleston, and my two sisters and I were always dancing around the house."

"Now I get sort of angry when people say, 'Do you really talk like that?' or 'Those are funny clothes.' I don't think they're funny. I've been wearing them a long time. I think girls were much sexier and more charming in the 20s with the short hair and dresses. They looked like fun."

Slowing away a salad, baked crabmeat, potatoes and rice pudding at a restaurant near Warner Bros. studios, Miss Provine said at lunch:

"I wanted to play the flapper in this show so badly that I'd go home and pray. I wondered, 'If I don't do this, what in dickens can I do?"

"I USED to be in a terrible TV series called 'The Alaskans,' and I think everybody thought of me as a flapper. I sang in 'The Alaskans' and sounded like King Kong. But when the studio was looking for the girl for the flapper part in 'The Roaring 20s' and asked me if I could dance, I said, 'Yeah.' I worked like a dog at home getting the Charleston as fast and frantic as I could. The secret is that I put on 33 r.p.m. records at 78 r.p.m. speed."

Miss Provine, who has become TV's "it" girl, has been so successful in her role that she'll have more of a say about next year's productions.

"I'll be in an equal number of shows with the guys on the program, I'll have my own choreographer and have something to say about a lot of aspects from the music to the kookiness of my character," she said.

ONE OF THE reasons for her success, she said, is that she doesn't play her part too sexy.

"I couldn't keep a straight face doing it," she said. "I think a sort of innocence is involved in the best sex appeal. Could you picture me walking around with half-closed eyes and an open mouth, playing the vamp? Maybe that's why I've never been chased by a producer. I think they know I'd belt them."

"Anyway, people are conservative where I went to school—at the University of Washington and the State of Washington."

Nevertheless, Miss Provine has become something of an expert about the less conservative language of the 20s and its gunmen. When the conversation turned to gangster-run restaurants, she said with perfect innocence:

"I don't think I'll frequent those places because I fear I'll be cut down with a chop-her."

It sounded like something straight out of the roaring 20s.

DOROTHY PROVINE: Just Like Roaring 20's

Jones Boy Called Spike

Spike Jones, the man who admits he "de-composes" music, zoomed into national notice overnight when he recorded "Der Fuehrer's Face" in 1942.

The record was released on a Saturday. The following Monday, Mark Hellinger signed him for the movie, "Thank Your Lucky Stars;" on Tuesday, he signed for a radio program, "Furlough Fun;" Wednesday, Bob Burns persuaded him to do his new coast-to-coast radio series; Thursday and Friday he got offers to make personal appearances at most major U.S. theaters; Saturday, RCA Victor signed him to a new recording contract.

Back for his summer replacement stint on national television at 9 p.m. Monday on channel 2, Jones' public relations staff reports that an audience is being prebuilt for Spike.

"For those who keep up with the Joneses," they say, "there are approximately 2,000 in New York; 2,000 in Chicago; 1,500 in Philadelphia; 1,000 in Detroit; 500 in Cleveland, and so on."

Some 7,000 of these Joneses are getting postcards addressed to "Dear Namesake," reminding them of the "Spike Jones Show," starring the Jones (Mr. and Mrs.) and featuring another Jones, Jack (son of Alan Jones), and suggesting that as loyal Joneses they keep a TV eye on Spike.

U.S. POST OFFICE Dept. took only a moment to deliver a letter addressed to "Pinky Pinkham, USA." That's the name of the character Dorothy Provine (see story this page) plays in "The Roaring 20s."

CAJOLING his Marquis Chimps into doing a scene for ABC-TV's new "The Hathaways" series, premiering in the fall, associate producer Gene Detroy put it this way:

"C'mon now. Do this trick right and I'll take you to the zoo next week. If you don't, you'll find yourself there tonight."

BESS MYERSON, tall striking brunette whose career was kicked off in 1945 when she was crowned "Miss America" complains that she's become so identified with dirty sink (through the TV salesmanship of a scouring powder) that when she goes into a restaurant, headwaiters—and even chefs—invite her into the kitchen to show her how clean their sinks are.

Hollywood's Where the Stars Are

By JOSEPH ST. AMANT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Here's Hollywood" is the name of a popular daytime television show but it probably should be changed to "Where's Hollywood?"

The show with its handsome host, Dean Miller, started last year by taking the viewing audience into the homes of movie stars here and behind-the-scenes on the sets.

Now Miller has become a globe-trotter, doing his interviews all over the world, in Europe, the Orient, Alaska.

GEOGRAPHICALLY and politically the community of Hollywood is a part of the city of Los Angeles. It's also been described as a state of mind (sometimes sick) so a change in the locale of the TV show doesn't really matter.

"We started following the stars all over the world — wherever they're making movies — to make the show more interesting," says Miller. "It adds quite a bit of excitement."

In Paris recently, Miller caught up with Simone Signoret, Joan Woodward, Paul Newman and Louis Armstrong.

ON THE OTHER side of the globe in Tokyo he exposed to his microphone and inquiring camera Mlle. Signoret's husband, Yves Montand, and Shirley MacLaine and Sessue Hayakawa.

On the "Cape Fear" movie set at Savannah, Ga., he ran down Gregory Peck and Robert Mitchum.

Japan's Baseball Widows

(Editor's Note: The following story by Cecil Brown, NBC News' Tokyo Correspondent, reported on NBC radio's "Emphasis" highlight the plight of Japan's "television widow").

Almost no American husband or wife knows what a naita is. But almost every Japanese couple is all too familiar with a naita, and between it, and television sets, many a Japanese home is in utter turmoil.

For a naita is a nighttime baseball game, and it's a form of madness here in Japan.

But the Japanese women, trying to hold on to their husbands, detest the naita, the nighttime baseball game.

We tune in on a young housewife in the city of Osaka -- married quite recently.

"My HUSBAND sits and watches TV when he comes home in the evening," she complains. "He doesn't know what he is eating for supper or what I am trying to say to him. And we have been married only three months.

"As soon as one game ends," he demands a snack, a bowl of rice, a piece of raw fish, pickles and sake to drink. Then he goes back to his TV set and watches it until the late night program—it's a review of the high spots in today's games."

Then the husband, as if he himself were one of the ball players, says to his wife: "Boy, games were tough on me."

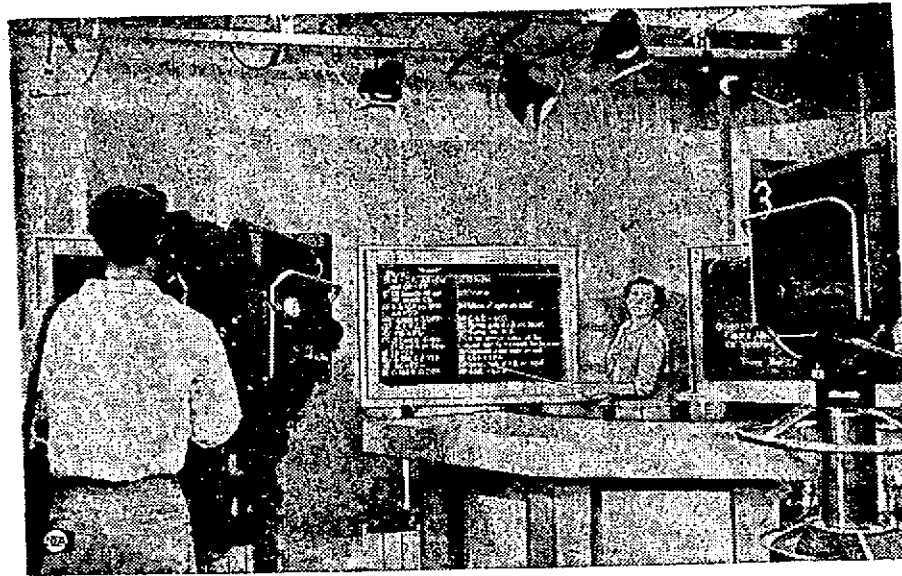

And the next minute he is snoring.

ACCORDING to one Tokyo weekly magazine, eight out of every ten male Tokyoites are baseball fans. Baseball news dominates their daily conversation.

The wifely victims of this male madness call themselves naita mibojin, or night widows—and for reasons other than the pure devotion of their husbands to Japan's and American's national game.

Japanese wives are bitter about this whole baseball frenzy. One housewife said, "Husbands don't teach us how to enjoy the game. When my husband is watching TV and I ask him what is going on, he tells me to shut up, this is a crucial moment.

And, the housewife complained, if his favorite team loses a game my husband angrily shouts at me, "You fool, because you asked such silly questions, my team lost the game."

EDUCATIONAL TV: South Carolina's Will Reach Every High School.

VALUE AS EDUCATIONAL TOOL

All Television's Not Bad

NEW YORK (NEA)—It is currently quite fashionable to blast TV's violence, repetition and corruptive qualities with such phrases as "television is terrible."

We ought to be more explicit and say, "Commercial television is terrible." There are many wonderful things being done through the medium of television; it isn't fair to castigate a magnificent tool because some misuse it.

Consider educational TV. Without fanfare and investigation, the use of television in schools is steadily increasing. Latest figures show there are 48 educational stations operating in 28 states. Their total audience is estimated at more than 70,000,000, including approximately 20,000,000 regular viewers.

MOST of these are "open circuit" stations—they can be picked up by any receiver within range of the signal. A few are "closed circuit"—the transmitter and receivers are hooked together so only those on the circuit can get the picture.

Whichever way they operate, the idea is the same—to get varied educational courses into schools and, in some cases, homes. The audience is generally pupils in classrooms but occasionally any interested set owner. And it watches while the best teachers explain their subjects.

If you must have violence, you can still get it on educational TV. What's more brutal than to watch someone split an infinitive, bisect an angle or render a poem?

The development of video tape has given educational TV its recent impetus. An educational TV station can now amass a library of courses on tape, and telecast them time and again.

AS AN example, South Carolina's educational TV network is currently building a three channel, closed circuit network which will reach every high school in the state. They are taping six to 10 courses a year, and plan to keep this pace for the next six years. The network will then have a complete library of at least 36 high school courses.

What are the advantages of telecast courses? There would be none if every school could afford the best teachers giving every possible course. But too many schools are not in that position; their budgets preclude hiring the best teachers and their small enrollment makes it impossible to offer every course.

BACK TO South Carolina for an example. A rural high school had a class of 57 students. State law requires that, to give a specific course, there must be at least 15 students. In that class, there were only 14 who expressed an interest in studying plane geometry. But plane geometry was offered over the educational network, and it was piped into the school for those 14 students.

Banner Full of Plans for Next Season

Sunday, July 16, 1961

Bob Banner, producer of Candid Camera and The Gary Moore Show, looks more like a college senior than a large wheel in the entertainment business.

As usual, he is full of plans. He rattled them off:

1. ALAN KING'S own show. He'll do a situation comedy, with one gimmick—every once in a while, he'll turn to the camera with "asides." The pilot for this will be on the air, sponsored, the week before Hennessey returns. It's the first time, as far as Banner knows, that the public will have a chance to see a pilot film before it is either sold or rejected. The public's reaction could conceivably influence the potential sponsors.

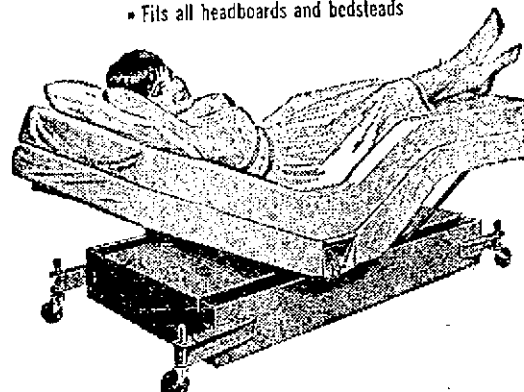

2. A supernatural series, being written by Joseph Stefano, who wrote "Psycho" and "The Naked Edge." Banner is aiming for January for this one.

3. A MUSIC-AND-COMEDY series, just in the talking, planning stage. This would have a story line and not be just a variety show.

Meanwhile, Garry Moore will be back in the fall with his "family" intact. That Wonderful Year will be kept, too; "we put that on first for a temporary run, but we couldn't possibly drop it now—the audience would throw tomatoes at us."

They'd Rather Be Funny Than Lovable

NEW YORK (NEA)—John Wayne and Frank Shuster have a message for all their fans: be patient.

They're not too happy with their first few "Holiday Lodge" programs, either. But, given time, they feel that they'll be able to reach a compromise with the format they were handed, and "work something out."

"They want us to be warm and lovable," Wayne says. Presumably, "they" refer to the network, but Wayne didn't elaborate. "Warm and lovable! Who needs it? We're supposed to be funny."

SHUSTER ADDED that "there are precedents for a situation comedy to be funny—Bilko, Lucy—and also precedents for a situation comedy to be bad."

The format was worked out before they were signed. They've tried to adjust to it, but admit it's a slow process. For the first time, they are doing comedy material written by somebody other than themselves.

"Trying to get writers to give us funny stuff written within this format is the big problem," Wayne says. "And I just don't know if we can do it within 13 weeks."

AN INTERVIEW WITH RED GRANGE

The crisis in college sports

by LLOYD SHEARER

YOU CAN READ IT as easily as the top line of an optometrist's chart.

Big-time college basketball in this country is as clean as the Chinese sewerage system.

Frank Hogan, veteran crime-busting District Attorney of New York City, made that fact indisputably clear a few weeks ago when a New York Grand Jury indicted former college basketball stars on charges of conspiracy and bribery.

They were accused of joining with hoodlum gamblers in bribing fellow players, usually at $1,000 a night, to throw games or keep their scores down.

The basketball scandal, second of its type in a decade, involves several dozen players from about 20 different colleges, ranging from the University of Connecticut to the University of California at Los Angeles. And this is only the beginning. The true extent of crime and corruption in collegiate basketball will probably never be determined. The present revelations, however, are indicative of the trend.

It presents two major questions: Who is truly responsible for the scandal? What measures can be taken to remedy the mess?

For one series of answers PARADE consulted Harold "Red" Grange, 58, the greatest football star of the 1920s, the famous "Galloping Ghost of Illinois," sportscaster, and authority on intercollegiate athletics.

Grange believes firmly that today's educators are responsible for the national basketball scandal.

"Our colleges and universities," he maintains, "have fouled their own nests. It's about time they started cleaning them out. Educators should educate, not win ball games.

"One of the most significant things about this current basketball scandal is that every player involved so far attended his college or university under some form of scholarship.

"Who are the educators handing out these scholarships? And what is their purpose? Only a few months ago some youngster in Connecticut made up a phony high school basketball background, used a phony name, a phony record and wrote to 10 colleges for a basketball scholarship. Practically all of these institutions of so-called higher learning were willing to come across because the youngster had built himself up as an All-State basketball star.

"The basic trouble with our educators," Grange continues, "is that they're not teaching our youngsters a correct set of values. It's also true of many parents. Kids are raised to measure success by money.

"The result is that most college athletes on athletic scholarships have no loyalty to any school, any coach, any student body. They go to the college that offers them the best deal. A college education to them is like buying a suit of clothes.

"What's the Deal?"

"I've talked to I don't know how many football coaches, many of them caught up in the vicious system of win, win, win—no matter what the cost. These coaches hear about an outstanding high school athlete. Maybe he's recommended by a zealous alumnus or he writes in himself. The coach goes out to talk to the youngster, to proselyte, to sell him.

"Usually he begins by telling the boy about his university, the fine faculty, the excellent graduate school, the Nobel Prize-winners who are teaching there. All the kids listen attentively, some even politely. But in practically every case, they say 'That's fine. But what's the deal? What's in it for me?'

"Where do these kids get that sense of values? That college president thinks he's improving his college by bringing in the best basketball players. What has basketball got to do with education?

"Today's youngsters are no fools. If a college awards a scholarship to a kid because he can win basketball and football games, and that's what they're doing, they can't be interested in the boy's education. If they let him spend his time practicing in the gym, playing games in Madison Square Garden and other big city arenas—then the boys are not getting an education, so they feel they might as well get a few bucks."

Grange, who played at Illinois in 1923, '24 and '25, claims that despite his football feats, "I never received a thing from the university—not even a free meal. In my day, most kids who attended a state university were residents of that state. Nowadays, colleges have scouts touring the country for athletic talent. Football and basketball carry most of the sports program in any university so they've become big business. All of that has got to stop.

"Colleges should leave big-time athletics to the professionals. Athletics must be de-emphasized. College sports should be returned to the colleges.

"The reason gamblers approach basketball players," Grange explains, "is because basketball is an easy game to control. In football if a quarterback is calling the wrong signals, the coach pulls him out. In basketball if a forward misses two or three baskets, the coach and the fans figure he's just having an 'off' night.

"If basketball were returned to the college campus where it belongs, there would be much less of this bribery temptation."

The Virtues of Education

"But above all what our universities and parents must start doing," Grange asserts, "is teach character. We've simply got to develop character in our young men, good moral constitutions. And education can do that a whole lot better than intercollegiate athletics. Sports are wonderful, but no young man should go to any college solely because of its sports program. You hear a lot about the virtues of athletics, how it teaches fair play, team work, discipline and determination. The truth of the matter is that all of these virtues can be taught much better in the classroom.

"For the most part, today's great men were not yesterday's great college athletes. Many of them, like President Kennedy, played a fair game of baseball or football, but they weren't All-American or All-anything. But they did develop character.

"Where our colleges went wrong in athletics was in building tremendous football stadiums to hold from 50,000 to 80,000 spectators. To fill the stadiums, they had to have standout attractions, winning football teams. Over a period of years the football star became a bigger man on the campus than the student who made Phi Beta Kappa. Then basketball became big-time, and the same evils developed.

"In my mind there's no doubt about it. The colleges and the universities are responsible for the over-emphasis on sports and the current basketball mess. To remedy it they've got to:

1 Restrict recruiting, 2 Ban participation in post-season, non-conference and holiday tournaments, 3 Exercise more care in awarding athletics scholarships, 4 De-emphasize or abolish intercollegiate sports.

"These are the alternatives. The next move is up to them."

What others have to say about the basketball scandal

Bob Cousy, star of the Boston Celtics professional basketball team, who is considered by many to be the world's greatest basketball player

"I find it awfully hard to make these ball players any more criminal than the point-shaving on millions of income tax returns and illegal insurance rebates that many try to finagle.

"This is the society that these players have been brought up in, and to my way of thinking, the players involved are the least guilty of anyone at all involved in creating their environment."

Dr. Franklin Murphy, Chancellor of U.C.L.A.

"When basketball gets out of hand to the extent where unscrupulous gamblers enter the picture, then it's a reminder that there's too much public pressure, and it's time to forego the huge extravaganzas and return college sports to the colleges."

Robert Kennedy, Attorney General

"... in basketball alone you've got 30 players and 17 or 18 different colleges in the United States involved in gambling. I think Bob Cousy said the other day that you can't really find fault with these people because this attitude permeates the U.S.

"There is so much concentration on making a few easy dollars and being comfortable that it's pretty difficult, even if you have good laws, to get these things altered or changed. If the attitude in the country changes—if we have a greater interest in our community, and the state and the nation, in our schools and in the fact that there should be good law enforcement—I think we will make progress."

How to look years

ALMOST ALL MEN and women in our culture want to appear younger than they really are.

There are several important reasons for this: a) vanity, b) earning a living, c) attracting members of the opposite sex.

Mindful of the needs and desires of the aging segment of our population—a segment which grows larger every year—the medical profession has perfected a relatively old technique for removing wrinkles.

It's popularly known as "face-peeling." But one of its leading practitioners, Dr. Samuel Ayres, III, Associate Clinical Professor of Dermatology at the University of Southern California School of Medicine, scholarly physician of 42, refers to it as "Superficial Chemosurgery."

In a scientific paper and exhibit at the recent annual meeting of the California Medical Association in Los Angeles, he stressed the potential hazards of the procedure, emphasizing that face-peeling can be both safe and effective in the hands of properly qualified physicians, but like any potent medical or surgical procedure, dangerous in the hands of the medically untrained.

The procedure basically consists of a chemical, always an acid, applied to wrinkled, weather-beaten or sun-drenched skin in a carefully controlled manner.

The acid penetrates sufficiently to remove the epidermis, the nonsensitive outer layer of skin, as well as the uppermost dermis, which is the true skin.

New skin grows back, bright pink at first, but gradually returning to a normal color in a few weeks. This new skin is more firm and of a much more youthful texture than the old.

Face-lifting, on the other hand, is an operation in which surgical incisions are made above and in front of the patient's ears and under her hair. Slack skin is undermined and the excess is removed. The remaining facial and neck skin is pulled taut.

A face-lift removes flabby excess tissue, but it does not rejuvenate the surface of the aging skin.

Chemosurgery, though, actually removes the outer layers of the old skin, allowing new youthful skin to grow in its place. Therefore, when both procedures are needed, the dermatologist and plastic surgeon cooperate to produce maximum improvement.

Let's assume you are a Hollywood actress of 53 who still wants to play lover instead of mother roles on the screen. Say—and this is often the case—that time, heredity and constant exposure to the sun have dried, wrinkled and aged your skin, especially around the neck, eyes, cheeks and mouth.

The doctor evaluates you physically and psychologically. He quickly points out that Chemosurgery will not eradicate the deep lines caused by the muscles of facial expression though they can be lessened in varying degrees. The smile and frown lines are two such examples. Deep frown lines can be altered by plastic surgery, but such an alteration usually changes the person's basic expression.

Should you have fine lines, crow's feet, cross checks around the eyes and cheeks, vertical lines on your upper lip, lines on your neck, all of which can benefit from a face-peel, the doctor tells you so.

If you are mutually acceptable, he schedules you.

A One Hour Job

You come into his office one morning. To put you at ease, he gives you a tranquilizer, a bit of pre-operative sedation that includes a pain-killing analgesic.

You lie down on his operating table and he photographs you for the "before" photos.

Then he takes a cotton applicator of the proper size and shape, depending on the area to be treated, dips it into an acid solution especially prepared with your type and texture of skin in mind. He applies exactly the right amount and concentration of solution to the area under treatment.

Some beauticians who perform a face-peel scar clients for life by using a chemical cauterant of the same intensity over the entire skin area. In Los Angeles recently one such beautician was heavily fined and served a 30-day jail sentence, convicted of practicing medicine without a license.

To treat a patient's entire face usually takes one hour. If the neck, chest and up-

When all the areas have been treated, they are dusted with an antibiotic powder. The operation is finished. You can return home or check into a hospital. Your face, of course, starts to swell because it's been treated with acid. Gradually the swelling will subside.

New skin, fresh, taut and pink, replaces the old. Make-up may be used, and you are cautioned to avoid undue sun exposure for two months. For the next few weeks, you have a bright rosy glow about you. You will never look better. Gradually the rosy glow fades into normal skin color.

One morning you look at yourself in the mirror. Happily, you realize that you look a good 10 or 15 years younger than you are.

The cost of the operation varies considerably, depending upon the extent and severity of the wrinkling, and thus on the amount of time, effort and responsibility required. It usually ranges between $350 and $1,500. Some patients need a repeat application.

Let me repeat, however, no one should submit to Chemosurgery unless it's performed by a qualified physician.

For a safe, effective, face-peel, consult your physician. Done well, the result can be gratifying. And the psychological lift may even exceed the physical improvement.

AMERICA'S LOVELIEST JUNIOR MISS

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO, a young father carefully pasted a snapshot of his 3-year-old daughter in a family album and scribbled beneath it: "Someday, Mary Fran, everybody will look at your picture."

Harry Luecke (pronounced "Loo-key") was more prophetic than he imagined. Today Mary Fran Luecke reigns as "America's Junior Miss"—making radio, TV and personal appearances, presiding at teenage press conferences, posing for thousands of pictures.

The graceful, 5 foot 5½ inch brunette beauty from St. Louis, Mo., sees her title and the $6,000 college scholarship that goes with it as the fulfillment of a dream to be an actress. She will study drama in college.

This week she will finish an etiquette film to be shown in schools across the country this fall. Mary Fran explains: "The script is built around my theory that a teenager is naturally beautiful like a blooming rose and needs the same care to stay that way. The heart of the film is my advice to any junior miss: remember you're a teenager and act accordingly."

She amplifies this advice: "Too little respect for grownups, too sophisticated clothes, too much makeup and too little regard for common courtesy will rob a junior miss of her own special brand of charm. Good taste, manners and grooming, on the other hand, can make any junior miss attractive and appealing."

PICNIC—RAIN OR SHINE

by BETH MERRIMAN Parade food editor

IT HAPPENS to the best planned picnics. The morning is fair, as predicted, and then all of a sudden the sky is overcast and big drops of rain spatter the window panes. The weatherman has been tricked again! But if you are a wise planner, you can have your picnic—rain or shine—by preparing food that is easy to serve indoors as well as out. So let the kitchen range take over and have a cheery meal, weather notwithstanding. The whole family will enjoy this menu: flavorful Spanish beans, frankfurter kabobs in toasted rolls, crisp raw relishes, dessert and coffee.

All-Hot Kabobs

6 frankfurters
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 can (10½ oz.) pizza sauce
12 pieces green pepper, about 1" each
12 pieces canned pineapple
Cut frankfurters into thirds. Place frankfurters in a bowl. Combine salad oil and pizza sauce; pour over frankfurters. Marinate in refrigerator for at least two hours. Using 3 frankfurter pieces, 2 green pepper pieces and 2 pineapple pieces per skewer, arrange the foods on 6 skewers, starting and ending with piece of frankfurter. Place skewers in shallow pie plate or on a rack, about 4" from heat. Broil about 4 minutes on one side, basting with marinade during broiling. Turn and broil on second side 4 minutes longer, basting several times. Makes six kabobs. Serve in toasted frankfurter rolls.

Alice's Spanish Bean Pot

If so, you have a unique opportunity to bring alive the U.S.' most remembered war as the nation marks the Civil War Centennial. (The high point of the first year comes next weekend, with a two-day reenactment of the first Confederate victory at Manassas, Va.) But even if you have not, you still can relive the events of the 1860s in a way that you and your family will long remember. All you need is a personal link to the past. The box below can tell you how to find it.

My wife, my sons and I found just such a thread to history. To us the cannonades and the cries of the Civil War are as real as if they were happening today, in our own backyard.

Our link to the past was a red pine box, handed down to me by my grandfather. It seemed to contain useless things—notes, Indian artifacts, reams of aged documents, old newspapers. And then there was a packet of yellowed letters, written by Nelson Wheelock, my grandfather's "Brother Nel"—"the favorite of the family," I was told, "who was killed at Gettysburg." I waded through them, then lost interest in a remote war that had left little imprint on Colorado, where I now live.

The Story of Brother Nel

Then, for two years, the Army assigned me to Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington. And one crisp afternoon, my family drove out to Manassas. Suddenly, the Civil War became real, an event that happened outside of the history books. We came home convinced that we should unravel the story of Brother Nel and how he came to die at Gettysburg.

All one winter, we questioned relatives. Much searching through trunks and desk drawers resulted. A photo turned up, fresh and crisp, that showed Brother Nel flanked by his three brothers and four sisters. On the back was a faded note: "Taken the year Nel went to war." Next came a picture of his farm home outside Barre, Mass. After that we found photos of his father and mother. Finally a tintype of his fiancée turned up and the cast of characters was complete.

Battle of Ball's Bluff

Through the winter, we read Brother Nel's letters and followed his unit's progress in an aging copy of The Story of the Fifteenth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry in the Civil War. Nel (listed in the history as "Private—born in Barre, Massachusetts—23 years old—single—a farmer") had enlisted July 12, 1861, and next month moved to Washington. There the men drilled for a mere two weeks and then were assigned to picket duty in nearby Maryland. We read his descriptions of battles which had been mere names in books.

The first of these was at Ball's Bluff, Va. In spring we drove there, ate a picnic lunch and eyed the Potomac where Confederate bullets had cut down fleeing Union troops. At Leesburg, on the other side, we found the meadow where the Union had lost the battle. We even clambered down the riverside cliffs, which had been a death trap for many of Brother Nel's buddies.

Our next weekend we went to Harper's Ferry and crisscrossed the hills where Nel had spent early 1862, and in summer we went to the peninsula southeast of Richmond. Nel was there in May and June. By now a seasoned veteran, he wrote home: "Tomorrow we again take the post of danger, for we are to cover a battery as before. I rather dread it before I get in it, then I don't care. I find the more a man is exposed to danger, the least he thinks of it."

There were no letters from the field as the 15th moved toward Antietam Creek, Md., in August and September to check the threat of Lee's northern advance. But September 17 was cloudy and cool ("at least we won't have to fight in the heat," Nel wrote) when the men of the 15th were called to battle. On an equally cool day, we followed its course. We traced the path of Nel's 15th to its ultimate camp on Bolivar Heights where we found a deserted cabin that had been there when the Union troops passed that way.

Later we went on to Fredericksburg, Va., and to Chancellorsville, and then the road to Gettysburg. By now Nel was first sergeant and very much alive to us. We knew his time was running out. It was difficult to read the letter of July 1, 1863, written after the first day of Gettysburg, but never sent. Clearly it had been sent home with his things.

Reading the letters, we felt a sense of frustration. We knew Nel had died of wounds, but when, how, where? In the red pine box we found more letters, telling in the simple words of his friends what happened.

"I think that he must have been wounded at the time that the Regiment fell back from the breastworks that we made from a rail fence," wrote Sgt. Charles Batchelder. "Your son had five balls through his legs. He was calm and bore his troubles like a Christian."

All that remained was for us to go to Gettysburg and a weekend there was time enough to put the final pieces of the puzzle in place. We found the rail fence and nearby, amid the softly blowing grass, the spot where we supposed Brother Nel had fallen. Now the whole war seemed complete and understandable.

Yet it was not quite complete. So a few weeks later, we piled into the car again and this time drove to Barre, Mass. There we plowed through musty old files of the Barre Gazette. In the issue of July 12, we found, "The body of George Nelson Wheelock . . . has been received. The funeral will be held in the home of his father."

And the Bugles Blew

One week later the newspaper recorded his burial "in Number Four Cemetery." Our last trip took us there, and we found the lichen-patterned headstone without difficulty. Here was the end of our personal claim in the nation's bloodiest episode. From it we had learned more history than from a hundred books. As the children read off the shallow inscription that summed up a young life cut short we thought we could hear in the soft wind the sound of bugles softly blowing. ■

You, too, can make history come alive

Whether or not your ancestor fought in the Civil War, you, too, can follow history through a personalized war, as the family of Dr. Seymour E. Wheelock did. Here's how:

If you believe an ancestor served in either the Union or Confederate armies, write the National Archives, Washington 25, D.C. Give his name and state from which he served. In return, his service will be confirmed and name of unit given. For $1, you can obtain copies of pertinent records. Expect to wait several weeks for reply.

Elaborate histories of most regiments were printed in postwar years. You may find his at your local library, or at the historical society of the state from which he served. The most complete collection is in the New York Library. In addition, you can get information about his unit's battles and campaigns through the state historian. The National Archives also keeps records of units.

If you did not have an ancestor in the war, you can "adopt" a regiment. Most Civil War units were raised by states and even by counties and towns. Probably your town sent a group of volunteers. With little difficulty, you can learn the number of the regiment and follow it through the war. You may even find descendants in town. The local library may have a history of the regiment.

by WAYNE and SHUSTER

EDITOR'S NOTE: Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster, two well-known Canadian comics, have worked on the Ed Sullivan TV program countless times. A few weeks ago they appeared in their first U.S. TV series, Holiday Lodge, playing social directors at a summer resort. They inherited Jack Benny's time slot for the hot-weather months and will continue until fall and possibly beyond. Before Holiday Lodge, they wrote their own material. Here are a few samples.

A FAMOUS ART COLLECTOR was walking through Greenwich Village when he noticed a mangy old cat lapping milk from an old saucer in front of the store. The collector did a double take when he saw the saucer. It was old and very valuable.

Casually he sauntered into the store and offered to buy the cat for two dollars. "Sorry, mister," the proprietor said, "the cat is not for sale."

"Come now," said the collector. "I need a hungry old cat around the house to catch mice. I'll give you 10 dollars for it!"

"Sold," said the owner, taking the 10.

"I was wondering," added the collector, "whether for the 10 dollars you wouldn't mind including that old saucer. The cat seems to be used to it. It'll save me a dish."

"Sorry, mister," was the firm reply. "That's my lucky saucer. So far this week I've sold 68 cats."

IT SEEMS THAT an elephant and a chimpanzee were sauntering through the jungle discussing this and that.

"You know," remarked the elephant casually, "I fill my trunk with peanuts."

"Really," said the chimpanzee. "Where do you keep your clothes?"

IT HAPPENED in a 48th Street bar. A man paid a $1.45 bar bill with two dollars. The bartender gave him his change—a 50 cent piece and a nickel—and waited for his tip. The man pocketed the 50 cent piece, left the nickel and walked out.

"Well," shrugged the bartender philosophically, "I gambled and I lost."

A WOMAN was complaining to a psychiatrist that her husband had a terrible delusion.

"He thinks he's a television set," she wailed. "All day long, day after day, he just sits in the corner of the living-room making faces."

"Well," said the doctor, "that doesn't sound serious. You bring him in tomorrow and I'll cure him in no time."

"No, no, doctor, don't cure him," she cried. "We want the entertainment. Just adjust his horizontal linearity."

AN AMERICAN TOURIST had about 10 drinks too many and fell into a snowdrift in the Alps.

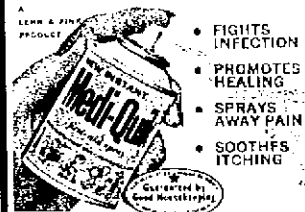

As he lay there in a stiff condition induced partly by the snow but mostly by the alcohol, he saw a St. Bernard dog coming toward him with the traditional keg of brandy hanging from his collar.

"Hooray!" roared the inebriate. "Here comes a man's best friend with a large dog!"

Do you know that accidents are more dangerous than diseases in the age group from 1 to 24 years?

It's not hard to figure out why! Every day youngsters do many things which are dangerous...with never a thought to the possible consequences.

Running out from between parked cars, falling from bikes, playing hazardous games, scraping knees, climbing over fences... all this is part of an average day to an active boy or girl.

Youngsters get hurt twice as often as their parents. That's why more and more parents are taking out this Insurance for each one of their children.

In these days when it costs so much to be laid-up by an accident, you cannot afford to let your children be without this protection.
